

Harper College Transfer Planning Guide

Associate in Arts – Humanities Sample Plan

Transfer & Career Notes

Humanities programs include coursework in disciplines such as art and architectural history, communication, history, linguistics, literature, and philosophy. Students may work with advisors to design their own programs.

Some schools offer humanities within their programs of interdisciplinary or general studies. In some graduate degree programs, humanities require an emphasis on art & architectural history, communication, history, linguistics, literature, and philosophy.

Many colleges and universities offer bachelors, masters, and doctoral degrees in humanities. Most two-year colleges offer the first two years of study. Students can often transfer these credits to a four-year school. Master's degrees typically take five or six years of full-time study after high school. Doctoral degree programs typically take three to five years after the master's degree
