$3.5 Million rehab project under way

By Tom Appel
News Editor

New and returning students this semester will find themselves coping with more than just new classes. Harper College is currently in the early stages of a $3.5 million dollar improvement and renovation project.

According to Harper Plant Director Don DeBuse, "Any inconvenience to students should be cleared up in about a week."

"We finally got the money from the state legislature for it five years," said DeBuse, explaining the sudden surge in improvement activity. "Most of the projects have been in the planning stages for quite some time."

Not all the current renovations are being state funded however. In addition to state funding are the sidewalk, exterior stair and entrance door project, and the resurfacing of parking lots. The latest of which has yet to go to the contractors for bidding. The combined cost of the state funded projects is estimated at $1.8 million.

Helping Harper foot the bill for the remaining costs of renovation will be the monies awarded to the college from a lawsuit against the architect and contractor of the campus. According to Director of Administrative Services Vernon Manke, the college was awarded 1.2 million dollars, of which a yet to be decided upon amount will be claimed by the state.

A favorite project of Manke's is the installation of building automation systems.

These systems will help manage the heating, air conditioning and lighting of individual buildings. The building automation system will also be used to start up times, thus avoiding power company peak load charges. According to Manke "This system will have a very fast payback." The cost of the management system is estimated at $83,000.

Despite the discovered problems of the project, a great deal of the projects are already completed. Finished projects include the construction of parking lots and sidewalk renovation, air conditioner replacements for both A and H buildings, pipe replacement in buildings D and E buildings and a new light fixture and sound system for the lecture halls in buildings D and E.

Current activities include replacing the retaining walls for both A and B buildings, and the sidewalk, exterior stairs and entrance doors renovation project.

The recently approved roof repair project has been put on hold, pending a break in the weather. This project will repair most of the buildings on campus at an estimated cost of $265,000.

Yet to be started are the first alarm update project, which has been delayed due to the rain, and the reformation of parking lot two resurfacing project.

Students find getting around campus their first test

Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Returning from summer vacation is not far easy, as most students agree; but, returning to Harper this fall poses special problems because there remain very little sidewalk on which to return.

How will incoming freshmen and new students find their way to classes that cannot be reached by conventional methods? Even for returning sophomores the task of contemplating the most expeditious route around campus is not to mention avoiding obstructions to most entrances, can be trying.

A returning sophomore named Kim Ostrowski, driving most of the parking lots near D-bldg with my sister, had no idea how disorganized the interior of the campus had become within the three months since school opened.

The two of us simply wished to find our classrooms before school started, thus eliminating the need to search for them Monday. Well, after successfully touring A-bldg, we met squarely with a four-foot drop in front of a D-bldg doorway.

We persevered and found an open door on the other side, only to be thwarted exiting when attempting to cross to E-bldg. E-bldg presented more of a problem, with an unoccupied entrance and other returning students

Harper student injured in diving accident

By Ann Thornton

On Friday night, August 14, while flood waters left suburban residents soggy carpets and wet basements, a dive into South Barrington's Coles Lake at Pines Park, Soby parlayed from the deep end.

Nineteen-year-old Soby and a friend were swimming in a part of the lake near their South Barrington home, when they didn't normally swim in.

While his friends backs were turned, Soby dove into water only two feet deep. Soby was dragged from the water by Ted Grodowski. Soby was initially taken to Homan Hospital in Hoffman Estates, where doctors determined he suffered a fractured vertebrae of the vertebral column.

Soby was transported by helicopter to University of Chicago Medical Center.

On August 20 doctors at UIC performed surgery to wire the vertebral back together.

A friend of the family, Ruth Neibauer, says Soby that Soby was off the respirator and "Doing well". Soby has regained partial control of both of his hands according to Neibauer.

Soby attended Barrington High School where he was involved in many activities including dejaying dances and the vertebral column.

Soby graduated from high school with a two year scholarship to Harper College where he continued his year.

In addition to his studies, Soby earned the respect of his peers by involvement in the National Honor Society, and by a trip to England and deejaying for the school radio station WHCM.

For the time being however, that life will have to be put on hold. Now that surgery has been completed, all that Soby and his family can do is be patient and hopeful that he will make a full recovery.

In an effort to assist the Soby family bear the financial burden, a fund has been set up at the National Bank of Barrington by a Barrington attorney.

Checks can be made out to the Peter Soby Jr. Fund, and sent in care of Helen Lohman to the First National Bank of Barrington, 201 S. Grove Ave., Barrington IL 60010.

Cards of sympathy can be sent to Peter Soby at Chicago Medical Center, Bernard Mitchell Neurology Dept., 5815 Maryland, Chicago IL 60637. The family has requested however, that there be no phone calls.

Renewal urged nationwide

Financial Aid Director dies over summer

By Patty Frey
Staff Writer

Harper College mourns the loss of Carol Ann Zack, an employee of Harper for the past 17 years.

"The loss was sudden. Zack was on the job until a week before her death, when she was bothered by leg pains," said Steve Catlin, director of Financial Aid and Veterans Affairs.

Zack came to Harper College in March, 1970 as a cashier in the Business Office. She moved to the Financial Aid and Veterans Affairs Office in 1976 as Financial Aid Specialist. She was named Coordinator of Financial Aid and Veterans Affairs in 1985.

Services were held July 1 at Ahlgren and Sons Funeral Home. A memorial was held at Hubert Catholic Church in Hoffman Estates followed by interment in All Saints Cemetery in Des Plaines.

Zack is survived by her husband, William, three sons, and a sister.

A Carol Zack Memorial Endowment Fund is being established at the request of her co-workers and friends. Donations to contribute to the fund may do so. The fund will be administered through the Harper College Educational Foundation. Contributions are tax deductible to the Carol Zack Memorial Endowment Fund.

Contributions may be sent to Ray Devore, Executive Director, Foundation for Academic Excellence, Building A, Room 323 or to Mary Polivarszak, Heath Services, Building A, Room 363.

Zack was always looking for ways to try and help people who fell through the financial aid cracks. People who needed financial aid but didn't meet all the technical requirements," Catlin said, adding he will remember most her "dedication and her care and concern for the common welfare

(CPS) nationwide have a very urgent need to renovate old campus buildings and construct some new one, the Society for College and University Planning (SCUP) said in a report last week.

Architect David Helpern, author of the report, said fast-growing and obsolescent buildings are inhibiting the quality of teaching and research on U.S. campuses.

"If we don't have quality and efficient teaching facilities, we are not going to have quality and excellence in our education," Helpern said.

About a third of the 200 campuses participating in SCUP's first nationwide survey said they need at least $50 million each for construction projects in the next five years.

Ninety-four of the campuses hope to start a construction project in the next five years if they can find the money. Congress now is debating a bill that would funnel some federal money to campuses to build or rebuild research facilities.

The bill, now in Senate and House committees, would put aside $47 million worth of research facilities for construction on the nation's campuses.

Two tragedies -- One solution

I had an editorial for this issue all written and ready to go several weeks ago about the Student Trustee position. Good, tough, independent. The staff that awards are made of. Then just last week, I became aware of two summa tragedies, unrelated except by their both touching the lives of students and from the same source.

The first of these tragedies occurred on June 27, when Financial Aid Coordinator Carol Zack passed away suddenly, after undergoing emergency surgery. Because I have been the one to be there for her, as well as being a financially strapped student, I dealt with Carol and her office frequently. Though surrounded by constant red tape and state-wide bureaucratic incompetence, Carol Zack was always a nice, considerate, professional, and helpful. At least to me. And I am always asking questions, but never once did I get the feeling from Carol that I was the pain in the neck that she knew I was.

The second tragedy occurred on July 10, perhaps, in a way, his story is more tragic still. It is the story of a 19-year-old Trustee Scholarship winner involved in a diving accident that left him paralyzed, perhaps for life.

Peter Soby, a 19-year-old sophomore last year at Harper, and though he doesn't know his present status, he apparently has made a very positive impression on a great many people around here. No less a personage than Dr. Bonnie Henry, Director of Student Affairs at Harper came into my office asking about coverage of the accident. Mary Jo Willis, the Director of Theater at Harper, and a person whose judgment of character I respect immensely, also had glowing things to say about Peter.

He has been here on several times for Harper Theatre as well as working with the summer orientation crew on Student Development.

Carol Zack was at Harper for 17 years. Peter Soby for four. Both are gone now, the one at 19, the other at 23 or 24. We have a way to begin to pay that back. The Zack family, realizing the years Carol put in towards helping students afford Harper, set up a Trust Fund scholarship in Carol's name. They asked us to help others. They asked that, in lieu of flowers, people contribute to the Carol Zack Memorial Scholarship. At present, more than $800 had been raised for this perpetual scholarship.

According to Ray Devrey, Executive Director of the Wm. Rainey Harper Educational Foundation, in order to match this fall $250 per semester scholarship, about $5,000 more is needed. This is the amount that a trust fund in Peter's name is also being set up. Checks may be sent to the Foundation in any amount.

One of the most often-repeated descriptions of Peter Soby by the people I know is that he is a "good fighter." An old high school teacher of mine, "He always struck me as someone who could do whatever he wanted."

That's good. One of the most important things every year Harper has several blood drives, United Way drives, and other charitable functions. And without breaking our arms putting ourselves on the back, we do good work in these areas. The ideals in many of these drives is "give til it hurts." In the cases of Carol Zack and Peter Soby, I propose a new ethic: Give til it helps.

BIZARRE CONCEPTS

by DAVID PILUSKI & TONY APPEL

Without going into a great deal of detail, let's just re-qualify ourselves to those of you who recognize our names. We are in fact the SAIGO Guys of the year. After a long night and drawn out court battle, we're back in front of the keyboard. Along with the continuing coverage of the former, you may notice a minor adjustment in editorial focus, but overall, a serious, down-to-business attitude of work will prevail. And, if you'll pardon the pun, we'll prevail. For those of you who don't know us read on.

This column is the result of a fifteen-month fact-finding tour, spanning nearly the entire northern Illinois. For you we have compiled a list of what we have found, some of it is scary as hell.

* When buying cheap liquor, you get what you pay for.

* When a university professor suggests three hours of outside study for every hour of lecture, listen. Trust us.

* When a bartender says the only fuzzy Nauvoo he knows is his wife's, don't argue.

* Never let an infant play with a blender.

* Sleep is good.

* There are people in this state who haven't heard of Harold Washington.

* We don't know if this really applies, but washing your hands doesn't really do any good. See, there are tiny parasitic mites that live in your pores that are near impossible to remove.

* You can scrub and scrub, and never move.

* DO NOT order the chicken fried steak at Denny's.

* Farm and Fleet does not accept Visa.

* We think the Maytag repairman lives in Palatine. We are in the process of checking this out.

* Telly Savalas does not.

* In excess of 1% of every dollar spent in Cook County goes to the RTA's PACE bus system.

* Despite popular beliefs, a person actually weighs in excess of 300 lbs.

* Those yellow ear-of-corn DeKalb signs along route 47 come right off.

* After travelling countless miles of Illinois roads, we have upped our keys to one car and thrown away the emblems. We're back at Harper and prepared to renew registration, comment on administration and indeed government, and provide whatever filter material necessary.

Summer's over and now the fun begins.

There's just no telling how surprised we were to see the newly redecorated cafeteria. Gone are the under-structured orange chairs, replaced by visually appealing upholstered chairs. The tables and plush mauve low pile carpeting. The decorator for this project certainly deserves to be commended.

However as you approach the west entrance to the cafeteria, you may notice the very unique structure jutting out above the doors. What the hell is it? It's not really ugly, but what purpose does it serve?

Have an idea? Let us know. Send as your best guess, thirty-two words or less (we will count) and we'll put the best idea. Best response will receive official BIZARRE Concepts sweatershirt. Surprise second and third place winners will also be awarded.

Drop your entry off at the Harbinger office, A Bldg., addressed to BIZARRE CONCEPTS, or visit our booth at Taste of Valparaiso where we will be signing autographs between 2 and 4pm Sunday. Good Luck.

Letter To The Readers

So what if he was fuzzy?

Dear Readers:

If you haven't yet read Peter Sweeney's "Page Five," stop here, turn to page five, read it, then come back. I'll wait.

First, I'd like to talk to you about Sweeney's "Head O' Words" story. At first I was skeptical about printing it, due to the lack of originality (along with my Managing Editor) to print it for these reasons:

First, aside from one repeated reference, there is nothing I found offensive and certainly nothing explicitly obscene.

Second, Peter is an award-winning college journalist (Illinois Community College Journalism Association award for Best News) and I'm glad to see him back with us after a semester off.

The third, and most important reason, is I think it's an effective story.

This explanation is only of forced to those who would rush us an indignant letter because, only because, a single word offended them the way I asked

By the way, I asked

Sweeney, why scrum? He replied, "it's a funny word".

Bowie all glitter, no substance

By Robyn Davis
Entertainment Editor

If there were a way to measure the excitement and attendance levels of a concert at the Rosemont Horizon just before the David Bowie concert last Friday and Saturday night, the needle would have been in the red zone. Lord, Bowie fans came from all areas and all age groups to see the show.

Scalpers were probably disappointed because they had no new cards that could be purchased with profits from the event. Granted, a slight exaggeration, but the prices unusually high. Those prices were paid. People wanted to see this show. I wanted to see this show. I paid these prices.

I had been looking forward to "The Glass Spider Tour" to begin. The stage was set under an enormous spider which wasn't recognizable until its legs and body were illuminated and the giant jaws began to move.

Bowie, along with a group of dancers, descended from the roof, million dollar instant on repeat. The spider's set included two large video screens, a fantastic light show and dance routine choreographed by Toni. My head began to nod.

Overall, it looked like the making of a Broadway musical in fact I thought it was at a Broadway show. There was no standing up, no audience participation.

After well over a confusing number of dancing, jumping, singing, costume changing and participation, Bowie spoke his audience for the first time. Here he introduced his band and he included Peter Frampton on his guitar. It seemed as if I were watching an MTV

Saturday night concert. The only thing that made it real was the hole in my pocket where all my money once was. Because I love Bowie I even made a conscious effort to enjoy it reciting the head and tapping my feet to the music. Soon though my head began to nod.

I began to contemplate whether I should stay or leave. I was standing up, no audience participation.

Elwood Blues (Dan Akroyd) said it best on first track intro on Raid Case File: Blues (Atlantic). "I'm not where I used to be." These days we so rarely get to hear master bluesmen practicing their craft. Now, granted, Akroyd won't be the last to give the current state of the music industry, rock could easily have been avoided.

One popular rock misconception seems more lyrical and delivery, in that order. Of course certain rock balladiers, Dylan comes to mind, have lyrics more meaningful than most bluesmen. The bulk of today's pop musicians put actual musical content far behind on there guitars. They play guitars, not guitars, as a show. What with video and trying to maintain an image, for cash rich suburban teenagers, the lyrical content of a pop act has slipped to near inconsequential.

One wonders in this day and age of MTV if the public cares if the purity of rock once delivered by such artists as Chuck Berry will ever resurface.

What suggestion? Watch this column as we try to present you honest musical efforts and accomplishments. You may because of time and the accelerating decay of the modern music, gone by the wayside. Each week, music historians as well as well reviewed albums, "From the Cutout Bin" as it were, and try to do justice to them.

Another consideration these days is price. When musical pop "fluff" is selling for near soul buck an album, you know there must be a better way. Many of the acts in the discographies in this column are presently available at cut or prices, so shop around.

Pop music is a dynamic phenomenon. Like our culture, it is always changing, sometimes even progressing. So while we wait, while we have the chance, let us not forget the music that preceded the video era.

There really was a time when a guitar was more an important than a camera crew.

*Joe Walsh, Full
Asylum 1978)

Most rock lovers have a favorite guitarist. For some it might be Jimi, Van Halen, or, right, choose Mark Knopfler of Dire Straits. Rarely among the lists of favorite guitarists is the name Joe Walsh, and for Joe's definitive style and talent should at least be ranked at an honorable mention.

Bad Seats (Falks opens with the slowish "Tomorrow," a song about procrastination which paves a smooth path for "Morning Star" and "I'm Gonna Follow." "Immemorial," half of a two part song including "Theme from Boat Wizard" is one of the album's best non-rock instrumental.

The two songs combined form a near balance in size and a half hour run time. The best way to experience the hypnotic effect of these two songs is lying down with headphones, trying to follow song on the A side is the now classic "Life's been Good," a shocking contrast. This song, arguably the epitome of Walsh's guitar work, should be in any music lover's collection.

The B side settles down a bit, being a little heavier on lyrics than the A side. "Nothing Disappoints," but I'm not sure it keeps up with the A side.

Overall this is a must own for rockers. Price? I've seen it lately for as little as $1.99. (which says you get what you pay for) so there's no excuse not to match this gem up. Check Orange Records and Tapes on Golf and Argonne.

BUT WAS HE FUZZY?

A HEAP O' WORDS
BY PEDER SWEENEY

Joe Dorman, 60, sat at his boring little desk in his boring little office and performed the same boring little job he had performed for forty years—nothing new or different would come to him one day, he knew him mind's way.

Boring.
Joe was a small little man so it could be difficult to tell if he was angry, but on this particular day he clearly was. He was angry because, last night, his wife Florence had called him the "S" word.

Angry.

Joe Dorman, she had complained, "I can't stand it anymore! The children have grown up and moved away and we're forty years apart! If you were half a man you'd march straight into your boss' office and demand a decent raise so that we could have a better life, a little better life!"

None of this world had bothered Joe—he had heard it all before—but Florence didn't stop there.

"...and that's the last thing for me, will you? Not do you know why you won't? Hmmm? Do you?" Joe did, but he put his fingers in his ears so he wouldn't have to hear her say it. He always did that but he always heard her anyway.

"Because, Joe Durman, you are a scroombah!!"

And that's why Joe was angry. Florence had been calling him a scroombah for forty years since it had made him angry. "Don't you ever call me a scroombah again!" he roared, but not out loud since she could beat the hell out of him.

Florence called Joe a scroombah in front of other people so everyone who knew her referred to him as scroombah.

But only Florence said it to his face.

The funny thing is that Joe's head didn't really look like a scroombah. He just seemed like the sort of guy you call scroombah.

"I'm not!" he said.
"And then he said
'Hummhum'
because he had an idea.

"What?" he said, "I really was a scroombah?"

And, so saying, he picked up the phone book and turned to the page for Scroombah. Scroombah Cleaning and Dying; Scroombah Landscaping; Scroombah Sales and Service etc. Under Scroombah Wear Joe found the following listing:

THE DASHING SCROUMTUM
"For the Dashing Scroombah."

So Joe went to the Dashing Scroumbum after work. "Abahhh," he said when he got there. He had expected a dusty little specialty shop. What he found was a fifty thousand dollar-a-month-a-day business where Joe looked, people were engaged in scroombum business.

"Scroombums, everywhere!" said Joe in himself.

"Scroombums, everywhere!"

A dapper, middle-aged telephone approached Joe. He wore a nametag that said "My name is Bill. Ask me about our Jumbo Scroombum Landscaping."

"May I help you?" asked Bill.

"Well, yes," replied Joe, "you see, my wife has been calling me a scroombah for the past forty years and..."

"I know what you mean, sir, your head does not look especially scroombah-like."

"Yes," said Joe, "that's rather how I see it too. That's why I'm here to come to look more like a scroombum."

"Very good, sir," said Bill, and he led Joe to the Scroombum Headwear department where Joe found thousands upon thousands of scroombah headpieces to choose from.

Joe was in scroombum heaven.

Shortly after in his new scroombum headwear, and having just chewed his complimentary Scroombum A-Breast Mist, Joe entered the kitchen of his small bungalow where his wife Florence was waiting for him. She had just expected Florence to scream when she saw him and fall to her knees to beg his forgiveness for her wicked tongue, but all she did was look at him with her usual expression of mild disapproval.

"I'll have to call you back later, Marge," she said into the phone. "I'm scroombah, just walked in." Joe was surprised. Florence was acting as if there were nothing different about him! She was having noticed his new scroombum costume! She had looked right at him!

"Ahhhhh," said Joe to himself, "she's playing it cool! She's pretending not to notice. Well, two can play at that game!"

"Yes," he repeated to himself, "two can very certainly play at that game!"

Ssix months passed and Joe and Florence were still in a deadlock. Florence would not acknowledge any difference between them, neither changes in his behavior occurred. Instead of his current scroombah wear, she was wearing a costume, revealing several strands of gold chain. He started wearing a cubit circlet earning where his ear would otherwise have been.

"Hey, you can't wear that below!"
"That's Mister Scroombah to you, missie!" he would reply, wherever she would beat him full out of him.

Two years passed. Joe at fifty-two and still in his scroombum costume, had taken on many characteristics of a scroombah. He had, in fact, adopted a scroombah lifestyle. He no longer ate meat, he no longer drank beer, he no longer smoked. He quit his job as an accountant and formed a musical band with himself as lead singer. The other members of the band were his scroombah friends, Scroombum, Scroombum, and the Bagman, they called themselves.

Five years passed. Joe had devoted scroombum worship to the status of an intergalactic religion. Joe himself was the High Priest who led a flock of millions in the search for the true essence of Scroombum. "Scroob Rhota," they called him.

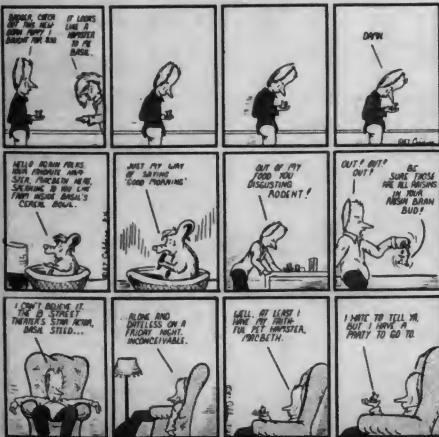

"Serota Rhota, Scroote Rhota," his disciples would chant. "Scroota Rhota Ramma Damma Ding Dong!!"

Joe and Florence are very old now and living in their elegant Palm Beach mansion. Sometimes Joe will take Florence in his arms and say "Gimme some tongue, baby." She was surprised. Florence was acting as if there were nothing different about him! She was having noticed his new scroombum costume! She had looked right at him!

"Then they laugh."

 know, the stairs only allow one to enter the second floor at two locations, not three. I did the construction work entering in all but one door, but that one door is located on the farthest corner from most classrooms elsewhere on campus.

when classes begin, he answered,

"It's the construction something that has to be done."

Well, with Rose's views in mind, I concluded not everyone experienced frustration over the move. However, more opinions strengthened my belief that the majority of students would find the obstructions problematical.

Like Steve Rose, sophomore Dan Lasky and Mark Thompson, also from A-big, commented on the vagueness of the dorm signs, where they could be found. Furthermore, Donna said, "It's going to be really tough for freshman, especially since they don't know what to expect if they didn't come before school started. They'll have serious problems."

WHO'S HOT and who's not in the world of sports

by Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

This past summer has brought its share of hot days and hot athletes in the world of sports. And just like summer, it's been a year on record breaking streaks and phenomenal sunsets.

Who's hot?

The hottest man in baseball at the moment, who else but the only DH worth mentioning in the Major Leagues, Mervin.

Melvin's current hitting streak of 38 games has baseball fans asking what it will take for him to break his plate. Melvin says he is only concentrating on having fun and making the most of his opportunity. He's almost saying he isn't thinking about the streak.

The real question still remains if he can break DeMaggio's record of 56-games, but with this crazy season of juiced baseballs, it's possible.

Who's not?

The most talked about rookie before the All-Star break has gone from the average life he had before he started on the hottest home run pace since Roger Maris.

Mark McGwire of the Oakland A's started the 1987 campaign with an awesome performance, then went into the break.

After the break, he has continued his success, as well he should.

Who's hot?

Conceded by many of the top sportswriters in the Chicago media as the most popular hit to hit the Cubs since Ernie Banks, McGwire has left his lasting impression on Cub fans.

Dawson, currently making around $700,000, including incentives, is sure to leave a lasting impression next year as he is expected to be the first Chicago player to go over the two million dollar mark.

Dawson leads the league in both home runs and runs batted in, while having one of the best arms in the business.

Who's not?

Having come from a mediocre team in 1986 to a terrible season in 1987, the White Sox have not impressed in any areas. They have the worst home record in baseball and even the speedy Gary Redus is being hurt by the Sox.

He is capable of so much more, but with the Sox lacking any offense, he is unable to perform.

With the Sox having a strong hold on last place, many changes must be done if they hope to claw their way out of the cellar before the year ends.

Who's hot?

After only two pre-season wins, the Bears have had a strong start to the season. They have won three consecutive games, including a win over the Rams.

With the Bears having a strong record, the Hennepin Trophy is within reach.

Who's not?

After the Bears' recent acquisition of first-round draft choice Jim Doug Flutie, Tomczak seemed to be the odd-man-out.

But with the arrival of Jim McMahon, Tomczak has risen to the challenge and made everyone else stand up, as they are the odd ones.

Who's hot?

If McMahon does come back from his injury in time, he will likely be the starter. But he will have to prove he can control over his own future.

Who's not?

Switching back to baseball, after the National League on fire has been doused by NL pitchers.

Eric Davis of the Cincinnati Reds is the new NL MVP before the season started.

And up until the All-Star break, he had the Reds at the playoffs.

But the break off has given the rest of the NL West hope in winning the division. I'm not making any predictions, but it looks like the Rockies will make the playoffs.

Davis must continue the season he had together before the All-Star break.

Now, the season were to end tomorrow, so many strange things have happened in baseball, it would seem as if a whole new season had just begun.

Tommy John had a 15-game winning streak to start the season, Dick Howser's dream team had a 15-game winning streak after alcohol rehab, Dwight Gooden's return after drug rehab and the list goes on.

The 1987 campaign has proven to be more exciting than past years and the real fun will start with the playoffs and the World Series begin.

Sports writers needed to cover volleyball, cross country, and women's tennis. Come to A-367 and ask for Bill if interested.

Bolt and Bechtold leave coaching reasons for the change.

"The change was a combination of both," said Gelsch. "We have had two head coaches in the last two years and we feel that we have to accomplish in the Athletic Department and they require more of them (Bolt and Bechtold) to put more time into their time."

According to Gelsch, this has been in the planning for the past few years while thinking the next year.

Both Bolt and Bechtold will take over the lone Athletic Director's job.

With the two channeling their experience and knowledge, Harper's Athletic Department can only profit administratively, athletic duties or financial charges.

Gelsch went on to say, "We have a replacement as soon as possible. While a replacement is being found for Bolt, Kathy Chamberlain, we want to keep it strong."

Cheerleading and Pom-Pon Tryouts for guys and gals will be held on September 1, 2, 3 at 2:30-4:15 in Building-M in Room 249. Guys are encouraged to tryout as well as gals.

Foundation Board welcomes five

By Gloria Carr
Staff Writer

Five new members have joined the Harper College Foundation Board. These new members are Don Barrington, Daniel Baumann, James Goodwin, William Kern, and Robert Leibold.

The foundation was organized in 1974 with the main goal being to raise financial support from corporations and private business for grants, scholarships and other activities at the college.

Don Barrington is the director of Human Resource Development for the Northerly Corporation. He has graduated from several universities including a Master of Education from DePaul University. Barrington resides in Schenectady with his family and is involved in many other organizations such as the Advisory Committee here at Harper.

Daniel Baumann found himself involved with the foundation when "...a retiring member called me and asked if I was interested in being on the foundation board." (He said the foundation was active in supporting the goals of Harper College students through scholarship funds.) "I thought it was something worthwhile to do."

Baumann is the president and editor of The Daily Herald and has a bachelors degree in journalism and a Masters in Political Science from the University of Wisconsin-Milwaukee. He participated in many organizations including the Greater Woodfield Conventions.

James Goodwin serves as Senior Vice President-Marketing for United Airlines. In 1982 he was elected Regional Vice President-Hotel Operations, managing hotels responsible for United's two largest airport hubs at O'Hare International Airport in Chicago and the Jacqueline Kennedy International Airport in Dallas.

Goodwin received a Bachelor's Degree in Science from Salem College in West Virginia. Goodwin belongs to the National Association of Country Club and the Meadow Club.

As Senior Vice President of the Pepper Construction Company, William Kern has been in charge of many projects such as the Prudential Plaza Building Renovation.

Kern currently is active in community organizations including the Barrington Swim Club and the Barrington Area Chamber of Commerce. Kern received a Bachelor's Degree in Science from St. John's University and the Meadow Club.

University in South Orange, New Jersey.

Robert Leibold is a vice president of Allstate Insurance Companies and is on the Allstate board of directors. Leibold is chairman of the Gurnee Foundation, a Chicago-based drug and alcohol rehabilitation program. In 1986 he was appointed to the Federal Highway Administration's National Carrier Advisory Committee. Leibold completed specialized insurance courses at Marquette University and attended the University of Minnesota.

New Student Activities Coordinator named

By Kim Steinbacher
Staff Writer

Alice Jorgenson will temporarily replace student Activities Coordinator, Michael Nejman, as head of Harper's Student Programs for Fall of '87.

Jorgenson worked for the College of Lake County for three years with the Program Board, Student Activities and the Film Society.

She has recently completed her B.A. in marketing at DePaul University.

Although Jorgenson will only be on the committee until Nejman returns, she's excited about the job because of Harper's excellent reputation.

"It's a really fun job and the students have great ideas and outgoing ideas which allow me to be a success," claims Jorgenson.

According to Jorgenson, "Harper is successful and I'm happy to have a chance to work with a student body that is so involved in their school and more sophisticated than the College of Lake County."

One goal Jorgenson would like to accomplish is to develop a spring semester student activities program that will be as exciting as Nejman's.

According to Jorgenson, "I would like to increase our mailing outreach, to special targets of interest in the area."

Jorgenson says,

"I feel if we meet more people's needs and interests we will increase student enrollment," claims Jorgenson.

According to Jorgenson, she is looking forward to the "Club Fair" on Sept. 14th as a special opportunity day for Harper students.

"My job is one to assure that the clubs are receiving the financial resources that they are supposed to," says Jorgenson.

"I feel if students come to just go to classes, students need to get involved with activities to get the full 'Happ'n Experience' claims Jorgenson.

Life in London for a Harper Student

By Daniel W. Fay
World Traveler

On December 2, 1986, I made a phone call that would change my life for the next six months and perhaps far beyond. The call was from Jack Richard, Head of International Business and Finance at Harper. He told me some of the best news I had heard in years.

The message was short but very revealing. It didn't take me long to place bound for London one short month later. Mr. Richard said that he had looked at my application to the International Business Program and that since I had met all the necessary requirements I was eligible to study overseas. Needless to say I jumped at the chance!

Oh, sure I was worried and had many second thoughts about going to live away from home for so long. But after looking at all the places and countries I decided that I would go. In the short five weeks between my acceptance to the program and the day of departure I had a lot to do.

Each day something new such as applying for a passport or buying books and supplies had to be done but when the big day came I was ready.

I still remember dragging my parents around the airport and wondering what life would be like after my return. I also remember shaking hands with President McQuade before boarding and thinking that just a short time ago I had been in his office picking out classes for the fall semester.

Yes, I needed to leave a lot of friends, family, and security behind but it was now time to explore, to find new friends, and a whole new way of life.

It didn't take long to establish new relationships. Just after boarding I ran into Matt Schmitz, another student on the International Entertainment Program at Harper College.

Matt and I talked throughout our flight and by the time we arrived in London it seemed like I had known him forever.

After a long flight we landed at Gatwick airport on January 10 and was exciting experience as I set my first ever look at London, England.

What was the weather like?

It was at this point when I realized that a great learning experience it would be having all of the sights and sounds of my new country. There was no time to see and I didn't dare miss a thing as I struggled to make my eyes open after a sleepless night.

After getting settled in at the Brynston Student Residence and a quick meeting with the leaders of the class it was off to the pub as most the British in English fashion.

Susan Dwyer, another student from Harper College, and I tried to get a London pub room after a few hours and more than a few pints of Guinness we were living it up with a couple to blokes from Kent.

We even met three gents from Northern Ireland and kick boxer from Italy. We talked all night but never got bored because everyone we met was like no one we had ever met before.

The Changing of the Guard at Buckingham Palace was also another hearing about it was so long but unfortunately we had to stand out in below zero temperatures to experience it.

The next day though, we had plenty of time to warm up in our classes which ran until 9 o'clock that evening. The last class of the day was the British Culture and Society, and it was definitely worth the wait.

In the short two hours in which the class met I learned a lot about the British people and their history that I learned before.

Our speaker went into numerous details about England's history and explained the great fire of London and the rebuilding period which followed. She explained how each of the different kings of England had built or destroyed and the impact each one of the kings had on current traditions.

When I left class that night I was filled with an abundance of optimism knowing that I would learn more in the next year about the British and about life itself than I had in the preceding year.

After getting settled in the U.K. the classes that I attended were limited to around twelve or eighteen students and as the semester went on I began to like the intimacy w. or me and had left.

With the smaller class everyone seemed to be much more open with their feelings and always willing to share.

Even the teachers were much more open about their personal lives and experiences.

During the first week much the time I stayed after class to talk with Professor Gene Kummert about his trips to the south of England and also the talking with Professor Ben Dallas, who just finished his trip.

I personally believe the class sessions provided for a better learning environment and over all added a tremendous amount to the program.

Although the majority of the classes were small "British Culture and Society" consisted of approximately fifty people. This was no problem, though, as it made the class a whole lot of fun, especially on Tuesdays when we

Editorial

So you think you voted for a Student Trustee? There's a catch...

I found something out this summer, quite by accident, that boggles my imagination: We. While attending the meeting of the Jane Board of Trustees meeting, I noticed the vote fully included a unanimous yes vote, followed by a separate notation of Student Representative Gregory Miller's "vote" (it also happened to be affirmative).

Initially, this passed me. Why would the minutes record the Student Trustee vote separately, after the vote results were recorded? Being basically a trusting person, I waited until the next month's meeting before drawing any conclusions. Sure enough, the next month's vote results were recorded in the same manner.

I called Greg Miller and asked him about how the vote procedure is conducted at Trustee meetings. He confirmed my fears: AFTEA's "real" members of the Board of Trustees, i.e., the Student Trustee is asked his opinion. And that's all it is. An opinion.

After still more research, I discovered that not only is standard operation procedure to have no student representation on the Board of Trustees, there is a state law that provides for our. I am still trying, as yet unsuccessfully, to find out if the letter of this law actually prohibits the student rep from voting, or just provides at least something milder. Illinois Board of Higher Education (IBHE) doesn't know; the Illinois Community College Board (ICCB) doesn't know, and the College President's office doesn't know.

The ICCB did tell me, however, that to their knowledge the State Scholarship Board DUES have a voting student representative.

I realize that rarely, if ever, is a single vote going to change Board policy. But that isn't really the point at all. I wonder how any of us would feel if we were worth $100 for not releasing their state status to the airwaves, according to the Student Trustee. And Greg Miller was elected as legitimately as any of his peers on the Board.

Moreover, as he is the sole representative of upwards of 20,000 students, many of them both in and out of state.

It seems to me I remember a Patrick Henry quote to the effect of "Taxation without representation is tyranny." It also seems to me that both Illinois State laws and AFTEA's constitution prohibit a Student Trustee is allowed to "vote" on the Board of Trustees is small consolation without a meaningful vote. After all, I believe the public is allowed to see these meetings anyway.

The argument can and probably will be made that only 251 students voted in the trustee election. Again, totally beside the point. Especially in light of the fact that last year's total was five times higher than the previous year. Students DO want to get involved in their future. If the college administration or the administration has advocated for years. Is this the way interest and hard work are rewarded?

I intend to begin listing all who attended last month's Board of Trustees meeting. We at the Harbinger are hoping to produce a resolution supporting voting status for Student Trustees. I realize this is a non-binding and won't change law or policy, but we want to see which of the "duly elected" Trustees are for or against it. Fact is, if we can't get them, but if we can get a relevant vote, I guarantee it will be printed. And to the Trustees: I also guarantee that a lot of the 19,000 students on campus either will vote or have parents that will vote come the next Board elections.

By DAVE PILLUSKI & TOM APPEL

Larry Paulin, our distinguished Editor-in-Chief just announced that he's planning to become well into the "six figures" range. This came as a real surprise to us, we were a little unprepared.

We're the type of guys who spend a portion of our money on cars and women. We try to avoid tangible assets, as they have a tendency of being repossessed.

Given the recent doubling of our salaries, we ought to be able to pay both our laundry and our booksie, and still have plenty of what is known as the "good life" at the disposal of income.

With our $200 hundred a week, we'll be able to foot the monthly rent to match, so that a lack of money could get us into trouble.

However, in the best interest of our readers, we will try to look on the bright side, and analyze our newly found wealth and analyze what is commonly referred to as "leisure spending."

Because for many leisure is a waste of money, as any increase in income will spark an increased interest in electronics. The wealthy party in question will immediately surround himself with the latest conveniences, then just assume most, wealthiest spenders are males; a fairly safe assumption, with all the new stereos.

Esoteric french cooking devices such as the LaMachine, end up saving its owners hours of grueling kitchen time by aiding the preparation of various dishes.

Programmable calculators have announced guests who have been invited to party with us, the theme song from "Shat". These days though, the good money is going to digital stereo equipment. The discerning new consumer will be able to tune away from his circa 1972 record changer, and begin stuffing his Tom Jones 45's into a new compact digital disc player.

There's also no denying that the real measure of a rich man's masculinity is the diagonal measurements of his T.V. screen. Of course, we, as professionals, possess the largest T.V.屏风 available.

Fishing for the wealthy is also an adventure in the world of men and women. The nice job of actually finding a good fishing spot has been alleviated by the wonders of sonar, under water cameras, and pingpong individual fish.

Certainly no real fisherman should be without one.

Tackle. (Using a term associated with the large man knocking down another large man) for the well endowed fisherman gets complicated.

Depending upon your activity, we're probably looking at a $10-15,000 "dinghy" (that's a boat), an engine (anywhere from $1000-$3000), and a solar electric trolling motor ($500).

Should the fish survive hunting just long enough to be hooked, you'd better be prepared for the taxidermist, then a "live well" ($300) is a must check on the dinghy option first.

Of course killing is a fundamental leisure pastime that is also a prime method of fund depletion, and it's perfectly legal to do it in your own back yard. Why not for a deer to come running in front of your car, when you can buy a high caliber device of death and track the success of your hunt.

Likewise a T.V. screen, the overall length and size of your weapon is a very important factor in determining your wealth and manhood. Apart from your gun, you will need a great deal of related gear. First off, attractive bright orange outerwear. One, it will cost a fortune, and two, it will prevent some hair trigger idiot from mistaking you for a moose.

Where are you going to put all this gear? How about a truck. Extra money means extra fun, and by God, let's spend it. So for the ultimate edition of the popular Bronco II. The seasonal leisure spender can easily send one of these great behemoths through the streets of grandeur.

We've only touched on the subject of leisure spending, and frankly there isn't enough room in several issues to cover what's available, but we do have several important tips:

1. If no one knows you've just spent money, then it was a waste.

Example: If you've just purchased a new Bayliner 45 foot cabin cruiser, leave it in the driveway and never use it.

How in anybody going to know it's if it's tied up at the marina?

2. If you needed something, then it wasn't a purchase.

Say you just spent $72,000 for a new Mercedes-Benz 560 SEC. If you replaced your car, then this new car was in some way a necessity. In this situation, your best bet would have been to purchase a mildly used model as a replacement.

3. Never admit you got a good deal. Admitting you got a good deal is the same as admitting money matters.

Actually, we both find all this information more than a little disturbing, and have decided to spend the bulk of this year's extra cash on a needed vacation to the Bahamas. The new sound system and CO2 beverage dispensers have just been delivered, so we have to sign off, but remember this, wealth is hell.

HEARTSTRING SPRINGS

A HEAP O' WORDS
BY PEDER SWEENEY

What happened this week on my favorite soap? Quite a bit, actually. You've seen it, it's called "Another World Turns as General Ryan's Children Guide Santa in the Restless Search for Life" (sheesh). It takes place in the small east coast town of Heartstring Springs where new events and high drama are the order of the day.

We all know the cast of characters as if they were our own family: Avery and Angelica Ambrose, the richies; Dr. Bart and Bev Brave, the world and quite possibly, the most attractive couple in the world; and, quite possibly, the most neurotic couple in the world, Anton and Heidi Bumbrah. But don't we remember seeing some interesting tension? Do we hear the occasional argument coming from the dignified, elderly couple's mouths on the hill? Is the well-preserved and polished Avery's habit of flitting around the house in her negligee still too much for the macho Anton? Or has Avery locked under Angelica's bed and found the gardener's hat, the chauffeur's glove, the chef's apron, the stableboy's bootees and (uh oh) the maid's undershirt? And what about the mysterious and accursed从 the early days of a restive Heartstring Spring?

And then there's the fascinating Dr. Bart and Bev Brave. Can it be that this successful young couple doesn't have any interesting sexual aberrations? That they don't go in heavily for premarital sex? That they don't do each other? Can it be that this pair of happily married doctors are the only normal people in the world of daytime soaps? Still, it's possible that that wouldn't explain the joyous homecoming we see entering their house in the dead of night.

There's also the lascivious Delta Blawhole, darling daughter of the mayor and twelve time divorcee who comes to town about her own personal losses behind a long trail of dismayed lovers. Among them is her current employer, Zeke Scuzz, owner of the Nipple City Bar and Grill. Zeke is a basically decent human being who is still haunted by past rape convictions. Can Zeke ever find happiness in small town surroundings?

Maybe, but not with Heidi Bumbrah. Heidi had a soft spot for the poor, lonely, and vulnerable. She had noticed that her best friend's newborn baby was in bad shape. A small voice in Heidi's head orders her to kill the child but Heidi plans to do the job a bit more thoroughly than some folks might think necessary--we see her this week taking a sharp knife to the tiny infant lying in her womb. Is it possible that Heidi will kill the child in so grisly a fashion? Of course it is! But if she does, she'll be arrested by Heartstring Spring's handosome sheriff, Miles Aquarius. Miles is an ex-military, ex-CIA agent and ex-monk who, the perceptive viewer might note, dresses and dances well beyond the means of the normal small town cop. Behind the scenes dealings with wealthy attorney and power-broker Anton Yurkov? Anton's son of course, Justin, the Weasel Wizard, the racketeer who has erected his power base with none of the townfolk, so if our elected sheriff wishes to keep his job, he should keep his distance from Anton, who is being a KGB representation?

Finally, there's young Justin, IO. Nobody seems to know what Justin's parents did to become rich enough to care. Justin heads around town, picking up women with his cute looks, cute talk and cute way of looking at older women. An appearance by Justin informs the astute viewer that writers have slow days too and there's space to be filled...

MONDAY: While traipsing about in a matching bra, panties and garter ensemble, Avery is cornered near the car wash by one of her own security dogs. With Angelica can't seem to screen out the noise of the Hecat, the Sod Specialist. Dr. Bart and Bev Brave are accused of performing multiple amputations than necessary, and the severed limbs cannot be produced as evidence. Delta Blawhole, after being questioned about the name of Nipple City to The Breast-O-Rama, Heidi attends the baby's baptism and in the final scene we see her reach into her purse where we know the deadly explosive is stashed...

TUESDAY: Avery narrowly escapes detection in his enchanting underie. Running back into the house, he is caught by one of the many members of the Manure Master, an amateur from Angelica's bushes. Dr. Bart and Bev Brave are accused of missing limbs and organs. Bev quips early "Oh Miles, what lovely eyes you have." Anton visits his son, warning him that he has been suspected, and a conniving plot is set in motion. Heidi begins to talk with the City Council and School Board to protest loosely defined insider-trading laws. Zeke thinks about changing the name of Nipple City to The Party Shanty. Heidi pulls the pin on the grenade and joins it. As mayhem breaks out all around, we see a little baby laying in his bassinet trying to suck a mouthful from the grenade.

WEDNESDAY: In the opening scene we see Miles Aquarius running into the church and running into the live grenade from the baby's lips, but not before he drops four more rounds into Heidi Bumbrah's face-draped chest. The heroic Miles, though, is badly injured when the grenade goes off. He is hospitalized and his nipple-rouge is bleeding through his white Oxford shirt. He manages to see Juan, the Weasel Wizard, smoking his favorite pipe. Outside Angelica's bedroom a line of domestic animals, people, waiters, security guards, truckers and circus performers march along the hallway, down the stairs and out into the circular drive. Delta has an affair with the police and fire departments. Reviewing a finger over the current NFL Penalty Review system, in a sexualized appearance, Sammy Davis Jr. suggests that Zeke change the name of Nipple City to The Bath Nipple-gape Rib Joynt.

THURSDAY: In a tearful scene, Anton promises not to be a naughty cosmic anymore as newfound brother Miles Aquarius dies in his arms. Avery discovers the long line of people stretching from his wife's bedroom door to the curb. They realize that a strategically placed hedge stand would never stop the public from having an affair with the men from the Department of Streets and Sanitation and the Urban Planning commission to vend free condoms over nine digit zip codes. Young Justin catches Dr. Bart and Bev Brave in the act during the morgue with a saw and a crowbar. Zeke considers changing the name of Nipple City to Butt's R Us.

FRIDAY: Stock prices of penicillin producing companies soar when word gets out that Angelica has contracted a communicable disease. Avery comes out of the closet by marching down mainstreet in a frilly lime-green dress. Samson Dawn Jr. is sworn in as Heartstring Spring's new sheriff. He is immediately in an affair with every other man on city payroll in anger over America's sexual permissiveness. Zeke considers keeping the name Nipple City. Dr. Bart and Bev Brave keep away from the morgue with them are Miles Aquarius' eyes. Heidi Bumbrah's bum brain and Justin, Sammy and Anton's eyes meet. .

Eliasik looks to veterans to lead 1987 team

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

This means coaches have only two years to work with players at the junior level. At the senior level, while many schools have four years to develop the players. But Harper coach Joe Eliasik always seems to solve this problem before it even ends, as his season record shows.

Reflecting back on Harper's team last year, Eliasik feels this year's team is better in some aspects than the 1986 team. "I feel we are physically stronger this year," said Eliasik. "The team doesn't necessarily mean better."

The 1986 squad put together an impressive 7-1 regular season consisting of a 7-0 winning season with Harper's first bowl game victory. The team fell one victory short of the regional championship.

The Hawks will have to rely on the passing skills of the starting quarterback and due to the two-time All-American Steve Kickamp moving on from sophomore John

"The quarterback situation is our biggest question mark," Eliasik said.

According to Eliasik, this year's team is pass oriented at last year's team, but the offensive line and the backfield have improved.

With the majority of the team being freshmen, Eliasik feels they may be their own worst enemy.

"We need to clean up on mistakes in order to be more successful," Eliasik said. "My greatest concern is that we don't stumble over ourselves."

Eliasik feels the team is looking for a chance for a more balanced attack." This being an area critical for many great teams. "We haven't picked the captain yet, but I'm hoping to get leadership from all the sophomores," Eliasik said.

What Eliasik wants to take care of himself, Eliasik feels confidence in the defense, a trademark of all his teams. "What we need to do is defend, which is what we need to do to win."

Eliasik states the secondary may be weak, and that may be the only defensive area needing improvement.

In order to succeed in the region, the Hawks have to get beat those teams, Eliasik said. They also have to take the mediocre seriously, which Eliasik will make sure they do.

With the program having a very solid football team, Eliasik said.

The Hawks open their season this weekend on Saturday at Rock Valley at 1:00 p.m.

Cross-Country team has freshman look about it

by Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

If one word could describe Coach Jim Theberge's Cross-Country team, it would have to be "fresh."

The 1987 team consists of one runner each from last year and five new runners.

Entering his sophomore year as coach of the Harper Hawks, Theberge, a native of All-American runner from Harper, feels there is a difference between this year's club and the 1986 team.

"We're stronger this year," he said. "I think last year had been turned around in one year."

Theberge calls highly of the group, as well he should, as all the new runners are from the highly respected Mid-Suburban League, the area division the high schools are divided into.

"We like to draw from the MSL," Theberge said. "It has two advantages; one is that it is in Harper's district and it also is one of the top three cross-country divisions in the state."

The two schools Theberge feels are in the greatest competition are the schools of DuPage and Oakton. Theberge predicts DuPage will be the winner in the region and his team will have to be better than in order to gain respect from the other colleges.

"We are going to give it our best shot," he said. "We are big things from Dave Severs."

Theberge says he is trying to accomplish what football coach John Harbaugh did.

"I want to establish a program, which is what coach Eliasik has done in the years he has been here," Theberge said. "He had recruiting problems when he first came here, but now people are beating down his door to play at Harper."

According to Theberge, his team will have to go out and get things done.

"Hopefully, a few guys on this team will be offered some scholarships after this year."

Sports writers needed to cover volleyball and tennis. If interested, come to A-367 and ask for Bill.

Harper, WHCM, Harbinger get answers in survey

By Thomas Anthony
Staff Writer

Both congratulations and conclusions are in order now that the results are in on the Harper Student Impression Study. In all, 107 currently enrolled students were surveyed, sharing their opinions on the quality of education here at Harper, as well as the appeal of individual services.

"At a school known for its ratings of academic excellence, it is difficult to get any type of feedback from the students." So instead of waiting for them (the students) to come to us, we went to them, calling on the Appeal, Harper News Editor, and conductor of the study, asking "I feel the study was successful in helping us to learn."

Using a scale of excellent, very good, average, below average and poor, the biggest surprise was that students may well have been studies impressed by the quality of education here at Harper.

A full 71.7% of the respondents rated the quality of education at Harper as excellent or above average, while only 1.9% rated it as below average or poor.

As for Harper's reputation in the community, 73.9% of those surveyed rated it as excellent or above average, while only 3.9% rated Harper's reputation as below average or poor.

On the topic of student services, most responses were slightly less enthusiastic. When rating the quality of harper's counseling services, 44.3% of the students surveyed rated it as excellent or very good, while 43.0% rated it as average and 12.6% rated counseling services as below average or poor. 22.5% of the respondents said they had never used Harper's counseling services.

Of those who have used Health Services, 40.4% rated them as excellent or above average, while 56.0% rated them as average and 3.6% of the respondents rated them at Harper as below average or poor.

On the subject of cafeteria quality, 51.1% of those surveyed said it was excellent or very good, while 39.8% said it was average.

9.0% said cafeteria quality was below average or poor. A shocking 82.3% of those surveyed felt that cafeteria prices were average or worse, only 2.3% felt it was excellent.

On the subject of Harper's two main media systems the Harbinger and WHCM, opinions were mixed.

Of those who have read the Harbinger, 58.1% felt it was excellent or above average, 29.7% felt it was average and 12.2% felt it was below average or poor.

When asked what one thing they would change about the Harbinger, the students who responded all, 21.4% of the respondents said they wanted a larger or more expansive paper size. 3.6% of those who replied asked for more humor, 1.8% asked for more news and 11.5% requested more news about students. 7.1% of those who replied requested a name change for the Harbinger.

Of Harper's campus radio station WHCM, 39.0% of the respondents rated it as excellent or above average, 32.4% rated WHCM as average, 19.0% rated it as below average. No respondents rated WHCM as poor.

When asked what one thing about WHCM they would change, of those who responded all, a majority, 60% of the respondents said they wanted another WHCM in the city played more variety; in the city played.

Suggestions included more progressive, alternative, and oldies music. One student wrote "I would like my car to have WHCM improvements. Suggestions included more volume (23.8%), and play in other buildings (7.1%).

The results of the survey produced the most interesting responses. When asked "If you could change one thing about Harper College, what would it be?" 21.4% of those who responded, 45.8% suggested either shuttle busses or something similar between the buildings and the parking lots. 20.8% of the respondents would like to see Harper start a four year program.

Two other popular responses (7.1% each) were more efficient registration and a better response for the incoming 4.2% of those who responded wanted better food in the cafeteria.

"It would be interesting to see how enrollment changes in the next few months," said AAT, hinting at the possibility of a similar study in the future. No plans have been finalized at this time.

Construction causes disabled problems, too

By Douglas Ray
Staff Writer

For the past several months construction has been laboring to make it a "safer, more attractive campus". Although the projects being done are necessary, one has to wonder where the improvements justify the inconvenience.

Frank Colabufo is one of about fifty disabled students having exceptional difficulty getting around the new dorms. His nemesis, Colabufo suffers from Cerebral Palsy and requires a wheelchair (with headrest) to get around on his own.

The sidewalks and the retaining walls for buildings A and B were improperly designed.

Harper was given 12 months to correct the damages.

These corrective measures had to be done immediately to prevent any further injuries.

Another problem concerns workers' carelessness. For example, while working on a retaining wall, a worker used the use of a very sharp power saw.

Colabufo has been attending Harper for four years studying electronics and working part time as a security guard.

Through the use of a power saw and F and F they blocked the only north entrance to building F for no particular reason.

DeBiase, physical plant director described the construction workers as "bullets in a china shop".

Although the retaining walls are not expected to be finished by the end of the semester, Colabufo has been working on the entrance to building F to I building where he works.

During the summer only one entrance to building A was open for the handicapped, and during the first week of the fall semester there was a similar problem with F building.

Now it takes Colabufo about ten minutes just to get from D building to I building where he works.

Memorials have been established at the Lutheran Church of the Cross in Arlington Heights in honor of Kenneth Harper College electronics technology associate professor Kenneth Jauch.

Jauch, who had taught at Harper for 19 years, died suddenly on May 21st, when his private aircraft crashed in Dixon, Illinois.

Jauch was a veteran of the Korean Conflict. He graduated from the Illinois Institute of Technology with a B.B.E.E. and the University of Dayton with an M.S. in engineering.

He worked for more than 10 years in industry as a design engineer before arriving at Harper College in 1968, on the capacity of Assistant Professor in the Technology, Math and Physics Science Department. In 1974, he was promoted to Associate Professor.

In 1980-1981 Jauch was the recipient of a Fulbright Fellowship to teach at the Kyungpook National University, Taegu, South Korea. Jauch joined Harper College as one of the few community college professors to achieve that distinction. He is the only college professor at Harper to receive the Fulbright Fellowship.

Over the years, Jauch participated in many seminars including "Microcomputers as Laboratory Tools", "Advanced Microcomputer Interfacing", and

by Kim Ostrowski

Quickly, what would someone do if they had been bitten since sunrise yesterday?

Unless that person had their own medical knowledge, they could and should go to Health Services office in A-Bridge, room 362, around the corner from the Financial Aid office and directly adjacent to the Student Development office.

Health Service at Harper's free, confidential and staffed by the courteous and accessible Romeo M. Mazzolini, Sandy Saitter, Marie LeClair and Jerry Polanszak. Doctors are available every Monday through Friday on a rotating basis (see hours below).

Dr. Charles Royzman, on duty the Wednesday that I visited the office, carried his M.D. at Alexander Hospital, UIC and specialists in external medicine. Having to spend a majority of his time with older patients at Alexander Hospital, Harper Grove, and his private practice, Dr. Royzman enjoys the change of working with Harper students because of their varied interests and ages.

According to Dr. Royzman, the majority of cases he treats and/or discusses at Harper concern the common colds and an occasional V.D.

"Two years ago, just prior to my arrival here, there was one A.I.R. (Automated External Defibrillator) unit, but other than that there have been no real emergencies," says Dr. Royzman. He adds, "I think if an emergency were to happen, we would pre-prepare, call the paramedics and transport the person to Northwest Community Hospital."

Romeo Mazzolini, 10-year supervisor of Health Services, started working as a part-timer in 1970 under the present Dean of Special Programmed Services, Mr. Michael. Ms. Mazzolini has her R.N. from St. Elizabeth's and her Bachelor of Science degree from Barat College, in Lake Forest.

She enjoys the interaction with students and the variety of cases, ranging from the flu and head colds to more serious problems and advice on birth control, saying, "We (Health Services) don't actually dispense prescription medicine, but can give helpful guidelines and over-the-counter medicines."

She adds, "We would definitely want the student to know that we are here to help them Mon.-Thurs. 8:00 to 10:00 p.m., Fri. 8:00 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and Sat. 9:00 a.m. to 1:00 p.m., and that every visit is free and confidential."

Upon entering the Health Services office with an ailment, one will first have to check-in with Mrs. Polanszak, who is here and liaison for the office. As accrency for the past three years, Mrs. Polanszak "really enjoys helping people," as evident in her cheerful greeting and ready-to-help attitude.

Polanszak will make an appointment with a doctor for a person if the ailment does not require immediate attention, or will refer you to a nurse.

She also answers questions, suggests doctors for treatment, provides information on various sources and issues medical parking permits.

Medical parking permits are issued on an individual basis, on need, and as directed by the Health Services office. Mrs. Polanszak, "The office is very friendly," she further commented.

The officer picked up only one gray Pit Bull this summer in the Chicago area, and noted,

"The dog licked my hand and wagged its tail."

"They're a powerfully-set dog, stocky, but not inherently vicious," she says.

At maturity, Polanszak also has heard of the importance of the mailing of insurance information packets.

At present the names of all full-time students will be provided to them from the computer and printed on Health Services' Polanszak must mail an insurance pamphlet to each full-time student, a task she describes as "tasking."

These insurance plans (2 range from as low as $81.00 per year to $122.00 per year) are good for one year.

Part-time students can apply for the plans by stops at the Health Services office and asking for the 1987-88 "Student Accident and Sickness Insurance Plan."

Athletes must be verified by the Health Services Office before qualifying for athletic insurance plans. These plans are mailed to volunteer parents and are ONLY intended for the times the athletes are practicing and/or playing.

The other vital personnel in the office are the nurses, namely by Mrs. Saitter and Marie LeClair. Ms. LeClair takes the night shift, from 4:00 to 10:00 p.m. and Ms. Saitter takes the day shift.

A Registered Nurse, Saitter is, by title, a college nurse, with her bachelor degree in nursing science from Loyola University. She and the nurses and receptionists as they enter the office. For the past five years Saitter has also counseled on wellness, health education and nutrition.

Saitter describes Health Services as "like an outpatient clinic," adding, "So many students are 'locked into' their studies it's important that they should really take advantage of the services offered (at Harper)."

As their brochure states, "The office is staffed and committed to promoting total health and well-being." Some of the various testing services they offer include blood pressure, hemoglobin, mononucleosis, pregnancy, skin tests for T.B. (tuberculosis), throat cultures for strep, uric acid and vision and hearing screening.

The staff of Health Services is professional, well-informed, courteous and understanding. Remember, Health Services is FREE and CONFIDENTIAL!!

Pit Bulls - A local problem?

No one on the Harper campus thus far has reported having been attacked by a dog, let alone by a Pit Bull, according to the Health Service office in A-Bridge.

Interestingly, even the Cook County office of the Illinois Department of Public Health, Division of Disease Control, Palatine Heights (IDPH) in Palatine reported no vicious dog attacks in the recent past.

He believed in the "eclectic approach to teaching," said George Dorner, Dean of Technology, Mathematics and Physical Sciences Division. "He often asked rhetorical and misleading questions in class to keep people awake and to keep people thinking."

He was also active in campus activities such as the pig roast and electronics department booth, of which he helped organize.

Talk is cheap - Build where needed

With all the clamor about the construction, its cost and inconvenience weighed against its ultimate benefits, two factors set in motion last year begin to loom much more important for this year's effect.

In the spring semester of last year, a proposal was put before the Board of Trustees to build a new Theatre/Liberal Arts building. This motion was, in the grand style of bureaucratic politics everywhere, discussed, postponed, and discussed again.

Why, you may well ask, would we need a new Theatre building, when we already have one? First of all, we don't have one. J Building was built as a lecture hall. The success of Harper's Theatre in past years (both aesthetic and financial) has been due almost wholly to the direction of Alan Zmed, Willis, John Muchmore, and the scenic wizardry of Michael Brown. There is no set shop, no prop storage, no real classrooms for acting.

The second, and more important reason concerns the library. The library is at saturation point. For every book the library acquires, one book has to go. For any library, that situation would be a shame. For a college library, it's a crime. The new building would be set up to house the offices and classrooms now on the lower floors of the library building, thus freeing an entire floor to be used as it was intended. What a concept!

The other factor initiated last semester, was the renovation of the "Dining Hall". While the Trustees were debating whether Harper has enough money to begin construction on the new building, they spent over $100,000 on renovating the cafeteria. That included new lights and carpeting as well as new tables and chairs. I've been going to school here for two years, and I can just see me, but I've never had trouble seeing food.

And carpeting? Just the notion of what that carpet will look like by next semester is enough to put me off my lunch. I realize the "ambiance" is improved to the point where faculty, administration, and guests can more readily eat in the cafeteria, but I always thought the faculty dining room (already carpeted) was supposed to serve that purpose.

This November four vacancies will be filled by election on the Board of Trustees. Due to President McGrath's resignation at the end of the year, as well as the new building project, this next election will be critical to Harper's future. Find out about the candidates; vote - or make sure your parents do. It could affect your children's education as well as yours.

R.E.M.: A "Document" worth having

R.E.M. "Document"

REVIEW

Much like the band and going have been at it again. One of the fastest recording bands around today, R.E.M., has released its new album, which is a collection of B-sides and out-takes called, "Dead Letter Office," released less than five months ago and their last "real" album, "Lifes Rich Pages" (1986).

The band members, including Bill Berry, Peter Buck, Mike Mills, and Stipe, have been on radio promo blitzing in the last few weeks, and perhaps it will signify the beginning of a wider range of exposure, except in addition to the steady lavish critical acclaim.

First of all, for you R.E.M. fans already out there, my personal favorite of theirs is "Tables of the Reconstruction" (1985), even after listening to "Document" sixteen times in the last three days.

"Document" is a very solid offering, differing from the sense of humor and very personal workmanship of the band. Some of the tracks here are the best they've ever served up.

"End of the World As We Know It (And I Feel Fine)" are superb, as is the opening cut, "It's Too Late." The title song, the trademark ruminating of Stipe (but proving more intelligible every album) and the distinctive overplayings (not in this case) of "Come Get These Hands Here" where Stipe sings the title line while another band member sings "I'll get there, I know the way" are both excellent.

Before I moved back, I anticipated going downtown with friends, seeing the sights, and getting a bigger piece of the Chicago action.

The only regret one can have about the band involve their suddenly low popularity. No matter how much critics rave about R.E.M., the record buying

I am continually looking for what else, entertainment for my bored audience. This "document" inspired me to create a column for my more diverse readers.

It's somewhat of a challenge. A challenge to go where no audience has gone before. A challenge to earn your weekend experience beyond Pith theaters.

I moved back to the suburbs of Chicago just a year ago after attending High School in Elavon, Wisconsin (a few minutes from Lake Geneva) of which we all would know the place. My point being that I have been within an hour and a half's distance of downtown for a year now.

Before I moved back, I anticipated going downtown with friends, seeing the sights, and getting a bigger piece of the Chicago action.

What I found in the move to Schaumburg was this: Most of the "chode-heads" and I have seen most of downtown Chicago than the other 99 percent.

If you have lived in suburbs and have still indulged in the abundance of culture and activity of the city, you are a minority. You, we, do not do well. The harsh reality though, is that your neighbors think you are eccentric.

At this point I would like to clear up any preconceived notions you may have of this column in general. Some of you may wonder where this idea came from my use of that dirty word "culture". Most of the time we tend to associate this word with the fine arts.

But the cultural event must be the Ballet, classical music, or opera right? Wrong. Here's a good Webster definition: culture (noun): "the level of development or stage of civilization. A pretty vague explanation--but we're going to have fun with this column! I at least narrow it down to entertainment. Some of the things that could count as entertainment may not be--but this is a tad bizarre--this is a tiny column. This leads me to my next point:

What I am doing is not objective as I am with this column. The subject matter may vary frequently. "Heavy Metal for USA to 1," "Newspaper Columnists," "Kleenex," I also welcome any suggestions from you. If there is one facet of entertainment (besides music) in which you feel we'd like more coverage, please let me know.

There is no event covered that week, but if you would like to give us a week's notice of preparation for your upcoming voyage into the world beyond Woodfield.

Arsenic and Old Lace

Harper's own "Pool Hall"

By Ann Theriot
Staff Writer

Sitting in the main area of A Ms., one can almost always hear the fast flicking of pool balls behind the steady hum of conversation and music.

The game room, containing two pool tables that date back to 1969, is a popular hangout where one can spend any free time they may have between classes. The cost is $1.50 per hour per person. Most of the money made goes into the equipment, maintenance, and upkeep.

Rates are adjusted according to the number of players and amount of time played. Director of student activities Jeanne Pankinian, said that the rates are adjusted to just break even.

Part of the money is used to pay the 5-8 student aides who work each semester, handing out cue sticks and keeping track of time.

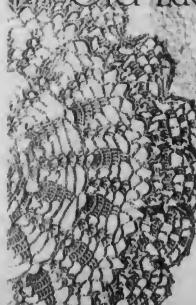

Some is used for equipment and maintenance. For example, last year the tables were all recovered with fine quality cloth, costing $120 per table. Although the tables are in large enough numbers to not enough to pay for the project, Pankinian did not mind spending the money.

She feels that because of last years popular movie, "The Color of Money", the tables saw more aspiring Tom Cruises and Paul Newman's practicing fancy trick shots, which caused extra wear and tear.

After covering the usual expenses, profits, if any, go to the room. Pankinian hopes to add atmosphere to the area by purchasing a chalk machine and different types of chalk.

Although Student Activities does not profit much monetarily from the pool tables, students do. They say they are spending is used consistently to keep the place where they can forget about school for a while to relax and enjoy themselves.

Long hours on Wisconsin roads had turned my brain to pocket lint and my eyes were about to call it a game when I spotted Beau Monde.

BEAU MONDE
Pop 271

My choices were limited: stop in Beau Monde for a rest or not stop behind the wheel and make the return trip in two-handed sandwich bags.

I decided that stopping in Beau Monde, like chewing gum, was less choice of two options and consulted myself with the theory that spending an hour or so with the town's best and brightest might prove culturally enriching. I wheeled into a dimpled space in the middle Inn and stumbled.

I gave my eyes a moment to adjust and better I had to variations on a theme. I considered sliding up to the bar, but opted to walk instead.

"Whaddya ya want?" demanded a cowering human.

"Oink," I replied. I inquired,

"What's the hell is there?"

"Never mind," I replied. "I'll have a Wild Turkey next; should sterilize the glassware."

I豪情地饮了我的酒并帮助我吃我的肉。

"Nice town you have here," I remarked.

"We like it," he replied, displaying that gift for sippy repartee generally attributed to the lower mollusks.

I motioned in a hand-panted poster on the wall: "Billy the Midget and the Elfstones! Are they playing here tonight?"

He tightened up a bit at this. "Not orn'arily, but I could call 'em up if you like."

"No, no, don't trouble yourself."

"It's no trouble! Phone's right here!"

"And you know how to work it?"

"Sure do." He growled broadly and proffered a beefy mutt. "My name's Mike."

I shook his hand, then studied my own. "I guess Beau Monde hasn't been swept up in this bashing craze yet."

"Nope," laughed Mike. "You guess not!" He was "My name is Peder," I informed him with muggings that soon panned out.

"No crap!!" Mike boomed. He called out to the only other person present, who was working the pool table. "Hey, Pete! Come over here!"

Pete gave me the old waddle. He was

"You'll never guess what this guy's name is!" spat Mike, but Pete didn't seem very interested in trying.

"Really?" Pete looked to me for confirmation of this diminutive.

"I'm a pilot," I said. "Rather than documenting the difference in spelling or pronouncing my disdain that diminutive, I give the name..."

"Wow!" Pete continued cruelly. "Ain't that sommin'?" Hey! What's yer last name? Maybe we're related?"

The collective shriek of ten-thousand ancestors exploded through the corridors of my brain. Sirens a distant and blurred abstraction as every fiber of my being voiced a single word:

"Mike, I'm gonna kill you," I said.

"Whoa, whoa, whoa," that would be something out you know how to say?"

"Yep, meow! Hyuck hyuck," said Pete. "Say, you know how to say poop?"

I replied that he had indeed penetrated the subtle mysteries of the billiard table and proceeded to swell Pete's cheeks in three fast games.

"Been playing long?" I asked Pete as I resumed my stool.

"Hyuck! I was born with a pool stick in my hand," replied Pete, showing no remorse for the grotesque agony this must have caused his mother.

And as I hopped in, I did and continued my journey. After the memory could no longer fit in my brain I reminded myself that if I hadn't enjoyed to stop in Beau Monde it was my own fault for driving through instead of flying over—that the people of Beau Monde had the same attitude in this world as me; to be born and to die and to fit the mold of the world with the old L. I. and P. of it as best they could. They were made for my amusement, I told myself, but people like me never seem to believe that.

And so the little town of Beau Monde remained behind me into the night. These people would probably never care cancer or ease world hunger, but they'd never let you know the joint up either. Maybe I had attained cult status for a time for my time there and maybe not, but one thing was certain: I was getting out with a helluva lot more than that deer did.

In addition, Rolling Meadows

Policing officer Jurs, president of Illinois Association of Animal Assessors (JACA), reports there has been no vicious dog attack in that community in the recent past.

Officer Jurs and JACA will be sponsoring a seminar on vicious animals and legislation for attacks on September 16th at Chicago and Southwesten Avenues. The seminar is open to one hundred people who reserve seats prior to the 16th. (Call 255-2416 for reservations.)

When asked if Rolling Meadow police had any legislation pertinent to the attacks by Pit Bulls and/or other breeds, Jurs replied "no." He did say that Pr. Jurs' office has outlawed Pit Bulls. However, his office fails to confine the dogs after sixty days.

As president of JACA, Jurs does not believe such legislation "is the answer." Jurs also mentions House Bill 2804 which would ban vicious dogs, as legislation that may lead to inconclusive results.

Officer Jurs emphatically agrees with government "People wear and breed dogs, such as Pit Bulls, to be vicious." He also believes that the media has presented many stories as "true" although reports to create public furor and to hype their stories.

Jurs further notes, "The reason Pit Bulls have been bred out is because of the 'clasp and shake' type of bite. This bite is serious; it's a great deal similar to that of a shark."

Telling the public about dogs is the only way to change peoples' prejudiced behavior," concluded Jurs.

Officer Jurs extends an offer to anyone who would accept the invitation to come to the Rolling Meadows police station and view videotapes concerning vicious dogs, Pit Bulls, news clippings, etc.

Hawks down R.V. 58-0 in opener.

Martin, Jackson rush over 100 yards

by BILL KUGELBERG
Sports Editor

Harper's freshman quarterback, Jeff Wright from Hoffman Estates, had the feeling of his fate as the starting quarterback in his own hands. And the way he responded last Saturday afternoon probably meant he did the job secured of Mike Dicks.

Snyder thought for a moment to let the Hawks to a 37-0 halftime lead and a 58-0 victory over Rock Valley.

The Hawks downed Rock

Valley 58-0.

So bad did he feel, the Hawks' rushing team of Drake Jackson (160 yards), Dan Martin (108 yards), and Todd Testo (93 yards) also compiled impressive statistics.

"Not bad for his first college game," said Eliask. Eliask and about Snyder's Snyder left the game after the first half in order to allow the other quarterbacks to get some playing time.

Snyder, who had the Hawks' scoring early in the first quarter with a 5-yard pass to Jeff Wright and on the Hawks' next possession Snyder his freshman Steve Ambrose for a 51-yard touchdown play.

Wright's second year kicker Tim Will hit a 24-yard field goal early in the second quarter to give the Hawks a 17-0 lead.

Sophomore Dan Martin would then score on the Hawks' next possession from the 5-yard line to up the score to 23-0 on the missed extra point attempt by

Will. Will would go on to finish the day with 6 of 7 extra points and a field goal.

With the game remaining in the first half, freshman Angelo Brown would go into the end zone from the 2-yard line to give the Hawks the lead 30-0.

Testo, who had been running from the first half, scoring by scoring from the 1-yard line to give the Hawks the demanding Intra-Hawks lead of 37-0.

The Hawks were silent the third quarter, but broke loose for 21 points in the fourth quarter on a 10-yard run by Martin and Testo and a 9-yard pass from freshman Jeff Hively to Wright for the final score of 58-0.

With the score of 58-0, Eliask still saw room for improvement on his victorious Hawks.

"I'm upset with the quantity of mistakes," Eliask said. "We had better get the bugs out by the time we play Moraine Valley on Saturday."

Eliask witnessed his Hawks get penalized for 110 yards and fumble the ball 3 times while only one was recovered.

The Hawks will try to continue in their winning ways this Saturday at 1 pm against visiting Moraine Valley at Harper's football field.

Volleyball gets underway, Coach Randall looks toward respectability, team unity, and program establishment

by BILL KUGELBERG
Sports Editor

Seasons at first year seem difficult enough for some people, but Harper's new volleyball coach, Audrey Randall, has had the task of not only starting the program. The Hawks were forced to forfeit last year's season due to a lack of student interest.

The following is a short report story as the Hawks tune-up for their first match against Thornton on September 12.

"We have a team last year has its advantages and disadvantages," Randall said.

"There are no returning sophomores, but the people who were play last year are excited about the upcoming season."

The Hawks' volleyball team consists of: freshman Connie

Angel from Schaumburg High

School, freshman Shelley Bean from Elk Grove H.S., sophomore Carla Bender from Cedar Rapids, sophomore Heather Hause from Hoffman Estates H.S., sophomore Joanna Jessup from Fremd H.S., sophomore Jill Frazee from Johnson, freshman Tammy Lee from Bensenville Baptist H.S., sophomore Adelaida Martinez from Sacred Heart Prep, sophomore Kristin Hoffmann from Fremd H.S., freshman Janice Word from Hoffman Estates H.S., and Karen Bender from Glenbrook North.

These three main goals are to have a team, be respectable, and build a program," Randall said.

While two of those goals have already been achieved,

Randall will have to wait until the season gets underway to decide on the team's respectability.

Randall is happy with the way the team has been working and has high hopes for them. "The girls are working extremely hard," she said.

"Coming into the season I think we have potential."

Randall cites the Thornton Bulldogs as the team she thinks will be the best in the conference.

And with the team starting the season against the Bulldogs, there will be an early test for the Hawks.

"I'm expecting us to be very good," Randall said. "But with the kids' effort, we can have a great program regardless of our win-loss record."

Sports writers needed to cover volleyball and tennis. If interested, come to A-367 and ask for Bill.

Harper Enrollment Up 2%

Full Time Students Make up only a Third of Student Body

By Ann Thornton

College administrator use enrollment figures to study trends and tendencies which may call for changes in programs and curriculum.

Many area junior colleges do not yet have enrollment reports available, including College of DuPage, Triton and Elgin Community College.

Oakton Community College was able to release information based on the end of early registration, which was August 29. Harper provided the most accurate numbers.

As of September 1, the number of students at Harper is 18,934 enrolled in 109,416 total credit hours, according to the registrar's office. Compared with last fall's 18,694 students tackling 107,435 credit hours.

This year's enrollment demonstrates a slightly less than 2% increase.

In 1984, the total number of students was 19,061, and in 1984 the number was 18,871.

The fall, 57% of all students are female, while only 43% are male. Ethnic distribution is even more unequal. Hispanics make up 2.7% of the school's total population, blacks - 1%, American Indians - .1%, Asian - 3.3%, and caucasian - 92.9%.

There are 14 international studies students here on visa, 15 students who live out of state and 1,601 who live out of district. Of the total number of students at Harper, 6,500 have had previous college credit.

As of August 29, Oakton Community College had 8,864 students in with was approximately a 3.8% increase from one year previous.

At Harper, the average age of a student is 31. This is slightly higher than previous years. This is also true of Oglethorpe Community College. Bob Lawler of enrollment services at Oglethorpe said this increase is due to an increase in the adult population which has, in turn, lowered the number of traditional college age students.

Another factor that influences enrollment trends is the economy.

The number of full timers at Harper is only 4,208 compared with the 14,756 people who are taking less than 12 credit hours.

John Carlson, the Dean of Admissions, and Barbara Atwater attributes this to a stronger job market that is enabling people to work more than one job, which makes college a lower priority.

Also the number of total credit hours is down 18% from all time high in 1983, when financial aid was more readily available. Carlson said that these relationships between the economy and the enrollment always exist.

Walk-out Ends/ Construction Resumes

By Ann Thornton

Construction results finally became visible on Monday. Eight concrete steps between building C and D, and several other walkways were completed on the current renovation project.

Construction was delayed until late last week when questions arose as to whether the concrete subcontractors, Area Construction Company, were paying their workers union prevailing wage.

W. G. O. M. Inc., the general contractor, is under contract with the state Capital Development Board, and hired Area Construction Company to handle all concrete related work around campus.

Because Area Construction is family owned, employees are not required to join the union.

However, their employees are doing a union job and delayed work last week to question their pay situation rather than conduct a strike.

In a show of support, the engineer's union, which includes the roofer and excavator, refused to cross the picket line.

Area Construction Company, as well as W. G. O. M. Inc., the general contractor, are under contract with the state Capital Development Board, and hired Area Construction Company to handle all concrete related work around campus.

Manke has assumed the role of liaison between the state, the contractors, and the subcontractors in order to expedite a resolution and have all workers resume construction.

As of Tuesday, both the contractor workers and members of the engineer's union reported back to work.

Student Activities: Club Day Successful

By Tom Appel

This past Tuesday marked the happening of what is becoming to be annual fall event. Club day. In the words of student Activities Coordinators Alice Jorgenson was "Very successful."

About 20 different clubs set up manned tables in the commons area on the second floor in A Building in an effort to raise the interest of potential new members.

Between 9am and 12pm students were free to peruse the tables and inquire as to the nature of particular organizations.

According to Jorgenson "This is not the only recurring period of the year, but an early attempt to familiarize students with what is available to them on campus."

Jorgenson continued by saying "Career clubs are more important than ever first." So many students just come to class and then just leave. Clubs are the ones available here at Harper that provide a place for a student start a new club or develop an enough interest" says Jorgenson.

To assist in the forming of a new club, Jorgenson has been applying to the school to have the club $100 to be used as it's members see fit, the use of the college van, use of the student center, and help with club activities, as well as a place to meet and the ability to petition for a further $250 for club excursions.

For existing or new club info, please contact Alice Jorgenson at Ext. 2242.

Fall elections - If you're not part of the solution, you're part of the problem.

Yet, it's that time of year again. For those of you who haven't been at Harper in the early fall before, let me explain in two words: Senate Elections.

This means that for the next couple of weeks you will be inundated with Senate-Mafia. Mostly your eyes will be among these pointers. Probably hundreds of them. You will see interviews with the candidates in your favorite college newspaper (it's nice to have a monopoly on favorite college newspapers at Harper), and you will generally be sick of seeing election-related items about you until just about this time next year.

However, what this is designed to do is, in political and advertising rhetoric, called name-recognition. Not only for individual candidates, but for the election itself.

What really does make an impact. Last year, only several hundred people voted. This year YOUR VOTE carries that much more weight than, say, a mere 500 people decide vote. The Senate here votes on several important issues, the biggest one of which is the allocation of funds for EVERY student organization on campus. So if you get involved in anything at all on campus in the next year, the Student Senate will have an effect on your organization.

Last year, the total student vote was three times higher than the previous year. The Harbinger devoted twice the coverage and editorials to the election the previous year. Not even I am pompous enough to claim the Harbinger is solely responsible for that, but I am justifiably proud of the job that we did along with Student Activities, WHCMC, and other student organizations to encourage the vote (catchy phrase, huh?).

We at the Harbinger receive letters and phone calls complaining about this and that and, of course, why don't we write an expose and get something change. Here's your chance to do something about it. Find out about your candidates and VOTE.

BIZARRE CONCEPTS

with Dave Piluski and Tom Appel

There are approximately 500,000 words in the English language; the average person makes frequent use of roughly 50,000 of these. We individuals use lots of words. We've found that words fall into distinct categories. Noting the potential for certain words to be labeled beyond their obvious grammatical requisites, we took the liberty of assembling a few words here.

Bad words to find on a menu:

- Salve

Bad words to use on a resume:

Glass Houses by Billy Joel Columbia, 1980

by Tom Appel
News Editor
Remembered Times? How could you not remember when in retrospect became the single most frightening event in America's somewhat jaded musical history.

Nothing really mattered beside the steady thumping beat that helped polyester clad "Welcome Back Kotter" fans know when to step. Disco was scary.

It is my contention that Billy Joel's single greatest distinction since his album Glass Houses. All right, maybe not single handedly, but Joel certainly helped put the "Travolta-Dance" era bid.

In what is easily the most rock-oriented album ever released by this artist, Joel returns to the very roots of rock & roll.

Opening side one with "You may be right" Joel begins driving hard with solid feud guitar and intelligent, if less than totally serious lyrics. This song opening bears a striking resemblance to one of rock's greatest rocker tunes, "Day Tripper" by the Beatles.

Following the first song is "Sometimes a Fantasy", this author's favorite song on the album. Another rocker to be sure, slightly more refined in execution than the first song on this side, and lesser personnel.

Of course this album is chock-full of assured Joel requisites, including some confessional non-rock material work ("Don't panic me Mr. Wilson") and some great driving piano ("All for Leyna").

Side two holds the volume down a bit, while pushing up the lyrical value, the even tempo. "Slow Down" with the "Teleman" on it is a good example.

How Much? I've seen this one go for $5.99, certainly a bargain for the album that save music's integrity.

"Colored Museum" Comes to Chicago

by Robby Davis
Entertainment Editor

I realize your anticipation of this week's "Culture Quest" has rivaled Chicagoans' desire to lock, relax and road on. The waiting is over. Due to a lack of both time and space I can only cover a couple of shows per week.

It is a bit frustrating because there is so much going on. I suppose that's why the Sun-Times includes the "weekend plus" in each Friday's paper. Anything may have to wait on an emergency news score--see the Sun-Times on Friday, okay?

For all who enjoy the theater scene or if you are like me and would like to enjoy it, here is a show that sounds too neat to pass up. It may be worth breaking off my HBO engagement for.

THE COLORED MUSEUM, Victory Gardens Theater opens Sept. 18 at 7:30 p.m. Directed by THE COLORED MUSEUM by George C. Wolfe, music by Kyria Bostic. Andre De Shields, nationally recognized thespian, returns to Chicago to direct and choreograph the Chicago premiere. THE COLORED MUSEUM opens Sept. 24 at 7:30 p.m. and runs through November 1 at Victory Gardens

Theater, 2257 N. Lincoln Avenue, in Chicago.

The play is a satire threaded with misadventures, songs and dance. It is presented as a series of exhibitions in a cultural museum which challenge us to examine our preconceptions of black culture.

THE COLORED MUSEUM previews September 18-Sept. 23 at 8 p.m. ($11), opens September 24 at 7:30 p.m. and runs through November 1 at 8 p.m. ($11). Ticket prices are as follows:

Tickets went on sale Sept. 1. Call the box office at 312/2871-3000 tickets and more information.

Although I previously stated that country music news would be covered I will make the exception for country/pop artist Steve Earle. He will be performing at the Chicago Cultural Center, in building M at 8 p.m. this Friday. Tickets are $6 for students and $8 for the public.

My time and space has run out. I have much more to tell you that also have time and space limitations in your schedules. Forget about the fact that your laundry is piling up along with your homework and just go and enjoy.

JC tends bar in Carrib

In Heaven He reigns, but on Earth He pours

By St. Christopher Travel Editor

When the people of earth want to spend a week frolicing in the sand and surf, they head for the sunny Caribbean Islands.

And when they work up a big thirst from all that frolicing, they head for the Happy Trolley Waterside Cafe where cocktail whiz and Son of Man Jesus H. Christ is only too happy to serve up a lip-smacking equatorial delight.

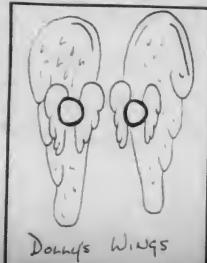

Two umbrellas, hold the fruit? Double rum and light on the juice? No problem! Jesus serves 'em up your way, and like any good bar man He's always ready to lend an ear or phone a cab, whatever your needs may be.

"My Peach Daiquiri is more popular than John Lennon!" jokes a jovial Jesus. "Actually, I'm incognito, man." He explains when asked why the masses don't flock to Him. "I'm just servin' up the drinks by day and jammin' with the band by night. I play the bongos you know."

"The carpentry gig was bringin' me down, man. Everything I made wobbled," says our Savior. "But I enjoy bartending quite a bit. People come in and taste my drinks and they say 'Oh, that's divine!' or 'Oh, that's heavenly!' and they don't know how right they are!" quips Christ who, good barman that He is, is quick with the humorous anecdote. "Aw, I got a million of 'em," He says.

Gen. Op.s Director gives State of It All Address

By Peder Sweeney

Creation's General Operations Director (G.O.D.), informally known as Bill, today delivered His millennial State of It All Address. As if to remind the residents of Heaven that His is not an elected position, Bill trimmed the speech, which in the past has taken as long as seventeen years to give, down to a simple "It's all okay."

He then opened the floor to questions.

For several uneventful hours, Bill fielded questions on some of the more mundane topics of the day: a new foosball table for the rec room; the currently existing ban against Adidas Halos; the possible introduction to Heaven, on a trial basis, of a splash of color, any color, anywhere, and so forth.

At one point, during one of the rambling operations for which He is known, Bill announced His intention to "keep up with the Pope image-wise" by constructing a fleet of GODmobiles. Bill added His belief that omnipotence and omniscience would aid Him greatly in both design and production stages.

Things livened up a bit when reporter Sam Clemens, a first-timer from the Heaven Times (aka Mark Twain, a favorite author of Special Earth Envoy Clarence Goodbody ASI), tried to make a name for himself by confronting Bill on such glaring design flaws as the Galapagos Archipelago, the duckbill platypus and Suzanne Somers. Bill handled Mr. Clemens-as He does all upstart whelps-by condemning him to four hours of only begotten Son Jesus' allegedly soulful bongo music (see related story).

-Walt Disney

"The date's not firm yet," Disney goes on to say, "we've had to postpone several times; once because the printer made all the 666 stamps upside down, then we had it all set again for a couple years ago, but the Bears were doing so well...you know?"

Running game strikes again as Harper c(rushes) Moraine Valley, 38-8

by Bill Kepplberg

Sports Editor

The Harper Hawks unleashed their running trio of running backs for the first time in a road game last Saturday and the results could be understandably described as spectacular.

Draake Jackson (140 yards on 17 carries), Dan Martin (115 yards on 24 carries), and Todd Testo (9 carries for 79 yards and a TD) combined with the rest of the 18-man offense to gain 409 yards and break last week's game-high Harper rushing record of 409 yards, while leading the Hawks to a 38-8 victory over visiting Moraine Valley.

The win put the Hawks at 2-0, while the Marauders dropped to 0-2.

Preseason quarterback Al Snyder (12 attempts on 6 completions for 65 TD's) scored two rushing touchdowns in the second half to ice the Hawk victory.

The Hawks opened the scoring just before the second half started with a 28-yard pass from Snyder to Robert Hardin for a 7-0 Hawk lead.

Martin recorded the lone score for the Hawks in the second half with a 17-yard run for a 14-0 Hawk half-time lead.

Halfway through the third quarter, the Marauders scored on a 10-yard pass from Snyder to conversion to cut the Harper lead to 14-8, the first points the Hawks have given up all year.

Hawks went on to score three more touchdowns in a 37-second period to end with a 37-yard field goal by reliable kicker Tom Witt.

The Hawks also improved on the punting department as they were only cited on 5 penalties for 40 yards and committing only one turnover.

The Hawks have outscored opponents 96-8 in the past two games and the offense isn't the only reason the Hawk team is to thank for it.

The defense has performed to mid-season form incredibly allowing only 8 points and 312 total yards in two games.

The Hawks will face Triton this Saturday in what is expected to be a great match between two of the three undefeated teams in the Illinois Junior College Conference.

Joliet, the Marauders' next matchup after this week, is the other undefeated team.

In the most recent Junior College Athletic Association poll, the Hawks are ranked eighth in the nation and the Trojans are at the number five spot in the nation.

The Hawks will meet the Trojans at 1 pm this Saturday to be played at Harper.

Volleyball team optimistic toward future after loss to visiting Thornton

By Laura Leontos
Staff writer

High marks for teamwork and hustle didn't quite make the grade as the Harper Hawks were defeated by the Thornton

Bulldogs 15-6, 15-11, 15-2.

The strongest play occurred during the first game," said volleyball coach Audrey Randall.

"The girls set up good attacks, and the setters played exceptionally well."

"We are a relatively new team and many of the girls have never played volleyball before, but I feel that once we get loosened up and get used to working together, the results will be spectacular."

Last Saturday, the team participated in a round-robin tournament, hosted by Oakton Community College. Harper had another tough day there, but the girls and team remain optimistic.

Jill Jurek's and Janice

Ward's defensive action, coupled with Debbie Howlett's serving, locked promises, and the girls maintain that credit should be given to the entire team. "We're not looking at the win-loss record in the second half of the season," said Coach Randall.

"Until then we will be working on improving the defenses and gaining team unity."

With the positive attitude and talent that the girls have already shown, it looks like the 1987 Hawks have what it takes to fulfill those goals.

Sports writers needed to cover tennis and cross country. Possible promotions if qualified. If interested drop by A-367 and ask for Bill.

Profiles of candidates

Student Senate campaigns under way

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Student election will be held Monday and Tuesday September 28 and 29 between 7 AM and 9 PM. Staffed by two faculty members, it will be held in the building at the Information Desk D building at the Knuckle, J building at the Media Desk, and building at the Business Office.

The ballot boxes will be staffed by two faculty members and a member from the election committee, which consists of four students appointed by Greg Miller, Student Trustee. "There is an option, so I hope the election results will be outstanding," said Jeannie Kamani, Director Students Activities, but realistically she does not expect many people to make the digits for the overall turnout.

There are eleven offices in the Student Senate. There is one office for each of the following divisions: Business and Social Science; Liberal Arts; Life Science and Human Services; Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation; Special Programs and Services; and Technology, Mathematics, and Physical Sciences.

There are three offices for representatives of the Clubs and Organizations Council. There will be one representative for the Counselor Association and one representative for the Student Trustees for the Student Senate, which is elected the April prior to Student Senate elections.

This year there are four candidates running for four of the six different positions. After the six Student Senate Divisional Representatives are voted in, any vacant offices, including the representatives for the Counselor Association, Club and Organizations Council, are filled by appointment by the Student Senate. Also appointed by the Student Senate are the Student Senate Senators in the Student Senate News Letter.

Anyone interested in appointment for a vacant office should apply at Student Activities Center, Room 101, or to Jeannie Kamani at extension 2342.

The responsibility of the Student Senate as defined in the Student Senate News Letter:

The Student Senate represents the interest of Harper College and works with the faculty and administration on programs, policies, and issues which directly affect students. The Student Senate is responsible for recommending students for important college committees, budgeting over $300,000 of student activity funds, finalizing club and organization charters, and reviewing and recommending changes in college policies which affect student life.

Gregory Franck is a Business Administration major and a member of the Business and Social Science Divisional Senator. He believes, "Harper is a dynamic two year college, yet there are a few fundamental problems that need to be solved that remain on this campus and need to be changed." Franck is currently a member of the National Guard.

Another candidate for Business and Social Science Divisional Senator and a Freshman at Harper, Michael Duddell has previously a member of the student council at Lake Park High School. "I consider myself the 'New Wave' candidate," writes Duddell. "I feel the students at Harper need their say in what goes on at this college", Duddell added.

Jerry Kischkevitz, Freshman at Harper, is the single candidate for Physical Education, Athletics, and Recreation Representative. He said, "I am here to advise and obtain information regarding current policies and procedures pertaining to the Physical Education and Recreation Department. He is a four year veteran of the Marine Corps.

Don Balzynski, trust for Liberal Arts Representative, was also not available for interview. He was elected "Vice President in charge of Political Affairs four times" at the O'Hare Airport Senior Class. "At Harper we can have a say in the affairs of our government here, the Student Senate, by voting in the upcoming election...", advised Balzynski.

October 1 the results of the election will be tabulated and published.

Although Angeline Carr, candidate for Liberal Arts Representative, did not have her picture taken, she is the person represented by someone who really cares, me," Carr said. Carr was Publicity Chairperson during her senior year.

Robert Bois, a former candidate for Student Trustee, is campaigning again this year for Technology, Mathematics, and Physical Science (TMPS) Representative. He would like to see more people to get involved in a club." Bois is active in the Astronomy Club, in the Geology Club and as a tutor for Logic and Geology.

Michele Ostrowski, candidate for TMPS Representative, has spent four years previously in governing councils. She feels qualified to lead the school body on a strict course to stability and progress. "I'm energetically going to devote my time to fulfilling the requirements of this demanding office", concluded Ostrowski.

Blood Drive falls short

By Alisa Chinlund
Staff Writer

The turnout for the blood drive fell short of expectations. The goal was to collect a minimum of 100 pints of blood. In fact, the O'Hare Airport Health Service College Blood Service, College Health Service, and Blood Coordinator.

Last September, almost 112 pints of blood were collected. This year the health service fell short of its goal by almost 11 pints. Eighty-nine donors had their blood drawn - 64 students and 25 staff members. Nineteen donors deferred for health reasons.

Health Service Supervisor Debra Murray attributes the decline in the number of blood donors to "the lack of publicity for the blood drive, the fear of aids, apathy and in some cases very busy schedules."

Murray also added that "some people are more afraid of their own health than they are of giving blood to someone else."

According to Santoleri, "students are our biggest resource (blood donors). We really appreciate them." Most students said to give blood in high school and they continue to give blood, or a friend talks them into it again.

One of the students was Debi Mendelsohn, a freshman from Fox River Grove. Mendelsohn related her reasons for donating blood. "I have an older brother and his wife and son else might need it. My blood will go to a good cause. (Donating blood) doesn't hurt and it's a great thing to do."

What is a Senate?

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Now that Student Senate elections are here at Harper, it becomes obvious that everyone may not know what the college's College Senate (HCSS) is or what it actually does.

According to Webster's Collegiate Dictionary, a senator (1.) "a counselor," (2.) "the supreme council of the ancient Roman state, originally only of patricians but later including the plebeians," or (5.) "a governing or advisory council in a college or university." (Definitions #4 and #6 do not apply because they concern the U.S. Senate.)

HCSS is a self-governing body of 10 senators, a faculty advisor, and the Student Trustee. The Student Trustee for the 1987-88 school year is Greg Miller, former senator; his term ends in May, unless re-elected. Past president, member of Student Activities, advises the senators on procedure, college personnel and general protocol.

Now, according to our four definitions of "Senate," which one(s) best describes the HCSS? As one of last year's senators I can safely say #5 and the latter part of #2 (the "plebeian" rule) apply.

We now have an idea of what a senate is; but, what does it do?

Elected from the different campus divisions, the senators have the responsibility and obligation to carry out the concerns of students' demands and needs to the senate body and to faculty. Senators also participate in college and senate sub committees. These committees accomplish more than most people assume.

Some of the college committees include Academic Computing (concerns computer labs and programs), Assessment and Testing (testing facilities and batteries), Athletics (possible expansion), Calendar (determining dates, eg: Spring Break is now closed for around mid-term, not Easter), Cultural Arts (programs and events around campus), Curriculum (new courses), Environmental and Social Awareness (class gift), Graduation (class gift), and Students Conduct (communicable disease policy).

Several Senate subcommittees deal with immediate student desires and needs. Such committees include: Activity Fee (recently raised to offset inflationary costs of student activities); Beautification (grounds and art), Bldg. Maintenance and Renovation (rejected to build a new ESL center); Constitution Rewrite (only for the Senate); Dance Extravaganza (a competition between various colleges); Lockers (not feasible in great quantities); and Vending Contracts (only for candy and chips, due to impact of daily fresh food requirement).

Thus, the senators not only have to represent the students' views on committees, but also those of the college, staff and faculty.

Another important duty of a senator is the division administration of funds. Each division (several thousand dollars) receives several hundred dollars from the Senate budget to spend as the division deems necessary.

Examples of materials purchased are study carrels for upstairs J-Bldg. and various prints and lithographs for D-Bldg. The largest amount of money spent involves the inclusion of ALL students as possible users/recipients for and of the numerous services. This project developed last year when the Life Sciences division senator attempted to buy a high-magnification microscope for the Science department to request on the grounds that not all Harper students would have access to the microscope.

All in all, the senators are liaison for faculty, staff and students. Senators attempt to accomplish the Senate's objectives for the year while answering to their peers — two tasks not to be taken lightly.

Interim Report

by Kim Ostrowski

How many students actually have a vote in Board decisions? One does, and that student is Greg Miller.

Since his tenure began in April of this year Miller has, in his words, "learned so much it's amazing." As a first-year senator he knows about the student body, the nuances of student-administrative relations and the intricacies of college politics.

"Last year I came to Harper with a severe case of 'I-with-I could-go-to-a-four-year schoolitis,'" Miller says. However, after attending the Illinois Community College Association (ICCA) conference during the summer, I appreciate how executive sessions work," Miller states.

He continues "Only two other student trustees had the right to vote at their college's Board meetings."

Miller now feels the students at Harper should feel proud of the facilities and faculty here and even says community colleges are a better way to begin a postsecondary education than plugging into a four-year institution.

Besides attending information exchanges such as the ICCA conference, Miller attended several Board meetings to give a report on special college centers and on student activity; he decided to keep the appearance of his predecessor and made both a comprehensive and detailed report that combines centers AND students. Miller can now affect the total vote count of the Board, make motions and attend the executive sessions.

Miller also helped organize the Round Table on Tuesday Day, promoted various clubs during the summer session and participated in planning a new information center. That latter is still in the organization phase.

Furthermore, Miller attends the Round Table, informal meetings that attempt to coordinate the major organizations, such as the Senate, Program Board, WHCM and the Harbinger. He describes the Round Table as a platform for discussing changes in students' desires, needs or demands.

Finally, but perhaps most important, the Student Trustees serve on the Student Senate. As one of the, if not the only, returning senators, Miller is vital to the success of the Senate and the Harbinger because of his familiarity with the Senate's responsibilities and procedures.

All in all, Miller deserves his positive position mainly responsible as "knowing the material for each Board meeting, making a concise and informative report and keeping the Senate abreast of upcoming of current events."

Editorial

A very personal classified ad.

While this job has many perks that go along with it, the drawbacks can be pretty nasty. Among the toughest for me is policy decisions. There are many ones that every Editor-in-Chief tries to implement. From the coverage of events, people and places in and around the college, and the like.

I'm talking about the kind of things that can offend some people more than others. Controversial things. Not just the right-left ones that makes good editorial copy, but the out-of-norm stuff.

I received a letter a week and a half ago from a couple in Chicago that both touched and disturbed me. Rather than describe it, I will print most of it verbatim to avoid taking anything out of context:

Dear Editor:

My husband and I would like to run an adoption ad in your newspaper. We are both teachers, children, and after seeking the help of many doctors, have been diagnosed as infertile. We have gone through reconstructive surgery, and in vitro fertilization. After going through the emotional pain and heartache, we have a deep desire to adopt. We would offer a lot of love, warmth, and security.

We have looked into agency adoption, but find the waiting lists are very long and can take from three to six years to adopt a healthy baby.

We would like to offer young women who might be in a desperate situation an alternative to abortion, and also an alternative to going to an agency which some young women find objectionable.

Could you please tell us how much it would cost to run the following ad?

BABY WANTED FOR ADOPTION. WE OFFER LOTS OF LOVE, WARMTH, AND SECURITY. ALL MEDICAL PAID. IF PREGNANT PLEASE CALL VIVIAN (312) 783-5382.

If you call us, we'll place the check in the mail immediately, or please mail to you directly with publication details.

We would also like you to consider running article on adoption. As educators, we feel it is important that young women realize that there are thousands of couples who desperately want to adopt, and that there are many happy and successful adults that were adopted.

We appreciate your consideration in this endeavor. We will be looking forward to your response.

After reading this letter, I called the lady who wrote it, to ask her if I could print her letter. I was very familiar with her for twenty minutes. I decided then and there that I wanted to print her ad. I gave it very little thought after that. Until I happened to read it to my secretary, tier reaction was, for the most part, surprise. She was much to my surprise, offended. I checked several other friends and colleagues, and the results were almost perfectly split: the males reacted as I did, the females as my secretary did.

I am sure I was faced with having to explain why I felt sympathetic toward this couple. Why I was all of the controversy surrounding whether or not to accept commercial ads in school publications across the country, that seemed a new and not entirely natural change. Life. Children for those who really want them. The consequences of black-market babies for sale never really occurred to me. I can't imagine it.

As far as the admissibility of the ad itself, we at the Harbinger have, by design, only three criteria for classified ads: That they are (a) libelous, (b) obscene, or (c) overtly illegal. Above that, we tended to make no judgements, moral or otherwise.

Which is why I had a tough time putting this together in an editorial. Always having been a "pro-choice" advocate, I suddenly find myself at odds at things from "the other side". So, unable to take a stand firmly either way (I believe the journalistic term is wishy-washy), I'll just rest with the consolation that I printed this couple's story and hopefully got somebody to think about it.

Come to think of it, that's about all an Editorial can hope for.

BIZARRE CONCEPTS with Tom Appel

To the students of Harper College,

In this letter actually appears in print, but only because I have calmed down enough to write it.

It was Monday of this week that I submitted my resignation from the position of editor of the Harbinger. The events leading to my resignation are not much different from events that have occurred around this time past.

Student Senate elections will be held early next week. It is the duty of every student who gives a damn to do something to wisely choose the representatives he or she feels best able to fill what is actually a fairly powerful position.

It is no secret that in year past voter turnout for the Student Senate elections has been abysmal. Facts: this is a commuter school, with community students who come less often than the classroom room does, much less who their Student Senate representative is.

This is a recent fact, though now as we speak, seven Harper students are waiting with bated breath... anxious to take positions most of them ten years old. That's right, seven students, ten people. So why vote at all, right?

There is some computation here. It is possible, ideally, every department is represented, and this year two more student rep. and have two or more students running for particular positions. The problem here is that in years past similar candidates running senator hopefuls simply ranged from enthusiasm to scacy. One senator (he's unappposed) a Mr. Jerry Kowalski, asked "Do you think it's necessary that I win by we already won right?" Yeah Jim, you won, and congratulations on an excellent resume addition.

I have heard that it's too late, but maybe it is. I have heard, but does anyone really care? Do the seniors care? Why the hell do I care?

It's your school, and it's up to you to decide how seriously to take it. If you can't run for Student Senate, and maybe you don't want someone else to shell the street spending your money, then maybe Student Senate should be done away with all together.

After all, wouldn't it be better if some issue-informed saluted administrator spent our money. Then some semi-transparent walk-in looking for an ego boosting ride?

I don't mean to imply these soon to be senators in particular are not in any way substancial, they may be. But student issue geniuses, but shouldn't we have decided who they are?

But I don't care. That's the point of this letter. I am longer care. If anyone does, then do something fast, or the students of this school will go unrepresented, again.

into it. A few of the students are first time donors.

"Giving blood is something you have to do the first time you feel comfortable... It is hard the first time but the more you give the easier it becomes", said Sander.

Health Services Secretary Marlene Pustazek is proud to be a regular blood donor. "I realized the importance of giving blood when my face was ill and needed a transfusion. At that time I experienced interpolation about giving blood.... The last few times I donated blood... it only takes me 5 or 6 minutes to give a pint of blood. I'm looking out for myself and my family by doing this."

Pustazek added, "besides, Harper has made it so easy to donate blood. Everything is right here. You don't have to go to Tamms or other employees are given time to do it."

Murray wishes to thank all of the people who participated in the blood drive. She was especially impressed with the professionalism, courtesy and effectiveness of the blood drive workers.

The blood drives at Harper College are sponsored by Life Source (American Red Cross and North American Blood Center) from June through July, September, November, February and April. The next blood drive is scheduled for November 11.

If you would like to donate blood before the next blood drive, contact your local hospital or call Life Source.

Arsenic and Old Lace comes to town

Okay, so it's not Cary Grant, Raymond Massey and Peter Lorre. But it is David Taron, David Meyer and Dan Dudyk. Plus a few less known names.

Harper College is bringing back the good old days with their revival of "Arsenic and Old Lace", a classic film produced in 1944 and later made into the Cary Grant vehicle.

"Arsenic and Old Lace" tells the story of two elderly ladies (played by Tim Vaughan and Maria Ratko) and their nephew Mortimer (David Taron) and the havoc caused when he discovers his aunt's rather nasty hobby of poisoning lonely old men.

To complicate matters even more, the unlikely discovery comes on the heels of the home of Mortimer's brother Jonathan (David Meyer), who, in the words of Mortimer, "...left town without saying goodbye. Jonathan was the kind of boy who liked to eat worms in two. With his teeth."

Add a brother who thinks he's Ted Roosevelt (Larry Pralle), a neighborhood beat cop who thinks he's a playwright (Paul Dreyer), and a griffith's who's the daughter of the local

Steve Earle in marathon concert

by Dave Pilatki

The "M" Building Gymnasium was filled to capacity last Friday, when Harper hosted Steve Earle. The crowd got what they came for; a hand hitting, crank till you drop jam session.

The insiders opened the show. They're a young band from Chicago who have just recently seen some success. Their set was over an hour long and included their "MTV Hit Clip of the week" "Ghost on the Beach" in their set. Their fresh style of rock is hard to like.

Steve Earle took the stage. His first words were a warning to the audience that he would be performing with no equipment.

Earle's music is an interesting mix of country and rock; the combination works very well.

During his first set, Earle performed his hit "I Ain't Never Satisfied along with several other songs off of his new album. (I bought it yesterday.)

The band's first break left Earle on the stage to do a mandolin solo. His primary instrument is acoustic guitar, with slide harmonica thrown in for flavor.

As far as the theme of the performance was concerned, his between song banter involved rock is hard to like.

Many Earle songs are based on stories in the working man, but he avoids becoming a preacher.

After a short break, the talent and musical strength of the band caused an enthusiasm in crowd comprised of many first time listeners.

While searching the entertainment world of Chicago for "the things we do", I came across one that we live in the Chicago area that we end up missing so much of. The theater tours are doing all these neat things. We are going to Woodfield.

The only reason that any of us have been to the Sears Tower is because we were loaded on a bus and taken there in the fourth grade. We are not the ones to take advantage here. We can be tourists without the hotel costs or time limitations.

Because we have so much to do, and so little time, we end up sleeping and seeing nothing. We will go downtown to Soldier Field to see Madonna, but she'll be here for a couple days but we won't go there in a game because we can always go next week or next season. Meanwhile it'll kill you and ESPECIALLY your wallet.

I don't mean to imply that the only way to amuse yourself is to go downtown. The Funny Bone comedy club is a local favorite. The Art Institute of Chicago located on Michigan Ave. at Adams. It is very easy to find. For those who like art, there's it's a few blocks directly south of Watertower plaza. Opened Oct. 17, renovations and Postmodernism, paintings, Oct. 20, American Institute of Architects awards exhibition.

THE SEVENTH DAY

A HEAP O' WORDS
BY PEDER SWEENEY

My dear friend Dan harbors the peculiar notion that life, in its broadest sense, is entirely a matter of his rakish response to a sporting challenge by God. If anyone else really exists in Dan's eyes, it's merely as a pair of hands in a cosmic appliance machine designed to keep him motivated.

He lies six-feet four-inches long and weighs between 200 and 220, depending on his last bout with the barber. His face is a large, hastily arranged affair of terminally half-blinded eyes, a nose with the accepted number of holes and a mouth that approximates a pair of amorous armadillos in the missionary position.

He is a master of the old school. The quintessential anti-hero. A noble heathen Quixote charging windmills on his mothers Gold Card. He is immune to both fat and fashion, he reacts not from calculation or affectation, but from the wellspring of self-knowledge—from a soul as pure and clear as a crystal pool. There is a startling correctness to him, an unwavering conviction amid the battering broadsides of public disdain. So, no matter what our opinion of his chosen path, we must at least say of him "There is a man of singular character! Profound in insight and courageous in self-expression!"

I rang the bell of Dan's house and waited. After a moment a voice not Dan's came through the intercom: "Down in a cold vat of whiskey?" "What? Where is thy sting?" I responded, and the door was opened to him. As cosmopolitan go, famous quotations are generally unavoidable, but Dan refuses to believe that anyone who can complete a W.C. Fields line could possibly mean him harm (W.C. Fields to you and me, "The Enlightened One" to Dan).

Dan:
It was Felix who let me in.
"How long?" I asked.
"Six days, full throttle. No sleep, no solid food." He took my coat and gave me an affectionate hug. Felix Peebles is one of those gentle giants who can crush a skull in one hand and hurl an egg in the other without breaking the yolk. The same is true of his brother Delbert. That's why they're on Dan's binge payroll.
"How is he?" I asked.
"Fairly" poor, "said Felix. "Have two nurses on instead of one. He's comin' out of it too slow. I'm glad you came."

"Food?"
"A dextrose IV and J.D. in the gerbil bottle."
"Bourne's food?" I corrected Felix.
"It's to him," Felix corrected me.

One man of Dan's house is arranged and equipped as a hospital mom. It is specifically for Dan's bionic recuperation. I looked in on Dan and concurred with the "mom" assessment; faintly poorly. The boy hung lackadaisically on the TV sheets. The skin on his face was puffy and grey in contrast to his crisp white sheets. The spout of his jumbo IV bottle had popped inside his lower lip. The television showed pre-recorded Rouderman cartoons, chosen for their lack of dialogue and undemanding storylines.

"After going through the trip receipts I gave Felix the totals: 'Seven thousand dollars, plus including the seventh day—'
"Wooh!" replied Felix and I. "Sixty-six?" A hundred and sixty-six barn in six states! Dan was telling me and Delbert how moderation atrophies the human spirit, how it's a social ideal and therefore opposes individualism. He says that there's a comic elegance to excess, a oneness with creation. He says that the banquet of life should be attacked with lip-smacking, belly-stretchin' glibility—that the Bible, the Talmud and the Koran are all just flowery diet

"He also says that Jack Daniels should be sainted," I remarked.
"I know," said Felix, "I signed the petition he sent to Rome."

"Hello, Julie," I said to one of the nurses, "what hour is it?"
"Oh, hello Mr. Sweeney. He's in the tenth hour now."

"Then he should be seeing All-Star wrestling and religious programs and he should have Guiness Stout in the gerbil bottle."

"I know," she said, "but there's been no sign of cerebral activity."

"I've been wondering about that for twelve years. Put beer in the bottle and The 700 Club on the TV. How's his skull?"

The process of regaining speech began as Dan tried to repeat the words "Still mushy." "Wait an hour and start vitamins and liver massage."

The process of regaining speech began as Dan tried to repeat the sounds he heard on TV. The wrestling program, for instance, provided "I'm gonna turn him inside-out!" (Ubga turmp lbasu dwu!) and the religious show had "God wants you to send money" (Gob wassu sem-bunny! Sem bunny done!).

I entered his room during the seventeenth hour "Ahh nod a docker," Dan barked at the TV, "but I pay one on TB!"
I gave him a gentle rap on the nose
"Oh, heebie Peecher!"
"How do you feel?"
"Much beebier, danks."
"Grazie, Grazie!"

You can think?"
"Other?"
"Your in the seventeenth hour of the seventh day. You dropped seven grand in six states and one-hundred sixty-nine bars."
All chattering.
"What's up?"
"Mayne in a cubby hole. I got hurt in my mouth."
"Gargle some Na. I'm gonna wat' in your gerbil bostle now."
"I'll make the arrangement for your body."
"Huh?"
"Where's everyone?"
"Out in the kitchen heapan heasins on you."
"As well dev might. I met de Lord in time!"

"HOW I MADE $18,000 FOR COLLEGE BY WORKING WEEKENDS."

When my friends and I graduated from high school, we all took part-time jobs to pay for college.

They ended up in car washes and hamburger joints, putting in long hours for little pay.

Not me. My job takes just one weekend a month and two weeks a year. Yet, I'm earning $18,000 for college.

Because I joined my local Army National Guard.

They're the people who help our state during emergencies like hurricanes and floods. They're also an important part of our country's military defense.

So, since I'm helping them do such an important job, they're helping me make it through school.

As soon as I finished Advanced Training, the Guard gave me a cash bonus of $2,000. Then, under the New GI Bill, I'm getting another $5,000 for tuition and books.

Not to mention my monthly Army Guard paychecks. They'll add up to more than $11,000 over the six years I'm in the Guard.

And if I take out a college loan, the Guard will help me pay it back — up to $1,500 a year, plus interest.

It all adds up to $18,000 — or more — for college for just a little of my time. And that's a heck of a better deal than any car wash will give you.

Hawks get by Trojans, 15-7, rush to 3-0

Martin rushes for 3rd straight 100-yard game.

Sports Editor
Eighth-ranked Harper hosted eighth-ranked Illinois Valley Saturday in a NAC game billed as a "Battle of the Underdogs."

At the end of the game, the Hawks (3-0) were still standing as they defeated the Trojans (2-1).

The game broke the mold of the two previous Hawks games, as the defense was limited to 10 points, but the rushing statistics were still in tact as Harper outrushed Triton, 220 yards to 41 yards.

Hawk sophomore running back, Dan Martin, rushed for 121 yards on 20 carries to gain more than 100 yards for the third game in a row this year.

The Hawk defense performed to usual standards, forcing 6 turnovers while allowing only 1 point in the last three games.

Early in the game, Hawk quarterback Al Snyder hit Dale Pruse for a 15-yard touchdown to give the Hawks a 8-0 lead. Dan Martin ran the ball in for two-point conversion.

In the second quarter, Triton quarterback, Ken Hoffman ran an option from 12 yards out to close the gap to 8-7 in favor.

But before the half, Snyder passed Robert Harden for a 5-yard pass to end the scoring at 15-7.

Snyder finished the game with 58 yards and 1 interception, while Hoffman finished the game 10 of 17 for 186 yards and 3 touchdowns. Harper's Don Lee picked off two of the three interceptions.

The Trojans had the ball on the Lycard line at one point in the second half, but the Hawk defense held them scoreless on third and fourth down.

The Hawks should move up in the NACAA poll from their ranking of eighth before this game.

This Saturday the Hawks travel to Joliet to meet the Wolves in a game starting at 1:00 p.m.

Hawk's volleyball team beat by I.V. for fourth loss of year.

Despite winning first game of year, Hawks come away winless in match, 0-15, 4-15, 15-10, and 3-15.

By Laura Leonets
Staff Writer

The Harper volleyball team won their first game Tuesday night, but it wasn't enough to take the match as Illinois Valley came home with a 4-set victory to down the Hawks, 0-15, 4-15, 15-10, 3-15.

"Inconsistencies are our main problem," Coach Randall said afterwards. "As the girls learn to discipline themselves to keeping their heads in the game, we'll be able to pull more than just points and games, we'll start taking muches as well."

The team has been concentrating on communication and defensive rebounding in practices, and the fruits of their labors were definitely evident during the four-set victory Tuesday.

Highlights include Julie Hader's defensive action and especially Linda Word's unstoppable kills, and newcomer Linda Haber's front row serve returns.

"Our defensive blocking has improved, due to better communication. Passing is key to a victory, and the girls have shown progress in that area, too."

The coach admits that things aren't looking too rosy at this point in the win-loss department; last Tuesday the Tritons defeated the Hawks, 15-9, 15-3, 15-10.

Still, Randall's positive attitude and motivating spirit remain undimmed. The Hawks will be participating in the Waubonsee Tournament tonight, and their next home stand will be against Joliet, Tuesday at 7:30.

Retirement plans put on hold

McGrath named president of Trinity College

By Lars Paulin
Editor-in-Chief

President James McGrath canceled his planned retirement when he announced last week he would accept a new position at Trinity College in Washington, D.C.

McGrath had planned to retire from Harper at the end of the 1986-87 school year, but was nominated for the open position at Trinity, and after careful consideration, accepted the offer of the presidency, effective some time next spring.

I was very impressed with Trinity and with the opportunity to work in a college with a long Liberal Arts tradition," said McGrath.

Trinity, a Catholic women's college in Northeast Washington, D.C., has been in existence since 1918. McGrath will become the first man as well as the first person of a religious order to hold the post of president at Trinity.

According to the Washington Post, Cardinal Blase J.

McNamee had planned to return from Harper at the end of the 1986-87 school year, but was named to the position at Trinity and, after careful consideration, accepted the offer of the presidency at Trinity.

McNamee, a former executive director of the Women's College

Coalition, was also quoted in the Post as saying the appointment of a man to head Trinity "may send a signal of men and women working together for women's education."

Since 1979 about two-thirds of women's colleges in the country have turned to men, including Gingrich and Mc-Grath.

McNamee added that he had a revised retirement date targeted,

McGrath hedged a bit: "As a rule you never take this kind of job unless you're committed to it for at least five years." He then added with a chuckle: "Unless, of course, they ask you to leave earlier."

McNamee added that he was principles, and he feels "the job we are doing is done" to have a great working atmosphere, the named this year.

McNamee, a recent U.S. Air Force graduate, is currently serving as a two-year one-sold supervisor of Acquisitions and Intense discussion.

But on balance, they said, McGrath was chosen "given his strong record for financial and sound fiscal management, restoration of collegiality, and conflict leadership."

Job Placement Center - an employment service?

By Pearl Henderson
Managing Editor

Russ Mills, director of placement, has managed to turn the Job Placement Center around in just 9 months. The position of Director of Placement was reactivated in January of this year, and the full scale of what was once at Harper Colleges' behest choices.

One of Mills' most impressive challenges was to create a computerized placement system for Harper students. Mills personally visited and researched other community colleges and universities and decided on the appropriate system for Harper. This new system will match a student with job-hands-on training opportunities.

1. Interest
2. Experience
3. Instructional level
4. Advantages
5. Geographical preference

The system is open to Harper students and alumnus, and once you are in the system you are not limited to it. Mills stated that the person may sign up for another 10 day period.

Attending a career planning session is also required.

2. Paying a $5 mailing fee
The job placement center, located in A347, is presently taking applicants. The next computer match will be Oct. 10. The actual matching will be done twice a week.

"I feel real confident about it," Mills said. "When some of the students use the program, they are so happy with the results that word of mouth alone we hope to get an immediate response."

Mills is so positive about the success of the new placement system that he has added two new positions to his staff, a secretary, Lorie Smith and assistant Kathy Hanahan.

Hanahan, just as she did with the placement office, has recruited jobs from the area for Harper students. "We're targeting jobs for our computer program," Mills said.

The placement center, also drawing and by the career center, will give the students exposure to the career center, career counselors, and job placement offices. From and among different companies in the area and the Discovr machine which are computerized in the area, the students will be asked to take computerized examinations of their job interest. And there are video tapes of all Harper students.

3. Information Specialist, Carrie Giori, can refer applicants to wherever you want to go. There are over 1,000 different job descriptions in the area and they are continuously accumulating more local business information everyday. We already have a list of 100 companies from employees and students wanting to get everything going," Gorri said.

Mills has other objectives such as:

1. Constantly keeping up-to-date career information, 2. Cooperating with the Northwest Center Cooperative, which is a program with 20 schools.

Sixty students in this district who don't plan to go to college but have vocational training will be placed with their prospective employers there students.

Developing seminars on topics such as resume writing, interviewing, selling, the classroom and developing employee files, communicating information about local companies such as salaries, job descriptions, benefits, etc.

The New Harper Placement Office seems to really have its hand on the pulse of the manner which is providing services for those students.

For further information on placement services, keep your eyes open for fliers being mailed to your homes and call ext. 5201.

Fall Festival queen

By Greta Carr
Staff Writer

Preparations are underway for Fall Festival '87, including the selection for the Fall Festival Queen. Six candidates will be judged by appearance, poise, personality, participation at Harper and community involvement with the selection committee.

"It's not a swimsuit or popularity contest," said Lea Hamm, a junior who is a co-ordinator of the program board. "It's someone who represents Harper."

"I was in it last year and my friends and I won the title," said Rita Conine, a pre-med student, is a full in DI for WHC (her sponsor). Her hobbies include reading, writing poetry and working with children. Her goal, if elected Queen is to "... get more students involved with not just fall activities but (activities) throughout the year."

"I've done a lot, met a lot of people," said Karen Hawranek, "I have a lot of experience," she said. Hawranek is active in track and field, her hobbies are photography, water skiing and miniature model building. As the Secretarial Internship program, she plans on becoming an executive secretary. She would like to "... try to get people involved in the school, not just a community college."

Jacqueline Landfair is a professional model who is interested in modeling and coin collecting. A first student at Harper, Landfair plans to go to some clubs and decided to participate in the pageant because it's a good way to be fun interesting, and a challenge. "She sees it as a chance so..." really be involved with Harper.

Mary Kay Lockett is a business administration student, her sponsor is the Program Board. Her hobbies include skating and coordinating activities. She is involved with the Harper Speech Team, Harper Committee on Alcohol/Drug Awareness Program and Harper Program Board officers, activities and coordinator.

Business administration student, Dennis Placek, is interested in ceramics, cross country skiing and the outdoors. In addition to a part-time job Placek is a member of Phi Theta Kappa, Phi Psi Omega. She believes people should "... try to do what you can with the time you have." And wants to "... make my years at Harper more interesting."

Alicia Stawn is an executive secretary student, who enjoys being in helping programs and doing volunteer work. "... think about myself and (enjoy) meeting the girls." Stawn has been on the Harper Diving Team since 1984, placing fifth at the National Diving in 1987. She is also president of Future Secretaries Association.

Window to the future

By Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Harper's Psychology Department and chairman Dr. Richard Phillips have founded a panel and forum on Sept. 23 to help future and present psychology majors decide on a specific career. Guest speakers include Mrs. Mary Anne Amato, Phillips and Dr. Ed Rund.

Mrs. Phillips, a school psychologist, explained the various areas of psychology, including teacher consultation, psychological evaluations (4.5 hours per child), staffings and meetings with the child's parents and teachers, as well as working with administrators, social workers and nurses from her different schools.

School psychologists need a master's degree in school psychology and, when freshly out of their one year internship, earn an average annual salary of $22 to 24,000. After say, ten years' tenure, that figure may climb to anywhere from $36,000 to $42,000 per annum. These salaries, she stressed, do depend upon previous work experience and former policies. However, Phillips added, "Ranings are very good."

Private clinical practice can be a simultaneous side of a school psychologist's life. Private practices must be located entirely out of the school district in which the person has higher than entry position, though. A doctoral degree is required for clinical psychology, and, she cautions, doctoral programs are not easily entered, especially for Ph.D.s.

Advancement in school psychology, like salaries, is district-dependent. In Phillips' district, the career ladder available is Director of School Psychology Services, primarily administrative in scope. Hours for most school psychologists also depend upon the district, but most work 10 to 12 hours a day, ten to twelve months per year.

The second speaker, Dr. Ed Rund, a psychologist specializing in Human Resources Development (HRD), has his training background and present position in the education sector. Primarily, HRD concentrates on basic orientation in psychology and deals with personnel maintenance and planning and development. His other psychological interests include organizational development and diversity, especially in adult continuing education programs. Also, employees training comprises a major component of HRD.

Training for HRD includes undergraduate studies in general psychology and graduate studies in social psychology (teaching, research, administration or sales) or in human resources. Doctoral work for Dr. Rund, concerned adult education.

Ed Rund also informed that HRD has expanded so rapidly because social psychology, formerly applied behavioral sciences, grew with American business, becoming strong to compete with global markets.

According to Dr. Rund, the outlook for Human Resources Development is fairly bright.

With improvement towards the end of this century, he stressed the sizeable income as a major factor in anyone interested in the field, and figures as high as $22-23,000 annually for entry levels with previous experience. Entry level companies would pay more, maybe as much as $35-47,000 and more. Dr. Rund mentioned though, that those higher salaries entail much work in office jungle politics.

WHCM back into contemporary college radio.

Just to show you that I don't spend ALL of my time bitching about things I find wrong with the school, it's about time I praised a change for the better.

Four little letters: WHCM. Letters that, until this semester, would elicit only yawns or giggles from the Harper faithful. No more.

From day one of this semester I have found myself listening regularly to WHCM. I periodically step out of my office just to hear what's going on. Good are the days of hearing Madonna, Hall & Oates, David Lee Roth, Van Halen, everything from ZZ Top, Beatles to Zappa.

I recently spoke with Scott Morton, the General Manager of WHCM, to find out about this radio renaissance. Morton, a soft-spoken, laid-back individual, credits just about everyone that has him to his success: Program Director Alan Dinsmore, Todd Miller, Program Director Scott Sokolowski, the disk-jockeys, Advisor Tom Schmecke. Most of all, says Morton, there just seems to be a more relaxed, comfortable attitude in the office and among the students.

I couldn't agree more. But with the "relaxed" attitude, there also seems to be a professionalism and a willingness to adapt to the student body that perhaps wasn't there previously.

Another more tangible reason is that for the renewed popularity of WHCM is the music itself. While the format (categories of music) has remained the same, the "current" category now encompasses all music currently being given airplay, as opposed to just "Top 40" as in years past.

Another reason cited by all is the addition of a separate news staff. While this staff is still under development, I personally think it's a great idea. Late-breaking stories and updates could have an immediate impact on those students who are constantly reading the daily paper.

And speaking of staff, I was amazed to learn that WHCM has upwards of 35 staff members: 27 two-hour slot DJs, four senior staff (General Manager, Program Director, Music Director, and News Director), and several other working staff.

We can't speak about the new-found success of WHCM, the Harbinger, the Senate, and the Program Board; three bodies traditionally at war with one another. The hatchet is officially buried, literally preserved, buried.

All in all, WHCM is alive and well in the college radio market. Go out of your way to check them out. It will be worth your while. Welcome back, guys!

Letters to the Editor Letters to the Editor Letters to the Editor Letters to the Editor

Dear Editor:

I have a letter that I'd like you to print. In accordance with Tom Appel's letter, I have a few points to bring up.

First, I also agree that the Senate clearly needs work. I know that first hand from my past work at the Harbinger. Although the elections need work, I do not think that Appel's quoting the paper will matter at all.

If he cannot be mature enough to handle the reality of dealings at school, he should not be on the paper.

As I didn't see it in his article, I will do what I can, anyway. To do certain things in his article "Hell, I don't care. That's the point of this letter, I no longer care. If anyone does, then do something for the students of this school will go unrepresented again."

In this the attitude he complains about through the whole theme of the letter? He complains that everyone is apathetic when he made one of the most apathetic statements (I mean, come on!) I have ever heard.

I think that Mr. Appel should mature. Look who's calling the black book. Tom.

I agree that something must be done. But it's attitudes that matter. That's keep that kind of issue relevant at Harper College.

Nic Ogels
Program Board Executive

Dear Editor:

Mr. Appel, in regards to your article on page 3 of issue No. 5, I wish to make a reply.

My name is Greg Frank. One of the so-called "new" candidates. The primaries are not over yet so I don't know whether I have won or not, but I would still like to take the time to make a comment.

Greg Frank
Student Senate Candidate

You, I agree with you 100%.

Election apathy agreed on; But the solution...?

"American Creations" overcontemplated

Dear Greg Chapman:

In regards to your poem, "American Creations Today", printed in the 9/24/87 Harbinger, I've got some comments.

For what it is worth, I've been around the block a few times, and, in doing, have grown less inclined to criticism, but I must say that in some cases, I've grown to increasingly strive for universal mind liberation, yet you write with anger and contempt; you shout at everyone else due to their mental stagnation, thus void.

Greg, I ask you to look at yourself. Those qualities that you seem to dismiss as irrelevant, actually found within yourself?

I write this because several years ago I was exactly where you stand now. By the way, mellow out; this country will not perish due to lack of thinking for one's self, for conformity and passivity is as old as the human race.

So, Greg, why not be what you want (most) lover, human being, and let everyone do the rest. People evolve at their own pace, as their own choosing. Leave them be! Lessons are learned by all, no matter how stagnate or "hip" you think they may be.

Take care, Greg: Maybe if you took more time to listen to others, you would realize what you refer to in your "poem", rather than spending your time creating judgmental proclamations, you would not be writing them in the first place. You would know better.

Curiosity: Nothing More

Since 1984, Curiosity Killed The Cat has been one of the most popular groups in the new age of British music. Now with their U.S. debut, Keep Your Distance (Mercury/PolyGram), the band sees their music growing and it gives American listeners a new, yet monotonous, sound coming out of the U.K.

Leading off with the dance club hit "Misfit," the band combines a catchy, synthesized beat with intelligent lyrics about Britain's "isolated" youth. "Something changes every day/it worries me/ build yourself some protection to avoid the injection so you can be happy!"

Following Misfit is "Straight

Back Down" with a powerful bass beat and much more jazz-like sound and a good hook with just quick choruses. The track that begins the evening is one that sounds again with "Misfit" and "Red Light" two songs to alike that they should be combined into one eight minute singer.

The side ends with "Know What You Know" and "Curiosity Killed The Cat," which are two songs. The production (By Stewart Levine) is technically flawless, but there's only so much you can do with a band from England. When you pass the record in your local music store, make sure to keep your distance exact same bass line as "Straight Back Down". Just how much Deja Vu can one man take with one record? And then there's another track like the same, "Free" is a slower version of "Straight Back Down", but with a different bass line (Where's Sade when we need her).

The side ends with "Know What You Know" and "Curiosity Killed The Cat," which are two songs. The production (By Stewart Levine) is technically flawless, but there's only so much you can do with a band from England. When you pass the record in your local music store, make sure to keep your distance

Culture Quest: Method Behind Shakespeare's Madness

Robyn Davis
Entertainment Editor

"Though this be madness, yet there be a method in it." This widely known quote is more than one purpose in my column this week. For one it vaguely describes the set up I have arranged this far. Secondly, there is a "method" or reason to bring it up in this way. This reason is Shakespeare. Confused? Don't be.

The quote above is so universally recognized that we have simply accepted it as fact and a part of our vocabulary. Very few of us recognize it as a line from Shakespeare. So why would I go on forever about Shakespeare's profound impact in theater and writing from the Elizabethan age to present but I don't feel it's my personal duty to fill you in on his Humanities requirement through the Harbinger?

Well, first of all, I want to do this column to show you that Shakespeare is not all men in Elizabethan garb with wavy hair and a mustache. Then again, my flower and I, your daffy (no this is not an actual line).

Perhaps I may even convince you to go to a production or two.

One of the reasons that we often get burnt out on Shakespeare is because we are forced to read it in high school by a teacher who has no appreciation for the language nor has any desire to teach it. It's a requirement so we bury our CliffsNotes and highlighter pens in a whole new light through the entire experience, right?

The fact is that you are still living in the suburbs, you still to Harper College, and you still don't feel it's my personal duty to fill you in on his Humanities requirement through the Harbinger?

Shakespeare never wrote his plays to be read. Plays, as the name implies, are to be performed. This is why the meaning of his plays is made understandable when you see a good production. Through the actors' mannerisms, body language, and portrayal of emotions we begin to understand all the "thou art" and "thee art."

These plays encompass everything we go to the movies for. There is lots of gore to be had, lots of sex, lots of adultery, incest, scandal, revenge, bitches, passion, ghosts, and yes even sex.

Now, can you get a piece of this action? Contrary to popular belief, Shakespeare is very alive and very well. There are always productions of his plays. There are performances on all levels ranging from the community theater all the way to professional companies that do nothing, but Shakespeare.

The following are some productions going on this month in the Chicago area:

Titus Andronicus-Oct 2 thru Nov 15

Organic Theater Co. OTC artistic director Thomas Ruscio adapts this production of Shakespeare's tragedy and sets it in a contemporary country club. Call for show times.

Oct 4-22 $12 D ($5 "groundling" seats) 327-5588.

Much Ado About Nothing-Oct 22-Nov 13

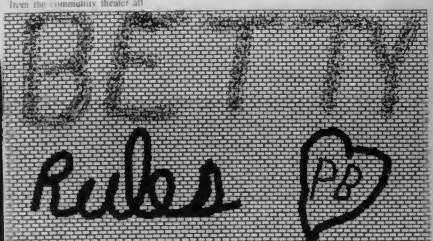

North Valley Community College. A student production of Shakespeare's comedy. 600 building, 19900 S 88th Ave., Palos Hills. Thu-Sat at 8, Sun at 7. (Oct 25 at 2:30, D. 973-4900 ext 456)

A Winter's Tale-Oct 20 thru Nov 29

The Chicago Shakespeare Co. Shakespeare's winter drama starts out bare and morose-a sad tale best for winter-but ends up celebrating the rebirth of spring. Mary Blair Auditorium, 1320 W. Loyola. Thu-Sat at 8, Sun at 7. $10, D. 971-8961.

Sat Merchant of Venice-Oct 28

Egyptian Library Theatre. This production of Shakespeare's comedy, say the producers, is one of "switched gender." Second City ETC Theatre, 1608 N Wells. $5. 528-6033.

BETTY: an exciting three woman acappella group out of Washington DC. Their sound is totally zealous! BETTY will be here at Harper on Tuesday, Oct. 6th at 7:30pm in J143. Tickets are $1 for Harper Students and $2 for the public. Stop by the Box Office TODAY!

The host wasn't going our way. This wasn't the formidable Jack Daniels into submission, but once again Jack's one-wake-stomach combo had us reeling. We went to our neutral corner near the cigarette machine and ordered two glasses of maddening analgesic.

"I bet Duke Wayne could've whipped Jack Daniels," said Dan monosyllabically.

"The Duke is dead," I said, "Battered by Camels."

"I thought about it for a moment, but he appeared so... Dan has a gift for the non-existent, but he can sometimes be twisting the truth to call his thought process creative or non-linear when the correct term is clearly 'dysfunctional' if not 'neural non-functional.'

"How so, dear boy?"

We sat in silence here; Duke Wayne had been gone a long time and there hasn't been no one to fill his boots.

"They're probably full of worms."

"I'm afraid. Don't you think? America needs no heroes! People need someone they can look up to, someone who typifies the ideals of our great nation. Someone little boys and girls can look up to and dream. Someone to ask themselves 'What would so-and-so do in this situation? We'd had no hero since the Duke and it's about time we did!'

"What about Ollie?"

"Ollie shmeolle! The best that can be said of him is that he's a good dog, the worst is that he should be put to sleep."

"Ronnie?"

"Nah, he's a schmoe and everyone really knows it."

It's alright to have a schmoe in the White House, maybe it's even better, but a hero of the people can't be a schmoe. If the Duke had presented the country this way, it would be mighty different. He wouldn't be pissing around show off his polks and grins like a goon, and he sure wouldn't take any crap from other world leaders. If he pencils Thatcher's chart and socks Mousammar in the nose?

Dan stood and slammed his glass to the table. He paced along the bar in a real imitation of the Duke's swagger. Apparently, Duke Dan was now in charge and had just given the last word.

"Awright, swiggh... now, you over there with the splotch on his head, I want you to dig up all them missles of yours and make a pile right here." The bartender ignored Duke Dan, he knew us. "C'mon, c'mon, I haven't got all day ya know. Good, now let's have a little kerfuffle on there and take a match. Now, don't worry, I'm not gonna do some back in America, we're just gonna get the hell outta here, around that all!" Dan spun quickly, finger cocked. "When there fellas [see them Baltic girls under ya coat You just can't tell] in there, it's real easy now, thatta boy, how maybe we can get on with the..."

White Dan was in the bathroom concluding his performance, I thought about America's strange lack of a hero. It was a thought, though. America was hungry for a hero and all it kept giving was temporary substitutes that invariably left a bitter aftertaste.

Dan returned from the bathroom and sat down. I planned to bounce some other names off him as candidates for hero of the people, but I had let his mind settle a bit first. I wanted him to be thoughtful, I wanted his eyes for any hint of cerebral clarity and we fell into a staring stand-off. Neither of us blinking or shifting his gaze from the other. The tension gradually increased until Dan reached into his pocket and took a stick of gum into his mouth with slow deliberation, never allowing his piercing gaze to falter. We both pretended not to notice that the stick of gum had been a Marlboro. Dan took a long, half full drag of beer that had served for the last two hours as an ashtray.

Finally, I conceded and let my gaze fall. Dan rushed into the man's room to fill his mouth with something ice from the complimentary porcelain southerner.

For Dan, that's thinking clearly.

"How about Stallone or Eastwood?" I asked when he returned.

"They're nice."

"I mean for hero."

Dan's eyes lit up when he recalled our conversation. "I knew the venom would start splashing off his delighfully smooth skin."

"Ahhh, Prez in '92, Lastword and Commie Stumpin' Stallone. Let em fight for it if they want it. I'll be here to watch em splatter each other in a slow motion replay of larger number fests."

(Dan was still wearing the wholesome imagery.)

"What about Bernhard Goetz?" I asked.

Nan Benner uses real bullets and his psycho fantassion can play out well. He can be New York City's hero for him, but he's not a leader, and rest of the rest of the country has slightly higher standards.

"You thought he was guilty, then?"

"Not in New York, no. They recognize the fact that self-defense often requires a white man to gun down fleeing blacks. Also, Benner clearly acted with forethought. New Yorkers admire that; premeditated defense.

"What about Iacocca?"

"With emphasis on the T. Nah, he's a schmoe-in-training. He might stand a chance against Clint in '92 though. If he can't, he'll play The Godfather Part II of Rome, Hell or Time. Still, he's a serious man. Of course, if Iacocca did become president, it would be interesting to watch Chrysler's war on the Japanese automotive industry escalate from incentives and rapidly falling prices to incendiaries and radio-active fallout."

Dan began snapping his fingers—a recently mastered talent. "What was that other car guy... what'sname?"

I was startled until Dan snorted an imaginary line of coke and said "DeLocean."

"Yeah, that's him! Audacity incarnate! He came close than anybody to picking up the Duke's crown. Dan, he was a real hero, but he was a real pain in the ass. He was a joke of American justice. DeLocean bought it and held it out to show us how flimsy it really was. He was just a noshchaar from becoming a truly great hero."

"But..."

"But..." he cracked at the last instant. Instead of looking back that great grey mane and laughing for the camera, he came away from the court battle a repentant, babbling, bawling agan' his Justice laughed last."

"I'm a schmoe, too," he said. "I admit it."

Dan imitated a private bodily function with his lips. "Like who?"

"Justice Sandra Day O'Connor?"

"Not unless she shooks Meeme."

"John Kohl?"

"American heroes don't resemble pit bulls."

"Gloria Steinem?"

"Jane Fonda?"

I used a napkin to wipe Dan's reply from my eyewerk.

"Fecaro?"

"The top graduate from the Wally Mondale School of Self-Hatred?" Not likely."

"Sawy Spark?"

"What's a Spacy Seascak?"

"Billy Jean King?"

"Or would this one over for a moment? 'Maybe in a few years.' Or maybe that other girl, the one on the scary movies. Elvira of the Pale Observatory?"

"Elvira?" I ventured.

"Elvira the Dungeon Babe!" Dan grinned and demonstrated drool. "Yeah... she could have it all."

Hawks finish fifth in Waubonsee Invite.

by Tony Laramie
Staff Writer

This year's young Harper cross country team is not running the path of glory, but it means the path of persistence.

The team doesn't get the kind of recognition the football team does, but they are just as mean they can do.

David Severs (sophomore), Mike Doyle (freshman), and Brian Kwinchhoff (junior) are struggling to keep the team moving. They are digging deep down inside and working for what they can do.

When asked about these three, coach Ron Therberg said,

"Brian puts a lot of pressure on himself, while David is probably the most improved. He's getting faster and stronger through practice every day."

Last week, the Hawks gained valuable experience in a thirty-team invitational held in Kenosha at the University of Wisconsin in Padua.

I never thought I would be writing a column like this, but here it goes.

Due to the recent NFL strike, I have had some thoughts reflecting the NFL player. Not the same old question as to where the players are going to have, but the NFL player's another issue.

Besides the Sports Editor, I feel I am pretty objective and able to comment on intelligence of and an athlete's ability to play and his character. I am totally against the old adage of "Johnny Linebacker is stupid because he's a football player and all football players are stupid."

Well, anyone who thinks that is more stupid than the football player they refer to could possibly be right.

But Brady, I think the NFL players are letting their personalities show, and the only person to blame is the NFL. Jim McMahon and Mike Ditka.

A couple days ago, Boone Estason was asked what he thought of the strike and he said, "I think all the 'scabs' are

There were one of only two junior college teams (Danville was the other) in the meet.

Two weeks ago in the Waubonsee Invite, Severs and Kwinchhoff finished twenty-fifth and twenty-sixth, respectively. The team finished fifth overall out of ten.

The team's ultimate challenge will be on October 24th. This is when the Region IV Championships meet in Joliet. The top ten finishers will qualify for nationals.

In previous years, the meet has been held on a rainy course. This is considered to be a benefiting factor for the Hawks since the team practices and prefers to run on a dry course.

There are still three regular season meets left before the grand finale of the Region IV Championships.

These meets will consist of two invites, the first on October 1st at Des Plaines. The third and final meet will be held in Kenosha on October 15th.

No Hawk backs gain 100-yards for the first time this year

For any team in gain a victory over seventh-ranked Triton Saturday, they must stop the Hawks' power and explosive running game.

Last Saturday, Joliet (2-2) beat Triton (3-1) 10-6. How come to accomplishing this, but the undefeated Hawks hammered in a 10-0 victory.

The victory put the Hawks record to 4-0 and gave them sole possession of first place in the Red Division, while remaining the only undefeated team in the NAC.

Joliet started the scoring in the first quarter with a 23-yard field goal.

The 3-0 Joliet lead held until the third quarter.

On Saturday, the second half, Dan Martin (17 carries for 78 yards) ran in from Joliet's 3-yard line and the Hawks up 10-0.

Joliet got the score to 7-0 early in the fourth quarter on a 25-yard field goal, but Tim Witt scored the game for the Hawks with a decisive 31-yard field goal halfway through the final period and the score was 10-6.

The Wolves outgained the Hawks in total yardage, 280-245.

Wolves quarterback Jim Burzynski had 15 carries for 198 yards, while his counterpart, Hawk QB Al Snyder, connected on 7 passes gaining 127 yards.

The Hawks have outscored opponents 120-21 this year and will play host to Illinois Valley this Saturday at Harper's football field at 1 pm.

Senator Admits To Discarding Harbingers

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

Don Bacynski, Liberal Arts Senator, admitted on Tuesday October 21 to throwing away extraneous four thousand Harbinger newspapers.

"I was basically left out of the paper," said Bacynski. "In the Harbinger issue, the Harbinger's name was misspelled. It was printed as Don Bonynski."

After Bacynski noticed the misspelling he said, "I looked at the election office, at the Panhandle, Student Activities Council, and Student Activities Council." She asked Bacynski to talk to the editor.

Without talking to either the News Editor or the Editor-in-Chief, he gave up saying, "I sort of got a run-around. I got two people pointing fingers at each other."

Bacynski threw away

papers from D-building, J-building and the hall outside the Harbinger office. "The reason is to keep it even was to get rid of the Harbinger paper," reasoned Bacynski. "The members of the Harbinger staff salvaged some of the four thousand newspapers."

A formal election complaint was filed against Bacynski and an election board meeting convened on September 25 to determine who was to be discarding the paper.

The election board concluded that Bacynski should be removed from the ballot.

Bacynski appealed the decision and was reinstated the ballot, following a formal apology to the Harbinger. Bacynski was concerned the name would not recognize his name on the ballot.

Bacynski won the election for Liberal Arts Senator against Angeline D. Carr by six votes.

senators: Life Science and Human Services, and Special Programs and Services. These positions are normally elected by the students.

The other three positions are Councillor to the Student Senate, Vice-Chair of the Student Organization, and Representative.

The Student Senate is holding their first meeting on October 12 at 1:00 pm in room A336. The Student Senate is hoping to appoint senators for these vacant titles at this meeting.

Any student interested in representing one of these positions should apply at Student Activities in A336. "Last minute candidates are encouraged to attend" (the meeting), said Jeanne Pankake, Student Activities Director.

A total of five positions remain unfilled. Two of those positions were academic division positions. The remaining three positions are non-academic.

Students are encouraged to apply for these positions.

According to Dr. David L. Williams, the president of the William Rainey Harper College,

"The election of senators is an appropriate extension of our academic affairs.

When things first happen people might say that doesn't make sense. But this certainly is not in my judgment,

it is an appropriate in front of a P.C. and be able to set up their work, this will Williams said that one of the benefits of education is being able increase from 52 ballots cast in 1986. Last year 150 ballots were cast, and, this year, a mere 0 percent of nineteen thousand students voted.

Another student wrote, "I voting students based on decisions on student campaigns and the October 1 issue of the Harbinger, which gave a statement from each candidate.

According to Pankake the Student Senate has four responsibilities for this year.

First, senators must be active on committees which are made up of senate members from many different schools.

Second, the senators approve changes for the clubs. There are already three such clubs waiting for charters.

Throughout the years, Harper College's Administration has carried the trust and confidence of the Board of Trustees. During the summer the board approved new administrative contracts of 32 administrators.

Board policy states that an administrator is an employee whose responsibilities include authority to hire and fire personnel and authority to make significant decisions in their area of responsibility.

And the authority to direct the work of one or more full-time employees, and persons who have been employed in professional organizations, and attendance at meetings.

Money for the fund is approved by the board every year and is part of the fiscal year budget. It falls under the category of fringe benefits which is salary and benefit account.

A total of $21,000, or $650 per administrator, will be allocated for the purchase of personal computers for administrators housed on campus.

The professional development fund is used for professional activities such as the purchase of books, membership in professional organizations, and attendance at meetings.

Student rights

by Kim Ostrowski

The 1987-88 issue of the Student Handbook recently appeared on campus. Leafing through the blue text, one should not pass some important information without noticing, what one can and cannot do. Here are some of those guidelines in brief.

On page 25 the Handbook states, "If a student believes that his/her proposed conduct or speech may infringe upon the college's rules and regulations or he/she is unclear on student rights, one should contact the Vice President of Student Affairs (Bldg. H-101).

The section "Student Life" delineates the basic do's and don'ts for students. For example, in the area of smoking, students are required to wear a mask when smoking in the buildings and cannot "disrupt the educational process" by his or her do's. "There is no formal dress code in the Hallways," it says, and most students seem to enjoy that freedom to the maximum.

Also in the "Student Life" section are the designated non-smoking areas: classroom, labs, hallways and stairs, washrooms, division offices, reception areas, conference rooms, open offices,

Blg. V, and the physical education area. Thus, smokers can light their tobacco only outside and wherever there is a "smoking sign present."

On a more serious note, if a student (or faculty) feels he or she has suffered sexual harassment, he or she can contact Dr. Barbara Haas. She will undertake an investigation of the harasser may face counseling and/or restricted disciplinary procedures.

Another right of students involves the ability to inspect and review one's educational records. There are several instances in which educational records may be revealed without a student's written consent.

Some of these circumstances include: transcripts, financial aid application, accreditation procedures, judicial orders and emergency situations. Also, if a student believes that his/her rights have been violated, the Handbook advises contacting (FERPA), the Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act office at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare in Washington, D.C., 20460.

Students can find more information about rights and regulations in the Registrar's Office, A-213.

As well as, however, ONE MAY file an annual, written form letter to the Dept. of Admissions and Registrar by the end of each course or program, requesting that he or she be informed and disclosure of any or all personal and educational information included in Disclosure documents.

One may also challenge information found on the files. Further rules regarding record keeping are on page 32 of the Handbook.

Different Folks

By Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Harper is a commuter school and as such attracts people from a panorama of religions, races and social, ethnic and cultural backgrounds.

Certain classes seem to have unique groups of students, given the numerous choices for major courses. For example, math and physics courses tend to draw traditional students, and night classes having more non-traditional students; another factor appears to be gender.

An interesting phenomenon occurred to me as I walked out of F-Bldg. and entered C-Bldg. Students in these two buildings seem to, as it were, exhibit more "individualistic" attitudes than students elsewhere on campus.

Also, in and around D-Bldg., there seem to be two "sections": the math, physics and chemistry people and the biology, botany, zoology, psychology and allied health people (all three in programs such as operating room technicians, and nursing). The first section tend to have greater aptitudes for dealing with numbers and abstract concepts, whereas the latter tend to have greater facility in practical applications.

Granted, many students have diverse interests and may take courses in all of the aforementioned fields and are equally proficient in all their work. However, given everyone's different backgrounds and specified major, most students will concentrate on one area or another, and some do so in some locations more than others.

For example, the Fine and Liberal Arts-oriented students tend to concentrate on the languages, philosophy and artistic expression. These courses are designed to enhance intuitive nature and develop self expression. Hence, these students may tend to dress in innovative or creative ways and think inductively.

As an example: math, chemistry and physics oriented students generally think deductively and concentrate their efforts on processes that stress concepts and, sometimes, an intangible object such as atoms, light rays or particles beams. Hence, these students may tend to dress in a more formal and be better at problem analysis.

It struck me that because Harper is a commuter school students never blending of all types of different people. Is it not, then, another form of education that we receive because we attend Harper, rather than attending a large, primarily "young" university or small, private school? College is not merely attending classes and passively learning, but actively learning outside of the class, by interaction with other, different people.

Editorial

Is Apathy only culprit in poor program attendance?

I realize that editorializing about apathy is sort of like a teacher lecturing about the evils of cutting class. The very people who need to hear it are the people who are doing something else at the time. Still, one does what one can.

What I can rant and rave about is the state of the students today (don't my folks say the same thing?) in the Tom Appel tradition (Harbinger, Sept. 24) and even aggravated a few students into responding. I won't. That's why I'm writing this.

And while it is very easy (and proper) to assign blame first and foremost to the student who doesn't know what's going on, but couldn't care less, other factors must also be considered.

For those questions (and precious few answers), I will quote some figures from the Student Activities Office Annual Report for the 1986-87 year:

The thirty events put on by Student Activities sponsored last year easily count 'em, three, made any money: The Fabulous Thunderbirds concert, the Oprah Winfrey lecture, and the film "The Gods Must Be Crazy." Two others, the fall and spring theater productions, lost money.

Obviously the primary goal of Student Activities (including the Cultural Arts Committee) isn't, and shouldn't be, the raising of money. Students pay a fee to Student Activities to subsidize events for the whole campus.

But the results of most of these events begs one big question: Do we need to re-evaluate what we present to Harper students?

One thing is not lacking is effort. I have had the pleasure of working with both Program Board and the Cultural Arts Committee, and in both cases, the advertising, security, and other pre and post show details are handled with enthusiasm and professionalism.

But look at some of the bookings: Jimmy ("J.J.") from TV's "Glorious Walker" ever seen? Jimmy's concert cost $5,038 and returned $278; The Nicholas Tremulis concert cost $5,474 and brought in $729. Tremulis I can understand. He was here a year before and drew well. But again, what?

And, bear in mind that these do not include the 46 events Harper gave to the public FREE OF CHARGE.

So, what to do? Perhaps re-evaluate the thinking on scheduling by cutting down on money spent on free events. Perhaps limit the number of the films and/or lesser known groups to concentrate the saved money on groups with bigger drawing power.

Note, however, I recommend cutting down, not cutting out these lesser known films and artists. I realize that the idea of exposing Harper students to forms of entertainment not readily available at, say, the Horizon or Peppermint Creek.

Perhaps the fault lies in the advance publicity. While we sometimes miss publicizing events due to space constraints, we could always make up for it by also bend over backwards to give gratis advertising to Student Activities when we can. The a cappella group BETTY (who played at Harper this past Tuesday) received two full page ads in the paper, with a quarter page ad in the Entertainment section in the same issue. As of fifteen minutes before the show, only about 30 tickets had been sold.

On the other hand, perhaps the poor turnout at many events isn't such a bad thing after all. Volk Jazz great Connie Kolke is going to be at Harper on Oct. 23rd, and I'd really like to get good seats.

Princess Bride opens Friday October 9

Princess Bride: Fairy tale formula that works

by Robyn Davis
Entertainment Editor

"Princess Bride", the long-awaited film by Robin Reiner ("This Is Spinal Tap," "Stand By Me") and adaptation of William Goldman's best-selling novel is a non-stop tour-de-force of adventure and romance with a more than comic twist.

The film begins with a young boy who, bed-ridden with the flu, is less than interested in reading the book "Princess Bride" arrives to read him aloud the book The Princess Bride.

This story he assures the boy, will not bore him; it has everything: "Feminism, Political Torture, Revenge, Giants, Monsters, Chaos, Escapes, True Love, Miracles."

And so things come to life as his grandfather reads the story of Buttercup, the most beautiful woman in the world and Westley, the man she loves, in the fairytale kingdom of Flunderland.

Sound like your run-of-the-mill medieval melodrama? It's supposed to be. Few readers would expect to see in an adventure film is here and in blinding form. A good example is the lion's charge. Instead of the parades, it's now perfect.

Premier magazine's Louise Bernikow couldn't have better described Goldman's satirical edge when she said "It's not Monty Python or Mel Brooks, but some odd middle ground that makes fun of adventure stories while embracing them at the same time."

Brightly cast, the film's line-up ranges from amateur to veteran. Cary Elwes (Lady Jane) plays the title role of Prince Westley, newcomer Robin Wright as "The Princess Bride", Billy Crystal as "Miracle Max", André the Giant, Carol Kane, Peter Cook, Mandy Patinkin, Chris Sarandon, Chris Sarandon, Christopher Guest, Wallace Shawn and Andre the Giant.

"There are all the prerequisites for disaster in movieland: more than one plot line occurring simultaneously, the screenplay is adapted from a book, and a very diverse cast. No Reiner should have cast himself as "Miracle Max" for pulling it off with such originality and ease.

Goldman's writing style makes for the ultimate family entertainment. He can make the kids laugh and enjoy. The fact that mom and dad are laughing at something totally different than the kids are is proof of rare talent.

In discussing my views of the film with a friend, I stated that I could not wait to sit down over in my room. He then asked "Do you think it deserves it?" "Yes, yes, he said "Slasher".

Okay, he said, "but a film could really be entertaining without honey-laden sex scenes, dizzy boudoirs, been or Merrill Streep. It could confuse some of you but it is possible. If you do not enjoy this film, you are probably lacking in film taste, a point." On a one to five star scale Princess Bride earns four stars.

Work behind the scenes (making them)

"Toe that barge, lift that barge."

Ever have the desire to be involved with theatre, but not for (whatever reason) onstage? Well, here's your chance.

The Harper Hall production of "Arsenic and Old Lace" is currently in production on both sides of the stage.

Michael Brown, Harper's genious resident set designer (and father of Harbinger Photo Editor Tanya Brown) is hard at work on the set of "Arsenic and Old Lace", as well as a staircase leading upstairs, with a cellar door help!

The set of "Arsenic and Old Lace" calls for a brooklyn brownstone house interior circa early 1900's. (The play is set in the late 1930's), complete with dining room, back porch, and window seat, as well as a staircase leading upstairs, with a cellar door help!

Brown is currently working with a voluminous crew of seven, including workshop staff of Independent Study班 in Stage Design, as well as community volunteers, other carpenter on the project, David Miller, even has a major role in the show (he plays the heavy, Jonathan).

Any sort of help is welcome, anyone downtown. The workers on this tall, prudish set include veterans of up to 11 years, as well as first time help.

They meet Tuesdays and Thursdays at 7:00 in room U84.

The pay isn't much (actually it's nothing at all), but the rewards can be tremendous. We're talking about a cast of 350 other people and knowing that that piece of wall or that door was built with or painted by you.

And before we leave Mr. Brown, congratulations on being published for your work with computer graphics! More on that story next week.

'DANGLIN' DAN

The Harbinger October 8, 1987

Had there been a breeze, my dear friend Dan would have swayed gently upon us; but there was no breeze, so he just hung there.

Limp.

Upseats.

He wore only gym shorts and the two bulky ankle bracelets which held him at the mercy of the huge chrome contraption from which he dangled. His eyes were the clearest I'd seen them since he was eight. His mouth gaped wide in a rictus of silent agony leaving his orthodontist-made plates to wobble with which I snipped my Bloody Mary.

The sight of my friend in such pain was too much for me. I turned my attention to the crisp stalk of celery with which I snipped my Bloody Mary. (I pride myself on my courage in the face of other people's pain.)

Finnally, his features settled as the initial discomfort of the procedure passed. I fine tuned the vodka/teaspoon ratio in my glass.

"And how is our slothlike patient today?" I asked.

"This is killing me," he grumbled. "Au contraire, man inverted am I corrected him. "This procedure is all that keeps you from feeding the worms." I crouched down and put my cigarette between his lips. He drew on it gratefully and a long sigh left his nose. He ejected it without decorum.

We were in a private clinic in Wisconsin where Dan underwent his thirty yearly transfusions-out with the old, in with the new, bold-squad tickets to the event. The name was necessary by Dan's rather liberal intake of alcohol and various other cerebral paving crews. Without the procedure, Dan is prone to fits of senseless babbling, the most recent one lasting twelve years. I had once considered asking the doctor why Dan had to be suspended upside down for the procedure, but his shrunken-head necklace didn't seem to invite questioning.

"Shall I raise you?" I asked. In my concern for Dan's comfort I had located the controls for the machine which dangled him.

A HEAP O' WORDS BY PEDER SWEENEY

"Please observe three items, dear boy," said I.
"Three?"

"Item one: a pile of money which currently belongs to you. Don't try to swing it; you'll pull out your discharge tube and it'll be yucky."

"Ahhh...item two," I toyed with the ostrich feather. "Item three is the exposed soles of your feet. Am I offered one hundred?"

"Wait! I think I can name that tune in only two items!"

"Item one: your ignition system. Item two: your gas tank."

"Ugh...uhh..." responded I.
"I think I'm getting a funny nose!"

"You're gonna drown!!!"

"Gleeps!"

"Well, I guess this is farewell, old chum."

"Yeah...or you could just hand me a kleenex."

"Possible...am I offered one hundred?"

Even while Americans admire her (Nancy Reagan's) "Just Say No" to drugs campaign, there is a lingering perception that she is somehow the power behind the throne, the woman who stage-manages her famous husband and keeps his staff in line.

(Aren't we getting a bit personal here? P.S.)

Again I am in the peculiar position of having more space than material so I will again extend this invitation. Any member of the Harper community (faculty, staff or student) who would like to see their work published in the winter semester, Page Five would just be page. We will be filled with syndicated, unfunny come panels and the like, unchallenging crossword puzzles. The idea this semester was to give one page over to the people who make up Harper, to provide a forum for entertainment pieces that would not otherwise exist.

Let's try this. About a month from now I'll publish a Graft Wall composed entirely of your input. The stuff you'd like to spray on the side of "A" Building. Anything you'd like to say (the briefer the better), the way you'd like to say it. Let me worry about Carlin's 7.

Volleyball team forces five games in loss

by Bill Kugelberg

Don't tell the Harper volleyball team they only count in horse-shoes and hand grenades, because at this point in the season, they are experts on games.

The host Hawks fell victim to Rock Valley Tuesday night, 15-12, 15-11, 5-15, 11-15 and 6-15.

"There have definitely been some improvements," coach Audrey Randall said. "We did well considering the circumstances."

The Hawks were forced to play without key player, Julie Howard.

"The two subs we had to bring in played excellent," Randall added.

According to Randall, Jo Ann Jesus came through with a 15-point game and Jill Jurik did a tremendous job with one night's practice.

For a team who has just started playing together this year, the Hawks have come very close to victory in the last several matches.

"The things that broke down had to do with inexperience of a young team," Randall said. "But things are improving and we hope to have them down by the end of the season."

Hawks fly past Apaches, 22-7, undefeated streak continues.

Balanced offense and tough defense put record at 5-0. Post-game pushing match takes excitement away from game

by Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

A post-game pushing and shoving match between Harper and Illinois Valley was a good attempt to overshadow the Hawks' 22-7 win.

Harper's streak of six consecutive wins is now at seven.

It was 11-7 lead in the third quarter when the Hawks forced a turnover and ran up a 21-yard touchdown run by sophomore running back Dan Martin. Drake Jackson ran in the conversion and the Hawks took a 12-7 lead.

Martin and Jackson combined for 166 ground yards on 44 attempts to outlast the whole Apache team.

The Apaches were unable to score again as the incredible defense shut them down the rest of the game.

In the second quarter, Snyder hit Dale Praise for a 30-yard pass for a 16-7 lead with the 2-point conversion coming from Martin.

Dale Praise led all receivers in receptions with 8 catches for 144 yards.

Then with 17 seconds left in the 4th, Harper's Arnold Nutting recovered a fumble and passed it to the end hall 78-yards upfield for a touchdown and an early 22-7 Hawk lead.

The Hawks have outscored opponents 140-27 this year while the stingy defense has not allowed a team to score more than 8 points.

After DuPage Chapparals beat Rock Valley upping their record to 4-1 to set the stage for next week's contest between DuPage and the Hawks. The game may be moved to the Rock Valley High School for the playoffs. The Hawks will travel to DuPage for the only regular season game between the teams and a 1 p.m. kickoff.

Baseball predictions- Just to state my credibility, last year at this time, I picked the Mets over the Twins in six games and the Red Sox to beat the Angels in five.

I then picked the Mets to win the Series in six games. Pretty good, huh?

Well, this year my astrological equation tells me the Tigers will beat the Twins in 6 games and the Red Sox to beat the Angels in five.

He picked the Cards to finish first, the Twins to finish second,

Well, one out of four doesn't get you far, does it?

Speech Team student arrested with cap gun

By Larry Paulus
Editor-in-Chief

A member of the Harper Speech Team was arrested last Friday morning for carrying a dangerous weapon while practicing a speech before leaving for a speech meet.

Andrew Balazic, a first-year Speech Team member, was rehearsing an "after dinner speech" (an original speech designed to entertain the audience) at 8:30 AM while wanting to practice his speech before leaving for a speech meet.

Andrew Balazic, a first-year Speech Team member, was rehearsing an "after dinner speech" (an original speech designed to entertain the audience) at 8:30 AM while wanting to practice his speech before leaving for a speech meet.

Balazic's speech was on driving in California, the gun a reference to the multitude of highway shootings on California freeways.

Apparently a bystander saw the gun being held and notified Police. When police eventually arrested Balazic, he questioned him, confiscated the gun, and released him. No charges were filed.

The gun was returned to the Speech Team's rehearsal and trip sponsor, Marcus Lirona, in time for the meet.

Public Safety Chief Kevin King said that while Balazic could in fact have been charged with disturbing the peace, that when Balazic was able to prove it was not a threat,

"If he was a justifiable call I could see no malicious intent, so we released the gun to his coach."

Harper counselors care

By Pearl Henderson
Managing Editor

Student Development has zeroed in on one of the main problems of Harper College students. Beginning this semester they will implement a new program focused on three areas: Interpersonal, Life Management, Intrapsychic, and Intellectual.

Jean Kindle, dean of student development said, "My job is to coordinate programs and services that facilitate students in their academic work as well as their social development."

We try to go beyond what the student is doing academically," she said.

By group counseling, group projects and groups in the classes, we're trying to focus on having more of the students by working more closely with the faculty," Kindle said.

"Not knowing what you want to do has a lot of personal parts to it. We would like more input from students to see where they can make improvement," she said.

Student Development consists of four offices, and four resource centers. The four offices focus on assessment & testing, health services, job placement, and community counseling. At the local level, the resource centers focus on career planning, general student development, and new students.

Building A is the Career Planning Center.

Here the career and personal counseling is done. If the student doesn't have a clear direction or isn't quite sure what career would suit them this is where they would come.

Jean Kindle
Dean of Student Development

Buildings D and I are the General Student Development Centers.

If you are a student that needs help in transfer information, educational planning, or personal counseling you would go there.

New Student Center

Focused primarily on new students. Whether they are just starting, about to start, or they already have decided to attend. Coordinating new student orientation, which this summer accommodated over 1,000 incoming students, would be handled by these counselors.

"I think it's important that students get off to a good start so I am very committed to a thorough orientation program for new students," said Frances Brantley, assistant professor and student development faculty member.

All four centers work with traditional as well as the returning students.

The community counseling center is opened to the public and there is a small fee for specialized counseling.

According to Brantley there is a really broad range of objectives that the counselors want to accomplish.

"Something what I do is very specific and sometimes it is very broad because students aren't focused yet," she said.

"We try to meet students' needs. Brantley said, "I give support and assistance for whatever the student needs. Frequently it is in the educational plan what will transfer, classes in take."

Brantley has 14 full-time, ten part-time faculty, counselors, and one new counselor, Mary Beth Bussert. The hiring of counselors is done by a Harper committee process consisting of personnel from all over the campus such as student development, admissions, and faculty members.

It's a field that people naturally gravitate toward increasing their education," Kindle said.

The Harper College student is not just a student, according to Kindle, "You're not just a person who wants to learn. And as such we want to help you grow and develop all you can."

"Our whole philosophy is to help students succeed," she said. "We would like to develop more programs that will help the student, this is our goal."

Cement Block Falls: No one injured

By Douglas Ray

A large cylindrical cement block weighing approximately three tons fell from the ceiling of the poster room in Building A.

The accident occurred when a hole was being drilled in the ceiling of a building to install a ventilation shaft on Thursday October 14.

Darrell Riche, supervisor of the Speech Team's rehearsal and trip sponsor, Marcus Lirona, in time for the meet.

Public Safety Chief Kevin King said that while Balazic could in fact have been charged with disturbing the peace, that when Balazic was able to prove it was not a threat, ceiling knocking loose ceiling tile and dislodging the legs of the table it landed on.

King said the poster room is one of the few rooms outside the means to ensure that no one entered the room during the coming.

Shortly after the incident students and faculty began investigating the broken room.

They found a cement block laying on top of the table, ceiling tile remnants and a metal trash can.

The ceiling device used to hold the block in place had been drilled after the hole had been drilled. "A garbage can" was used to catch the cement block when it fell.

Delayed by inclement weather, the clean up was completed four days later, Monday October 12. The ventilation shaft was also completed.

Prime Software

Presentation

By Douglas Ray

Prime Software, owned by Compufact, presented software in H building to encourage the public to enroll in (CAD/CAM) courses and to get trained on Prime software.

Introduction to CAD (Computer Aided Design) and design/graphics is the course in which graphic principles are taught to computer users. A schematic illustration is typed in using software programs.

Additonal CAD (Computer Aided Manufacturing) uses the technology of digital computers to enhance the manufacturing of products.

The presentation was advertised in local newspapers and according to Orville Northstrom, "The announcements didn't get much attention," he said. "The initial reaction towards the success of the event was 'poor' although the turnout was good."

Compufact had a higher opinion of the turn-out.

Northstrom confided that "For our purpose this (prime presentation) was very successful."

There are five other presentations in the planning stage. The next presentation is tentatively set for November or December. "We do not make a point of endorsing any of these software companies," added Northstrom.

Northstrom mentioned the possibility of introducing artificial intelligence.

Artificial intelligence, also called smart system and expert systems, refers to a computer that can make decisions about a situation without being programmed.

Orville Northstrom, CAD/CAM Manager, used the example of a robot on an assembly line that cannot find a designated part. A smart system could look for the part or perhaps

Education best remedy for AIDS

By Alva Chintland

Staff Writer

By Gina Larr

Staff Writer

Since its first appearance in the communities in 1981, the AIDS virus has grown to spandemic proportions.

Today AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) a virus which weakens our body's immune system, making us more vulnerable to a variety of life threatening illnesses. It is transmitted as our number one health concern.

On Tuesday October 11 from 7:30-10 pm in 3147, the Health Service sponsored AIDS update. What it means to have AIDS was presented by Jack Doherty, Director of Patient Services at Howard Brown Memorial Clinic in Chicago.

During the seminar, Doherty presents his audience with the facts and dispels the myths associated with AIDS.

Actually there are four ways of getting AIDS. The second common way is by having several intimate encounters with an infected person. Others include sharing needles, blood transfusions before

"We are no longer talking of risk groups, but risk behavior"

Jack Doherty

1984, 50% of the blood supply is now safe because of testing and prenatal contraction of this disease.

His presentation includes comparative statistics from the CDC, Centers for Disease Control, and the National Institutes of Health.

Jack Doherty included facts on why certain groups are at greater risk, and the importance of prevention and the different stages of AIDS.

Other speakers included safe sexual practices, advice for health care providers, and a slide show of AIDS facts, and a question and answer session.

Jack Doherty's presentation was held in Harper Hall on Wednesday, September 16, attended so many people that the first session was moved in the student center and sixty people were denied admission. The second session was held in Harper Hall, Service supervisor Rosemary Murray.

Murray believes Doherty's seminars are a good outlet for students, staff, and faculty who are interested in learning more about AIDS. But she believes that some people feel uneasy about attending the seminars.

During the presentation, Doherty said, "I am not saying to themselves, 'AIDS is not going to affect me.' I don't need to know (about it). I don't need to worry about it. I just need to walk in my room and do what I always do. That is, I have AIDS. It is essential that they go beyond their fears and attend the lecture."

Murray added that the staff of Health Services feels that whatever they can do to educate the students, staff, and faculty at Harper Hall, is important.

The Doherty's seminar was an excellent opportunity for the students, staff, and faculty to learn the truth about AIDS. The facts in the newspapers and magazines can be scary and unclear. You're always seeing word headlines of what's going on.

Murray is hoping for a large turnout for the subsequent seminars held in the spring.

Charity Benefit successful

One hundred twenty five Harper employees attended one of three meetings held to encourage donation to a charitable organization on October 12.

The first two meetings convened at 10 am and 2 pm with the third meeting at 11 pm for the night shift employees.

Donations were represented by display boards and a guest speaker which requested Harper employees to send in a pledge.

The guest speaker was a representative of Palatine Illinois Girl Scout Council, Salvatore Army, Palatine Township High School, Palatine Township Community Center, Palatine Township Community Center, and Cicero Township Association for the Handicapped.

There are three ways to make a pledge. The first is by mailing a check for a specified amount of money.

The second method is to become a lair sponsor by pledging a certain amount of money to be taken out of each pay check for one year.

The third method is to become a fair share and pledge from 4% to 10% of each paycheck for one year.

The goal of encouragement is to raise $10,000.00. By Friday October 13, over one hundred pledges were received totaling over ten thousand dollars.

Raffle prizes were awarded to those who made pledges. Among the raffle prizes were a gift certificate donated by Vicent's Restaurant, a gift certificate from the Emery Supply Store, books donated by Denise Birrenbaum bookstore, and two floral arrangements donated by Don McKay, son of Dr. Elizabith Hordern.

An open letter to Peder Sweeney

Dear Peder:

You have doubtless by now perused what is usually Page Five and found it to be merely page 5. This is a partial apology, and hopefully, a full explanation.

The piece you wrote is, as usual, excellent. Probably the greatest piece of prose I've mostly a man over 17 subject someone to a lambasting like that whether they deserve it or not (and you KNOW my feeling on whether our subject deserves it), when it accomplishes little more than elemen...carping him, is nonproductive and potentially counterproductive.

The apologetic part is that, I know, I gave you near carte-blanche on your page, and you haven't disappointed. I don't mean to abandon you on your first controversial page, but I know I was going to fight my corner, and I did.

For what it's worth, I did ask around before making my decision. Also for what it's worth, the prevailing opinion was to print it. So I can't even pass the buck. The buck was mine. Lesser two cents.

So, if you want, I'll leave me for a fuller explanation. As a matter of fact, if you want my job, after this last week, I'm available.

Letters to the Editor

Dear Harbinger,

I have really enjoyed Peder Sweeney's "Hump O'Wards". He is a good writer and very funny. I received one handwritten note that has articles are reuse of last year. While this doesn't ruin them, it gives them a reused feel, sort of like a David Letterman rerun.

These indeed old articles? If so, I would encourage Mr. Sweeney to write more. That is, he is still at that college.

Sincerely,
Dan Chambers

Editor's Note: Peder Sweeney is a diver, well, as a look at Page 5 will reveal. Peder will, in future be writing original articles most of the time, with repeats of his old popular column appearing from time to time (including an interview with Satan, coming later this month.)

...Off The Record...

By Carol A. Clarke
Staff Columnist

The cold weather has prompted many to search in their closets for sweaters. Last week I purchased a new one from the dark depths of a second closet only to find that it brought more warm memories than just any old wool sweater.

"Sweater sweater" is like to refer to it as old as the hills. It's the kind that you can't remember where it came from, how many colors it had, or if it might have been chosen in the first place. As far as I know, it may have just come with the house.

A boldfaced color that would remind you of something you'd wear for Halloween. It is sort of mauve, but more mauve. Almost as if it couldn't make up its mind what color it wanted to be.

The style is a cross between what I would guess to be the Jewish style and American style tomorrow this would be the first thing to go in the box.

This season a festoon caught me eye. I laughed at it. I took it off the hanger, for I'd put it away just as I had worn it last spring. I remembered getting it in my left pocket. It was still edible, so I unwrapped it and rolled it into my mouth while I started reading the contents of my right pocket.

I first extracted a piece of paper that had a phone number of a former classmate. She gave it, but I never finalized it because she had some questions concerning Philosophy and needed somebody else. Oh well, I hoped the answer was checked off, but wondering if she still needed help.

Presently not, but remembering her was a nice thought. Had she chosen a college to complete her schooling yet? Had she ever finished the Faulkner novel that she had in the winter?

The next item was a small distribution caused by the creased sleeve made the sweater almost fall off the hanger into my arms at 11 o'clock. I'm glad to see we can't be too careful.

I am sure you got 55 cents for it. I know 55 people that would give you the time of day instead of running for election in the next election, maybe you should see a psychologist for your English behavior.

Since my arms are longer than some of my kindred, I tend to plunge my hand into my pockets. My sweater pockets are so large that I've considered hanging it on the mantel at Christmas instead of my stockings since I could procure so much more.

Being a creature of habit, my hands found their inventing destination again and again. And, "Pocket" is Latin for "bottomless pit". I began to pull out the storage I had left behind last spring, rethermering all my old sticks of candy in my left pocket. It was still edible, so I unwrapped it and rolled it into my mouth while I started reading the contents of my right pocket.

At the first drop dissolved, I felt adequate time has passed and could stop spitting. However, the sermon was unusually long. So long, in fact, that congregation began to fidget. The bell now hung silent. The children continued to keep their hands to themselves and the adults, checking their watches and then shifting their eyes toward the back of the church until it reached each other.

The preacher, seeing he was losing his audience, began to speak harder on his lesson. But she ever finished the Faulkner novel that she had in the winter?

Since my arms are longer never remember where I've stashed it. Lastly, I found a button. I came to the conclusion that all swearers come equipped with a nonswearing button in their pocket when she cashed. The customary button brought back a fond memory of my grandmother. Yes, my grandmother. You know, the favorite butter story, every chance she got. Probably because it was the ONLY joke she knew.

Her children would here this tale everyone she found a button around the house. She'd tell us about the preacher who would place a cough drop in his mouth before he began his sermon on Sunday. When a cough drop dissolved, he felt adequate time has passed and could stop spitting. However, the sermon was unusually long. So long, in fact, that congregation began to fidget. The bell now hung silent. International Studies Program

London - All this, and credit, too

By Kim Otarowski
Features Editor

Traveling everywhere and anywhere in the world is a dream of many college students. One big problem exists, however, that of funds. There is, however, a program, International Studies Program (ISP), that enables students to travel and earn income credits!

A yellow pamphlet available in the counseling centers that gives a detailed explanation of the overseas study program. Here are some interesting points to consider:

The ISP, which begins in the fall semester, will offer opportunities to interested and qualified students to travel and study at one of Europe's oldest and most exciting cities - London. However, twenty-four other Illinois colleges now offer the ISP in the fall, spring and summer semesters.

Groups of students will attend small classes taught by American and British faculty at the University of London. Courses include British Culture and Society and a minimum of four other optional courses, ranging from Art History to Contemporary History to English literature, Shakespeare and Comparative Government. The students plus their advisors, counselor and two faculty members, Mrs. Jane Weller, 2220, and Mrs. Frances Bratley, 20-2343.

While in London, the students also have many extracurricular activities available to them. Bus and train excursions to various points of interest in Britain add diversity to the study plan. However, the guided walking tour of London's various museums and theaters are available.

Housing for the students is near the University and is included in the Program. As a brochure states, "Students will have breakfast at the residence hall and will eat dinner at a local pub after meals out, allowing more exposure to British society." If one wanted to cook for oneself, facilities are available in the residence kitchens.

In the "S" an exciting adventure sounds laborious, but, how does one qualify?

Fraser students must have a minimum of 2.5 hours of credit and a C (P) or at least 2.5 by the end of this Fall '87 semester. Also, an application form (see the yellow brochure) must be filled and submitted as soon as possible; the summer deadline is April 1st. If one is accepted, financial aid is offered.

The estimated student budget for the ISP is approximately $3,000. The $300 fee, paid directly to the sponsor, International Enrichment (IE), does not include independent travel, estimated at $30 per day, meals estimated at $10 per day, personal expenses, etc. These expenses are all the student's obligation and are to be paid directly to IE.

Furthermore, the bill does not cover flight costs, estimated at over $700 if IE handles the arrangements. Other arrangements, such as the one on March 16th, will help students with question and financial aid packages. Our scholarship is also available for ISP students and pays for the fees.

If you have a desire to ave a good walk to burn credit, then apply to the International Studies Program. It is an excellent opportunity.

Bonnie Koloc brings mix of old favorites and new music to Harper

By Lynn Paulin
Editor-in-chief and Deborah Difesa

The term "folk singer" evokes all sorts of images: smoky, back-porch blues; blues on train; blonde-haired, blue-eyed beauties singing about magic dragons and social reform.

But to those of us who grew up in the late sixties and early seventies, it conjures different pictures.

A "coffee house" that served no food, where you sat in more than a low stool set in a large room with carpeting and fishing chairs, mystically called "Amazing Grace." A place that one could sit for a few hours away from a performer of the caliber of a Corky Siegel, a Bob Gibson (the singer, not the Baseball pitcher), or Bonnie Koloc.

Or another picture: A bar in "Old Town" called The Earl of Old Town, where, for eight bucks and a non-smoking minimum (there seemed to be a smoking section at the time), you could see blues and folk legends like Bonnie Raitt, Leon Redbone, and Bonnie Roke.

Notice a pattern here? This is the same Bonnie Koloc who will be visiting Harper on Oct. 23rd.

Koloc, who says she was cast as a "folkie" years ago before she was a female, who played acoustic guitars and was working hard to shed her "dimensional image."

Koloc's singing-songwriting repertoire has expanded to include some jazz, pop blues and gospel music. Most of the songs she performs are her own creation. She also sings standards, art songs and originals.

Her eighth album, "With You On My Side," is due to be released November 10th on Flying Fish Records.

Bonnie Koloc will be performing at Harper in the Auditorium Theater in 1143 at 8pm on Friday, October 23rd.

She will be accompanied by her band, all of whom have outstanding credits.

Bassist John Brancato

acoustic, Michael Cates (the vocal), Howard Levy on piano (he worked with Chuck Mangione and has collaborated with Bonnie on several new songs); saxophone and flute player Steve Eisen (he played on the sound track of the Super Bowl Shuffle video) and Phil Grauer on the drums (he worked with Laurel Masse of Manhattan Transfer).

In addition to the concert on Friday, Harper is offering a free workshop hosted by Koloc, entitled "Artistic Self Expression Through Singing, Songwriting and Performance," at 7pm in room P202 on Thursday, October 22. This workshop is designed to show how to free up your creative energy through artistic self-expression.

Tickets for the concert may be purchased at the Box Office in J137 Monday through Thursday, 10am to 4pm or call ext. 2552.

The Human Performance Lab

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Human Performance Lab has expanded and grown over the past six years. Since its birth in 1981, Dr. George Hoffman, Director of the Human Performance Lab has budgeted, taken care of administrative business, and overseen programs for the Human Performance Lab.

The Human Performance Lab was developed for two reasons. The first was to offer students the opportunity to work directly with patients and physicians, addition to class room studying. The second reason was that "The major hospitals... Northwest Hospital, etc., do not have a cardiac program... for our patients said Hoffman."

Currently the lab has seven groups. The Cardio Fitness Technology program, the first program to initiate the lab, was designed to give students majoring in applied science experience in a cardiac fitness programs to better prepare them for a job as a competitive exercise specialist. Classes range from HED 101 Human Anatomy to PSY 101 Introduction to Psychology.

Besides the Cardio Exercise program, many students have commented about how unique they were without any lab experience. Orville commented that the success of the Cardiac Exercise program produces much more "solid" students. The Cardiac Rehabilitation program provides a place for patients that have recently suffered from heart attack or a similar traumatic experience to receive both physical as well as psychological therapy. There are three stages of rehabilitation. The first phase begins while the patient is an in-patient. It involves closely supervised exercise, physical nutrition therapy, and psychological therapy. The second phase similarly requires physical supervision, but for a maximum of about three days a week with an out-patient. The third phase requires less physician supervision and a more sporadic approach. This allows the help patients through the second and third phase back to a productive and enjoyable life.

Another program the Human Performance Lab offers is the Diabetes Exercise program which concentrates on education about the disease and the effects of exercise on the patient's condition. The program is supervised by Dr. George Moto of the Suburban Endocrinology and Diabetes Center (SEDC). A Nutrition program, taught by Niki Salmons a registered dietician, educates students on weight control, well balanced diets, and a pretrial exercise class.

Finally, the Cardiac Risk Assessment program is designed to determine the status of one's cardiovascular system and advise a physician on treatment. A complete line of tests are performed and during a consultation period afterwards a cardiologist will discuss results and suggest treatment programs. The assessment includes exercise stress test (physician supervised), lung function test, body fat analysis, blood pressure response to exercise, flexibility assessment, and optimally personal inventory to evaluate risk factors such as smoking, blood fats, cholesterol, and associated lipoproteins (IDL), nutrition, and lifestyle analysis.

The Physical Fitness program is also an analysis program for people up to age 65. The analysis is comparable except that no physician is available.

A relatively new program this is only its first semester. Physical Reconditioning program allows use of the Human Performance Lab Monday through Friday from 11am until 1pm for physical fitness.

Health Corner

An update from Health Services

Have you ever wondered what alcohol can and will do to you? Well look at this:

It can depress you. The toxic ingredient in alcohol slows down the brain and nervous system, and can create physical inactivity and dependency.

It can affect behavior. Even moderate drinking causes loss of control and erratic changes. Heavy drinking may give vent to self-destructive or impulsive urges and can lead to physical violence.

It affects the central nervous system. Damage may include diminished vision, loss of coordination, memory loss, loss of sensation, hallucinations, and temporary brain damage.

It can affect the liver. Alcohol injures and eventually destroys the liver's functions. Heavy drinking can cause progressive damage, chemical imbalance, inflammation, and cirrhosis.

It can irritate the digestive tract. Excessive drinking can cause diarrhea, nausea, and vomiting, ulcers, inflammation of stomach tissue, and pancreatitis can affect absorption of nutrients.

It can affect the heart. Alcohol makes the heart work harder, increases blood pressure, and increases risk of coronary artery disease, high blood pressure, heart pain, irregular heart beat, and heart attack.

It can lead to malnutrition, cancer, psychological problems, gynecological and sex problems.

So be sensible about alcohol, understand the dangers, know your limits, set an example for others. That's all there is to it.

For other information about alcohol and its effects, visit the Health Service office, A126, Room 101, North Hall. Alcohol Awareness Week, October 19-24.

New life after SMU "Death"

Reprinted from CPS.

Two weeks after taking office, the new president of Southern Methodist University finally talked about the sports scandal that has made SMU into a synonym for all of what's wrong with intercollegiate athletics.

The scandal, president A. Kenneth Pye said Aug. 29, has a much to do with education at SMU than what's happening in the Permian Gulf.

About the time Pye assumed office, the National Collegiate Athletic Association (NCAA) suspended athletes from Ohio State, Pittsburgh and Alabama for allegedly taking money from agents.

During the last several years, athletes have been involved in a seemingly endless string of drug problems, crimes, classroom cheating, gambling and other unsavory incidents.

In response, the American Council on Education (ACE) organized a group of college presidents to work for reforms in several states -- Ohio, Michigan, California and, last week, Texas -- have passed laws to punish sports agents and corrupt sports boosters who violate NCAA rules.

More prominently, for campus sports last May, the Associated Press poll found that half of all Americans believe intercollegiate athletics are "overemphasized" in U.S. education.

"What the public is demanding," observed Sheldon Sternbach of the ACE, "is more stringent rules, and most schools are following that trend."

"College sports are definitely moving toward more regulation," added Marc Dreyfus of the Institute for Trends Research in Wilmington, N.C. Not long ago, in June, 1980, cocaine-related death of University of Maryland basketball star Len Bias, the revelations that several Georgia athletes were given special academic treatment or the firing of a New Mexico coach for allowing his players to travel -- seemed to sour public opinion as much as the SMU scandal.

"Public reaction to the SMU scandal," Dreyfus said, "was very intense."

Last year, the NCAA found SMU boosters gave $61,000 in illicit payments to 13 football players, "hooked up" with several admissions and then tried to cover it all up.

Texas Gov. Bill Clements, recently elected, signed a bill and approved the payments while he served on SMU's Board of Governors.

The NCAA in turn, imposed a "deadly penalty" on the school, barring it from playing football this year and most of 1981.

"Yes," said SMU athletic department spokesman Tom McWilliams, "we're hopeful that past mistakes won't be repeated. There will be no special admissions for any athlete who receives more than SMU's requirements, and there will be no more payments."

Still, others were waiting around to hear what Pye, a Duke professor who took the SMU job after the scandal forced out former SMU president, L. Donald Shirelles, as well as SMU's football coach and athletic director in the last year, would do about sports.

His answer in his Aug. 29 speech to SMU's freshman class was to tell the past offenders:

Pye made a "plea for change" to the freshmen to help recruit promising athletes for SMU from their old high schools, a switch from the high-pressure recruiting of high school seniors by the previous administration.

Pye also promised he will soon unveil a 10-point program for improving academics at the school.

Tennis team downs Oakton, 7-0

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

The Harper women's tennis team, consisting of five first-year players and a rookie coach, had their first meet on Tuesday afternoon as they dominated visiting Oakton, 7-0.

"I think we are improved from the first part of the season," coach Linda Chamberlain said. "Oakton's not at their caliber right now and they weren't that tough."

The Hawks went ahead on the mere fact it even started as Oakton did not have a fifth player to play Harper's fifth singles player, Cheryl Pisarcik.

When the meet was completed, first singles player, Cheryl Pisarcik had dominated her opponent, 6-2, 6-1.

Harper's second singles player, Stephanie Gurecki was victorious, 3-6, 6-3, 6-1.

Lara Fermanak, Harper's third singles player, recorded the most lopsided victory of the day, 6-1, 6-2.

And Leisa Walter rounded out the rest of Oakton downing her opponent, 7-5, 6-0.

The victory put the Hawks over the .500 mark moving them to 5-4.

Lara (Fermanak) played as she is capable of playing. She has had moments believing in herself, but today she didn't.

Chamberlain also noted the play of Lisa is improving. I'm really pleased," she said.

Last week, the Hawks tapped their team to compete in the NIC Tournament and the results were less than desirable.

Pisarcik went to the finals in first singles, but lost to the eventual winner, Vicki Vass.

The Hawk's first doubles team was the first-seeded team but lost and became the byes.

Harper's second doubles team, Cheryl Pisarcik and Lisa Fermanak lost in the first round of the second singles, while Fermanak lost in the final round.

Chamberlain didn't know what to expect as the season opened.

This being my first year, it sucks as they were defeated, 15-2, 13-9, 15-5.

We were out hustled, Randall said. "They forced us into mistakes and wore us down in the first game."

After the win against Wright, Randall received more than he can give her.

The loss is disappointing, she said. "I expected more today and I didn't get it."

The Hawks will compete in the NICAA Sectional Tournaments weekend of Oct 30-31, which comes two weeks after the first meet.

The layoff will definitely work to our advantage, Randall said. "We will have time to work on a lot of things in practice."

The Harper volleyball team knows the secret of putting great effort into something and not getting any results as they has been the story all season.

But the Hawks (1-17) broke that trend on Tuesday night as they downed Wright College at the College of Lake County in a triangular meet, 15-11, 12-15, 15-9.

"We really played our game," coach Andrea Randall said. "We set our offensive attack and played our game."

Tuesday afternoon the Hawks traveled to College of DuPage to face the scrappy Chapparals, a much tougher opponent than Wright.

Harper came up on the short

In a game dubbed "The Rematch", due to Harper's last victory over DuPage in the NIC Championship, the third-ranked Hawks knew they had to win to make the season a success.

And just like they have been all year the visiting Hawks (6-0) downed their opponent last Saturday, 25-20.

The Hawks (6-0) had a chance to go ahead of the Hawks, but sophomore Don Lee intercepted a Tom Minnick pass to ice the Hawk victory.

Harper scored 19 points in the second half while Snyder threw three touchdowns, two to Dale Prasse and one to Jeff Dudas. The Chaps Minnick ran one touchdown in the first half as the Hawks were ahead 19-6.

The Hawks freshman Todd Testo led all rushers with 90 yards on 14 carries and sophomore Mike Martin added 56 yards on 16 carries.

A majority of Testo's yards came in the third quarter as he rushed for a 53-yard touchdown score to put the Hawks ahead, 25-6.

The Chaps scored on a pair of touchowns to end the game and give the Hawks the victory.

Hawks' quarterback Snyder completed 12 of 16 passes for 171 yards and three of his touchowns on the day. Snyder's favorite receiver, Dale Prasse had four receptions for 64 yards and two touchdowns.

The Hawks will travel to Triton this week to play the Trojans, a team they defeated earlier in the year, 15-7.

Courts finished

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

With the completion around the campus here completed, a section of the school's faculty has already been finished. The only difference between the two buildings is that the one was started late this summer while the other was started in the fall of 1986.

It's quite almost a year long delay, the tennis courts behind Building M have been completed and played host to the women's tennis team and their opponents on Tuesday afternoon.

The ribbon cutting ceremony was reported in the Harbinger expected to be done by the first midfall of the year.

But with only one home meet left on the 1987 schedule, the courts were put to their first use on Tuesday afternoon.

During the construction, the teams team saw one coach leave and another take her place, while playing their home games at a local Palatine court.

Tournament and Chamberlain has high hopes for her first singles and first doubles team.

"I think we are improved," Chamberlain said. "We've got some new players and have had to learn a system for just about every match this year. I am happy as punch we have done this well with the formation of the team."

After the tournament, the Hawks will go to Lisle, Illinois to play in the NJCAA Regional impression in her first year of tennis at Harper.

"Cheryll can do anything she plays," Chamberlain said. "She played first doubles for Hersey last year and this year she has improved her first doubles and first singles spot."

The Hawks close out the season in the NJCAA Tournament on October 22-24.

Trustee Candidate profiles

By David Howard

Staff Writer

On October 15 the Harper College Board of Trustees Candidates' forum will held. The seven candidates were about issues that are presently before the Board, including the appointment of a new president and spoke about what they would like to do for Harper as a trustee.

In this issue I will present to you the three who will be running for four-year terms and will be profiled in my next issue.

Krys Howard tries at Palatine and is a Homemaker.

Volunteer. Howard is presently the Chairman of the Board of Trustees at Harper.

In the past she has worked as a Chairman of the Board of Suburban United Way of Suburban Chicago, Vice-Chairman of the United Way of Metra, Board Chairwoman of United Way of Palatine, Chairman of the Board of Directors at Northwest Community Hospital.

Howard believes her past experience will help her in her role on the Board of Trustees. This includes six years as a Harper College Trustee, and three years as a member of the Harper Foundation.

She adds: "It is essential that the [new] president lead the college in strategic and long-term planning, not crisis management."

Howard would like to see the Board of Trustees take an active role in the carrying out of the mission of the college, and the Harper Foundation.

The [new] president must have a commitment to continued academic excellence, creating supportive services for students, financial stability, development of additional funding and the expansion of campus facilities.

Michael Miller is a resident of Arlington Heights and is currently working as a financial advisor.

Miller was appointed to the Board of Trustees by Mayor Harper in September of 1986. He is also presently the Director of the Young Center for the Kenneth W.

Miller feels that his experience as a factor of a mental health center for many years, his seventeen years of experience in managing financial, legal and administrative affairs of several business organizations, the year that he has been a trustee of

Harper, and his background as a lawyer and a CPA will enable him to serve effectively as a trustee.

Miller was asked why he is seeking election as a trustee. His reply:

"My principal reason is to fulfill my obligation to all citizens, for community service. He adds that he believes he can make a meaningful contribution to the college as a trustee."

Miller feels that the new president must be an effective manager, capable of maintaining the atmosphere of teamwork that exists today.

Milner adds that the main concern for the Board of Trustees: the hiring of a new president, the completion of the new library, the expansion of the building of more classrooms or library space, provided this can be done at reasonable cost to the tax payers and implementation of aggressive marketing.

Miller feels that his experience as a factor of a mental health center for many years, his seventeen years of experience in managing financial, legal and administrative affairs of several business organizations, the year that he has been a trustee of

Harry R. Sandefur resides in Buffalo Grove and is the President of Sandefur & Company, a Public Relations Consulting firm. Presently he is on the faculty of students at Northeastern Illinois University College of Business & Management, Public Relations Department of America Board of Directors, Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce, Public Relations Committee.

Sandefur is presently the President of the Chicago Chapter Air Force Association. Sandefur was involved with the Chicago Rotary Club in 1983-84.

He adds that Sandefur's qualifications he says, "As a career Air Force officer, I was given many leadership and management opportunities which I think will valuable to the board."

"As a freshman it's a great privilege to serve my school as a monarch," said Moeney.

Keats commented that she decided to run for Queen because, "I believe in Harper and felt this was just one more way to show my support of the college and its students."

Does Biden scandal reflect student morals?

By Gloria Carr

Staff Writer

Formerly Joseph Biden didn't do anything to admit to plagiarism, according to an attorney for a student surveyed conducted by LeRoy Motola.

After being confronted with the charge, Biden (D-Del.) didn't do anything to admit to plagiarism, according to an attorney for a student surveyed conducted by LeRoy Motola.

Those facts include borrowing phrases and speeches from Robert Kennedy and British Labor Leader Neil Kinnock. Biden claimed of being in the top half of his class but actually he was in the bottom half, and a partial scholarship he did receive as a full scholarship.

As reported by the Associated Press Service, 23 students were accused of cheating in the 1986-87 school year at Duke University. Those proving Biden was not alone when it comes to cheating.

Harper students were polled: "Have you ever copied off someone else's paper or source?" Fifty-two percent of the students said they had while 47.6% said no. The administration results showed 21.4% had copied off their naming a source and 78.5% never had.

Steve Corza admits to copying a word or two from a paper I did last year at the college. I attained a got a B+, it was a little bit scared but I said what again?

Often times it is difficult for students to distinguish plagiarism, and may be confused with self-plagiarism in order to clearly identify plagiarism. Conscience plagiarism is the appropriation of ideas, language, or work of another without acknowledgement.

An example of teachers seeing the same paper when Mrs. Judy Kaplow, an English teacher, caught a student plagiarizing last semester. I was surprised at the case of plagiarism and I say determine to prove it. I went to every area library looking for the source. She had taken the exact same material and also took out the entire passage the student had marked.

Susan Alter, a history and political science teacher, comments on another form of plagiarism. It is also, "A form of copying from another student and handing in the same paper." She adds that any instances ahead of time that any cheating or plagiarism results in an F in the course.

Alter recalls one incident that left her indomitable. "Several years ago two students did a project. The papers were basically the same in wording though the paper, ironically the two students were police officers."

LeRoy Motola makes the distinction between academic plagiarism and conscience plagiarism. Conscience plagiarism is when a student takes "large chunks of unquoted material and that comes in word for word from a source utilized in the bibliography." Unconscious plagiarism occurs in segments in the paper. When Motola does conscience plagiarism has occurred he gives the student an F for the course and refers the case to student affairs.

Dr. Bonnie Hearn, vice-president of student affairs, says she conducts hearings with students and can decide if accused of some form of plagiarism.

Generally they have been placed on probation with specific disciplinary actions.

They've learned the lesson of working honestly and independently.

Public safety provides security

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

A scenario that is not uncommon on our campus is as follows: A student arrives home from the far reaches of the day, drives into a parking space, shuts off the ignition, grabs some books and walks to the dorm. But before the student realizes the ultimate has happened - the keys are locked in the car! What to do?

There is someone available from the Department of Public Safety in Bldg. B, twenty-four hours a day, seven days a week. One could go in Bldg. B, or one could call ext. 2380 or 2491 (or, for emergencies, ext. 2213.)

Besides helping locked out students, what does Public Safety do? According to their brochure, the officers are "empowered to restrain persons who are attempting to commit a crime and as possible offenders as well as possible victims in crimes." Each Public Safety officer must fulfill the requirements established by the Illinois Law on Government Employees. Government Officers Training Board minimum training standards as set by state statute.

Generally, the officers protect the students, faculty and staff of Harper College. The officers do have the right and authority to stop and question anyone on campus, given probable cause.

Probable cause, as defined by Chief of Public Safety Kevin King, is "based on what a reasonable person would assume and regulations." For traffic violations, the probable cause is there or not, either one gives through a ticket or the officer can either give over the speed limit or not. However, King notes, officers are required to use their individual judgment in cases such as this.

If an officer believes he/she has probable cause for questioning, the officer may temporarily question a person for up to 15 minutes. If the person in question presents further cause for suspicion, officer may take that person into custody for further questioning into the Public Safety Office in Bldg. B.

Custody is, virtually synonymous with arrest. State statutes are, says King, fairly clear on when officers can take people into custody. An officer can only do so if he believes the person has committed a crime, though, the officer must read the person his/her Miranda Rights and no, one does not have "cavity rights," which means the officer can only question the person to make a reasonable number of calls, up to 10 or so.

Also, officers may make limited stops during temporary questioning, but only for weapons and only when the officer has "reasonable grounds to believe he or [someone else] is in danger of being attacked."

If an actual arrest is made, which does occasionally occur at Harper, the officer will search to prevent their escaping, to protect the officer or others from harm, or to "discover the evidence of the crime."

On the lighter note, Public Safety also provides a lost and found service, a security service at special campus events, a dog at the police station, and provides a interpreting service for immigrants and hearing impaired persons for sign language, as well as for children for identification purposes. They also provide first aid and C.P.R. and provide an escort service.

Board of Trustees elections - the best and the worst.

Well, after a five week hiatus, we're back to the Board of Trustees. On November 3, an election will be held to fill two five-year terms and two one-year terms on the Board. Sixty people are running for the two five-year terms, and five are running for the two four-year terms.

Considering the fact that this Board will have responsibility for some of the most important decisions this college has faced in years, a detailed election of a new president will attempt an analysis of the candidates, based on their own responses to issues raised at a candidates forum last week.

First the six-year terms: This one is pretty easy. Aris Harcourt, current Board Chairman, has provided a stable and sound basis of leadership. She has led with a sense of humor, an innovative and active Board. She also comes in with some other impressive credentials. In addition to the Harper College Trustee position, she served as the Chairman of the Board of Directors for the United Way of Suburban Chicago, Chairman of the Board of Directors for Northwest Community Hospital, and Vice-Chairman of the Board of United Way-Crusade of Mercy. A whole lot of experience.

Mary Miller is our second choice. Miller, citing the gap between an increasingly technological society and the large number of people unprepared to meet the needs of the workplace, was a strong advocate of community college reform. She has been appointed to the Board, having been approved Sept. 1986. Endorsed.

The third candidate, Mr. Harry Sunderland, deserves special mention. Not only is the Harbinger mentioning Mr. Sunderland, we would like to give him vigorous support. In an effort to raise money, Mr. Sunderland would apparently do away with the varsity athletic program, as well as scrapping a new theatre. To add fuel to Mr. Sunderland's quote on the athletic program was follows: "...The sports program is not be looked at and possibly eliminated if it is not profitable and it's not gaining anything for the community college besides expenditure of funds."

I can appreciate the need for fiscal responsibility, but there are things in the educational system at least as important. One of which is the student-teacher who has the possibility of an affiliation with a four-year school that he or she otherwise might not be able to afford. Such narrow foresight should not be rewarded.

The reason that even if Mr. Sunderland is elected, the likelihood of the athletic program being cancelled is slim, but I think this attitude alone should eliminate him from the possibility of holding such an influential office.

Next week we'll cover the crowded ballot on the four-year terms.

...Off The Record...

Midterms are upon us!

"Let's not get testy," I tell myself. This little pep talk is done with only half a smile since I do have to say that the first test is the worst test. Coupled with that, make it a midterm and you have made uncontrollable behavior.

The first test gives a student hints as to the "method of madness" practiced by the instructor. Now if the test is also a midterm, you may have another chance for a grade.

Sixty minutes remained past the allotted minute class change time. Others occupied their seats well into the next hour. I sat quietly in my seat, waiting. All she could mutter was, "Call me?"

Frantically, I began to leaf through my notes, which I wanted for my very first test. I had forgotten anything. Did I remember to get the notes the day I was absent? Had I reviewed those topics mentioned in class? Will I be able to resist the pressures that push everything from my brain the second I write my name? Oh, I hoped so.

It is hard to say that the first test is the worst test. Coupled with that, make it a midterm and you have made uncontrollable behavior.

Confused yet?

I always wonder whether the "free question" would be marked as wrong if you answered it? No, your answer would be wrong. Of course, I am incorrect. You said you did not, so that means you did not know.

Confused yet?

If you answered, Yes, Do you honest?

A few days ago, I've sampled during the midterm this semester have been:

- A answer
- B answer
- C Both A and B
- D answer
- E Both C and D
- F is that confusing?
- G OR
- H A answer

Are you honest?

If you answered, Yes,

Do you like this class?

No.

Will you pass this class? Probably not.

Is it an option?

Now I'm confused.

For once maybe I'll be fortunate to figure it all out before finals.

Culturequest: How to find the ghoul of your dreams

by Barbara Davis
Entertainment Writer

We have passed mid-point in October. The trees are turning colors, leaves are falling, and good old fashioned looking at pretty colors doesn't keep us entertained for hours on end, some genius invented Halloween to break up the monotony. Yes, know there is more to it than that, but that's what it all comes down to right? Entertainment for all ages. I once was rather fond of all the things that were more trick-or-treating. Little did I know that it was child's play (literally) compared to Halloween in college.

Now we are more mature. That simply means that we dress up in adult-size costumes of things that aren't even plastic. What's even better than that is we don't have to wear our coats over them. Many of us will travel to other campuses for the "major" bashes or to private parties.

There is yet another aspect of Halloween that is fun and exciting. If you think that you are too mature for silly scary nonsense...don't bother to read on.

For the rest of us, if you dare, the haunted house scene in the Chicago land area looks quite promising. Here I've rounded up the location of some of the houses in the area. If you are annoyed by little goblins, some include hours for adults only.

Not Bad at all

by Lisa Barton

If you're one of those continue stories who have not yet pulled your neighborhood record show to pick up a copy of Bad raise your hand

Um hum. Just as expected, not many of you are there. At least, not too many willing to admit it. Despite, or perhaps because of, all the hype surrounding the new record, I still remain skeptical. Well, let me in. This isn't a test. You have a sacred chance, one night, to see if you like one you won't feel good by feeling bad.

You can't help but feel it; surely listening to it is impossible. Michael Jackson is so hot, it will move all but the dead.

Correction: Even since the dear departed may start snapping the fingers.

It is one powerful album. Like Thriller, it crosses the rock/disco dividing line, superbly mastering both genres.

The album is a hard-jamming, explosive number, not only "easy to dance to," as Dick Clark's would say, but forces you to move your body, generating rhythmic pulses down your spine. (Note: This can be extremely dangerous when driving down the highway.)

Other dance tunes that straddle the rock/disco boundary include "Dirty Diana", "Speed Demon", and "Smooth Criminal", as well as "Another Part of Me", dueted by Stevie Wonder and Jimi Hendrix, featuring a duet with the Wonder man himself.

An additional dance number, "Leave Me Alone", is available only on the compact disc version. It does not fit in the LP, does not fit in the cassette, and is inadequate by any means.

This is one of Jackson's best-produced albums. Once again Quincy Jones is back, this time as co-producer and as Jackson as co-producer. From the synthesized keyboards on "Bad" to "Speed Demon's" sax and horns, each instrumental arrangement has been precisely set apart, and of course, spotlighted in their respective spotlights.

Music critics do not always guarantee a hit. Can Bad ever equal (much less surpass) Thriller, which has sold 38.5 million copies? That, of course, remains to be seen. Certainly it has been accompanying by a tremendous amount of publicity.

All the hype has been well earned though. This is one Bad experience that will never burn you hot as it may be.

A HEAP O' SWEENEY

"Put me back, damn you!" the newborn infant growled at the doctor. "This is a mits-up! I was a mighty Shogun in my last life and a damned good one! I'm supposed to be in Nirvana now so just put me back."

Peter Sweeney later claimed there as his first words. "But he didn't say it," Mr. Sweeney continued in his now-familiar drawl. "I was born with it."

Throughout his life he contradicted himself several times on the locate of the above scene, claiming at different times to have been born in a buck room at Riva City, Amerika, and under the chin at the Hollow Grounds, that is, the Bronx, which was Yankees N.Y., whereon toward his labitations.

At age two young Sweeney, frustrated with the bustle and bustle of urban life, dragged his legs to stand by a window and, in a fit of rage, aggressed parturient childhood trauma, whatever form it took.

It is from this stage of his life we receive our first glimpse of his budding literary greatness. Upon viewing the remains of the village drama, we had assumed him to be a spastic, pretentious, brat who had to quipped. "It must concern him greatly, not only that she has thrashed him so soundly, but that, as a result, his brain now occupies a quarter mile of track." Peter Sweeney, at the time, had already we see his burgeoning comic writer.

Upon the plowman's vision of his acceptance at the fashionable Lilliput Nursery School, a relucant Peter Sweeney was as saying, "I'll be pleased to inform you let myself be measured, certified by these learned market educators." Also, he occupied a child's body and was easily subduable.

Even at that early age the future laureate was a prankster, easily employing a trusting neighborhood katty in his amio, often in conjunction with electricity, gasoline or hedge trimmers.

At nine years of age, the Master's artistic instincts flared up against the limitations of life on the coast and he dreamt his way westward, to the broad horizons of the midwest. It was during this period of emotional upheaval that the worldly-wise tot penned his first poetry:

Plunk me down in that barnheit, momma
So far away from the sea
Plunk me down in that barnheit, honey
Me mommy, me poppy and me
Teach me
Me mommy, me poppy and me

and

She walks in booties, for her toes.
And seamless, queen-size pantyhose.
And all that's wrong with slatted skirts
Meets at her invariant, and her griff.
That's why she's by some ample bosoms
Which tell of more than for cakes and pies.

One pound the master weighs, the other less.
Had hell impinged that ten-second dress
Which waves with every swaying stride.
Oh the great barnheit mass inside.
Where cavernous rumblings well suggest
A belly the size of the Great Northwest.

And on those cheeks and over those lips
The crust of countless buffet trips.
A grapefruit seed, a portion here
That tell of the abundance of love.
And mirth suppressed when the great dame says
A repeat dancing from her step.

In high school, people who knew Peter with a D+ considered him shy and introverted, even awkward. Little did they know that when the schoolbell rang, their quiet classroom became the bold and fearless Colonel Sweeney, the Absent-Minded National Guard whose acrobatic career and deranged doings were soon recognized by freight in mercenary camps the world over.

Once free from the bondage of institutionalized education, Sweeney set out to experience life and see the world around. He traveled the towns and cities of the Midwest and the Great Eastern and Indiana. By day he would snatch minute blagbaghs from the glances of an unnamed Fox River and by night dazle the elite of Carpenterville with his raptile-like wit and his clove-salted grub. Breakfast in Woodcock, lunch in Fignard and dinner in Palatine... he attacked life with vigor and flame.

An interested reader may have realized the reason that "mid-mid column" in the October '75 Harbinger was became the "mid-mid column" with Editor Chez Larry Pagan in its place.

What Larry seemed to object to was the fact the the column included, but was not limited to, some comments, seemingly critical of a specific person within the Harbinger community. Semantics critical. To those who "ideas the column was titled "Mental Crapples and Game Student Bodies."

Admire Larry for doing what he thought was right, and agree with him.

But no quals! If you're wondering what was in that column, come up to the Harbinger office (A367) and get a copy. From me to you if there are none left leave your name and address in my mail bin and I'll send you one.

Peter Sweeney

The different sides of human nature.
A bountiful range from love to hate.
Strange how we shift our masks.
-Gregory Chapman

But then, in an attempt to gain more specialized knowledge he enrolled in a community college. On top of an already exhausting curriculum, Mr. Sweeney dedicated himself to the task of encouraging fellow students with a weekly newspaper column, Gaspe.

Some biographers contend that it was during this period that the Decline of Peter Sweeney truly began. It is argued that Sweeney, possibly the most enlightened of souls to grace the twentieth century, started on his tragic path to ruin. This is the result of an apathetic readership, readership that, in fact, considerable doubt that any such readership existed at all.

His perverging spirit, however, transended abjection, though the scars remain plainly visible in such original classics as "Farewell, My Arms" (1960), "The Great Ginsburg" (1943) and, of course,

"Slaughterhouse Five" (1969). But never are those scars more clearly manifest than in this excerpt from "The Adventures of Huckleberry Steinbeck" (1955): "I'm not now, nor have I ever been, nor will I ever be, Jim. Jim nobody likes me... even you don't like me Jim, and you don't care if I'm not a smarter than a dingle dog."

The sequel to this masterpiece, "Huckleberry Steinbeck Part II: The Wrath of Jim" (2007) was Sweeney's first book.

The rest of the tale, of course, is a sad one. The Master never again put two words together coherently and spent the rest of his days viewing life through the bottom of a sleep. In 2015, Mr. Sweeney was gored to death by a bull while in Pamplona, Spain, trying to willfully inflame in himself the spirit of Ernest "Papa" Hemingway.

Students would like to see the board select a new president, work on keeping up enrollment, get projects completed within the budget without raising taxes and add more classes as opposed to a new theater.

He includes that, "The sports program would be cut at and possibly eliminated if it is not feasible and it's not gaining anything for the community college besides the expense of funds." Speech Team kicks off season at ISU

By Sue Conforti

On October 9th and 10th Harper's speech team attended its first tournament of the year. Illinois State University held the annual Allstate Student Invitational Tournament for 22 schools from all over the nation.

Harper competed with 16 team members and a coach with coaches Mrs. Nomi Jonadossi. Six students ranked second in individual round: Andy Balatas and Connie Weil in After Diner Speaking; Linda Lang in Persuasive speaking, Tony Kortas in Prose, and Michelle Riely in Novice Impromptu Speaking.

The remaining team members include: Tari Vaughn, Kegan Weber, Karen Bessert, Larry Paulin, Susan Conforti, Dallas, Debbie, and Scott Neidig, Mary Kay Locher, Darren Moe, and Sara Schmitz.

Although the team finished in last place, Lorraine is confident that the team can do better. "I'm not disappointed in the team. I see this as a learning experience. The rest of the team did the same," she says. "It's nice to say 'If we don't win today, we'll party anyway'."

The next tournament is at Richland Community College in Decatur, IL.

Tutoring Center eases burden of midterms and finals

By Lisa Barton
Staff Writer

Harper's tutoring program first began in the fall of 1973, there offering help in only one or two subjects. Today, the combined efforts of those involved has made it a most valuable educational resource, rich with knowledge, competence, and experience.

Many students are only too familiar with the mysteries of struggling to survive a particularly difficult course.

In addition to coping with his/her own workload, a student who falls behind in any given class must also deal with a host of negative emotions, which causes comprehend frustration as he cannot master the subject, and fears of a standard final grade that will forever be etched into his academic record.

Whether it is one, or several, academic areas in which a student needs immediate help, the Harper Tutoring Center is available to provide help free.

The Center, which is located on the bottom floor of Building F or F112, offers tutoring in over 60 courses taught at Harper. The only requirement is that the student be enrolled in the class in which he/she helps.

Just how helpful is Harper's tutoring program? Survey research indicates that the students who took advantage of the program last year, 94% rated it very highly as an aid in elevating their academic performance.

The Center's fifty tutors serve approximately 14,000 students per year, averaging 10 hours per week, 9,100 total hours of tutoring annually.

Because of the Center's outstanding reputation as one of the best in the state, other college administrators often seek the advice of Nomi Jonadossi, Harper's Tutoring Center Supervisor, in modifying their own tutoring programs.

All of Harper's tutors are highly qualified, they fall into three basic categories: either a Harper student who has previously completed the tutorial course with an A and has been recommended by the professor, the professional tutor, who usually holds a degree in his field, and the Area Coordinator, who, like Harper students, is also in charge of other tutors in his specific area.

Many of our students needs are so different that we have three different eight-hour training session for our tutors," Harper Supervisor Jonadossi said. "To enable them to address each student's needs on an individual basis, Harper's tutors are also trained to deal with the unique problems of disabled students and those with learning disabilities. Their training includes lessons in effective communication and study management, as well.

Private tutors with comparable qualifications may charge up to $25 per hour.

We offer the same quality service, at no cost to the student.

In addition to general tutoring, the Center also offers review seminars, workshops, study guides, and Supplemental Instruction (SI), a relatively new program in which the SI Leader (usually a professional tutor) attends the classes of a given course, then leads independent study group sessions three to four times weekly. The sessions are open to all members of the specific class. This semester there are SI programs available for Accounting, Biology, and Data Processing courses.

The Center's major areas of study include, but are not limited to, Accounting, Data Processing, English, Math, and Science. Harper students may receive a general session as desired, although most students average four to five visits per semester.

The initial session lasts for one hour, those sessions may be as short or long as the student desires.

The Center's hours are Monday through Thursday, 8:30 a.m.

and Friday, 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. In addition, tutoring for two of the popular courses,

Accounting and English, also offered on Saturdays from 9:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. Summer hours are 8:00 a.m.- 8:00 p.m., but on a reduced level, with 20 tutors instead of the usual 50.

In addition to general tutoring, the Center also offers review seminars, workshops, study

Hawks down host Trojans, 24-21, remain undefeated at 7-0

Martin rushes for record 229 yards

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

Not only do the four-ranked Hawks have an consecutive eight-game winning streak in progress, they have also started another one.

As the Hawks struck first the host Trojans Saturday by the count of 24-21, the victory marked the third time in their last four games Harper has won by less than a point while holding a late-game rally.

And for the second consecutive game, sophomore Don Lee intercepted an opposition pass to end a chance to blow the game open.

"We didn't have a good game," Harper coach John Eliasik said. "I thought we had a chance to blow the game open."

Hawk running back Dan

Martin made a giant step toward the 1,000-yard rushing season as he gamed 229 yards on 28 carries to lead the Hawks' ground game, rushing mark, which he previously held.

The Hawks outgained the Trojans 340 to 283.

The game gave Martin 793 yards in rushing this year and including the 644 yards he accumulated his two-year career was already broken the two-year record of 1,350 held by Ron Burke, and is on track to break 1,600 yards.

The Trojans opened the scoring in the second quarter as freshman Michael Greene ran into the end zone 74 yards out to put Triton up 6-0.

But following a 22-yard field goal by Hawk kicker Tom Wint, Martin scored a Harp record as he ran from the Hawks' 10-yard line to end up for a 98-yard touchdown run from scrimmage to put the Hawks up going into the half, 13-6.

The Hawks added to their lead in the third quarter as Martin scored on a 13-yard run and again on a 19-yard run to put the Hawks up 24-6 entering the final period.

Martin also iced the Hawks' record for most points in a single game as he racked up 18 points.

The Trojans responded in the fourth quarter as they put 15 points on the scoreboard, but it wasn't enough to derail the charging Hawks.

The Hawks will play the Joliet Wolves this Saturday at Fall Festival as they attempt to defend their record of 7-0 at 1 pm.

Harper's Coach Eliasik and Joliet's Coach Horne preview Fall Festival game

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

The only things standing between the Harper Hawks and a perfect season are the Joliet Wolves and the Illinois Valley Apaches in their last two opponents.

If the Hawks can hold on to one of the two top spots in the SAC Red Division, they will play in the Region IV playoffs on November 7.

But as coach John Eliasik said, "We are trying to improve playing game by game since the last Joliet game."

The Hawks traveled to Joliet on September 18 to play the Wolves and Eliasik feels the game was a big one but a letdown as Harper was victorious 10-6.

Martin also iced the Hawks' record for most points in a single game as he racked up 18 points.

team is banged up, he feels they have a chance to win.

"We will have to be at the top of our game," Horne said. "We made 12 turnovers last week and we can't make those mistakes this week."

Horne also admits the Hawks have a strong offense and "they have to control the game on the ground," Horne said. But with Hawk QB Al Snyder playing well lately, they can either run or throw.

"It's a good offense," Horne said. "I am more toward the rushing aspect of the game lately, but Eliasik may change that this week."

"We want to show balance this week," Joliet's defense jamps up on a team and dares them to throw," Eliasik said.

While for the opening part of the season the Hawks have been able to stay away from mistakes, the Wolves feel they have been hit hard by them.

"We are pretty banged up," Horne said. "Against Harper we won't have a lot of depth and we'll just try to survive."

If the Hawks can maintain the momentum they have had throughout the season, the Wolves will only prove to be a small obstacle in the race they hope to win.

N.I.U. Admissions Cut Effects Harper Transfer

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

Beginning the spring semester of 1988, Northern Illinois University (N.I.U.) will be cutting back on admissions and beginning in the fall semester of 1988, the number of transfer admissions courses will undergo reorganization.

For the spring semester of 1988, the number of courses open to transfer students with an Associate of Arts (A.A.) or Associate of Science (A.S.), or 60 hours of study,

Due to the recent N.I.U. budget decrease of $3.9 million (4.5% less than last year), N.I.U. has experienced a decline in enrollment. In response to this, N.I.U. is allowing more transfer students with an Associate of Arts (A.A.) or Associate of Science (A.S.), or 60 hours of study.

Due to the recent N.I.U. budget decrease of $3.9 million (4.5% less than last year), N.I.U. has experienced a decline in enrollment. In response to this, N.I.U. is allowing more transfer students with an Associate of Arts (A.A.) or Associate of Science (A.S.), or 60 hours of study.

N.I.U. plans on limited enrollment of students lacking their A.A. or A.S. degree. First N.I.U. students that meet the requirements. They are required to meet the requirements, will be admitted until an enrollment figure of approximately 1900 (150 hours).

Those students who are denied admission as a result of the new admissions rules will be given a letter advising the student to meet with their counselor and complete their A.A. or A.S. degree.

Other state colleges may be modifying these transfer requirements as a result of the decrease of financial aid available.

Beginning the fall semester of 1988, most courses (those courses required by four year colleges for transfer into a program of study, which apply directly to the students major), will be modified.

Previously, five total courses were required for transfer into the four year schools at N.I.U. These were math and courses in which I chose from.

Now there are six total courses required which are predetermined and must be taken as a group.

This allows all business students applying for transfer to be evaluated on an easier basis.

Other state colleges may be modifying these transfer requirements as a result of the decrease of financial aid available.

Kay Patchett, Assistant Coordinator of Community College Relations for N.I.U., will be available on November 17th, 18th, November 18 between 5 pm and 7 pm and December 9 between 4 pm and 7 pm to answer any questions regarding N.I.U.

Transfer Checklist

Review your grades at the end of each semester. Are your grades acceptable as those you need to be considered? A counselor can assist you in making that determination.

Review your choices of four year schools as early as possible. Transfer information materials, workshops on transferring to various colleges/universities and College Transfer Night may help you in this process. Now, from 5 to 8 at a time in a building!

Approximately one year before you plan to transfer, contact the admissions of your choice requesting application for admission, transcripts and information on housing. Note any deadlines for return of applications (admission, academic, financial, transcripts).

If possible, visit the school(s) that interest you the most and talk with the admissions staff and/or the advisor(s) in the department of your planned major.

Review all the necessary requirements in the four year college/university of your choice and request that the Harper College Registrars Office send transcripts of them.

File a petition for graduation from Harper College in the Registrar's Office no later than mid-term of the semester you plan to graduate.

Arrange to have a final transcript sent to the school(s) to which you are applying.

Five Candidates Contend for two Four-Year Terms

Harper Teacher Pioneers Computer Graphics

By Douglas Ray

News Editor

John Associate Professor of the Liberal Arts Department Mike Brown, recently wrote an article to be published in the December issue of "Computer magazine" on computer art and its connection with theater.

"I had no experience at all with computers," said Brown. "I learned how to use a computer and worked with it developing art images."

In November of 1986, Dr. John Wrobel, then Vice-Chairman of Communication Professor directed "The Miss Firecracker Contest." It was for the play that Brown discovered the computers hidden usefulness.

In previous plays computers were used to control the lighting and move stage machinery. However, Brown saw a computer for three different purposes.

The first purpose was to help design the set. The computer was used to draw out what the finished set would look like.

Second, Brown created images on the computer and took photos of them. These photos were then enlarged and pasted onto a sheet of paper and an image about 12 feet tall and 12 feet in width used in connection with a scene in the theater.

The third use of the computer was needed for the end of the play when a firecracker was lit. Brown had to create an explosion in several different places where fireworks were drawn on the Amiga computer. These images were printed on paper and attached to a sheet of paper and shown on a screen, giving the effect of a firecracker explosion.

Eight projects were committed by a committee we're used to creating the set.

I think everybody was happy with the results. It was effective," said Brown. Much commented that the "experimental effort produced wonderful results."

There are five declared candidates for the two open four-year terms on the Board of Trustees of Harper.

They are Peter Bakas, Lawrence Moats, Orlene Lawrence, Womble and William Wrobel.

On October 15 the Harper College Board of Trustees Candidates' Forum was held in the right-hand room of the library. Guests who drew lots were asked to speak about issues that are presently before the board including the appointment of a new president. The forum, which they would like to see for Harper as a Board member.

Peter Bakas lives in Arlington Heights and works as a Consulting agent. He is also the Board of Directors at Shelter Inc., a shelter for abused children.

He was previously the Vice-president of Administrative Services at Harper.

Bakas believes that experience and his dedication to community service has been his job as Trustee to Harper College.

Bakas sees the main concern of Harper in the near future as being the appointment of a new president, the retention of experienced faculty, and the creation of a learning-tough academic environment.

Lawrence Moats presently teaches in paraplegia and is employed as President and Chief Executive Officer of Arlington Electric, Inc. He is also Chief Executive Officer of ALC America.

Moats was President of Friends of Harper from 1983 to 1985 and a member of the Board of Directors from 1986 until now.

Moats believes that having been the President and Chief Executive Officer of a company that has brought in over $100 million dollars in sales, gives him the background to be an excellent Trustee to Harper College.

At Harper his experience includes being on the Harper College Board of Trustees from 1969 to 1974, Vice Chairman of Board of Governors, Chairman of Employer Negotiations Committee and Trustee.

Moats feels that the person chosen to be president... should be one who understands and is capable of leading a highly trained and professional faculty and administration in the important task of best serving the needs of the students.

Moats would like to see Harper strengthen its ties with the business community and to create a "comprehensive long range plan that considers the projected needs of the entire college through the year 2000."

Savanna Orzech presently lives in Barrington Hills and works as a librarian at the Algonquin Library.

Since moving to Illinois two years ago, Orzech has worked with the Newcomer Club of Barrington Hills, the Barrington Community Associates of the Art Institute of Chicago, and the Barrington Area Arts Council.

Moats would like to see the Board of Trustees and administration continue to create an environment in which best education possible can be delivered to students.

Senate update

by Kim Ostrowski

Features Editor

No, Harper's student senate elections are over, do we have a complete senate? No.

October 21's meeting at 2:15 started only after a fifteen minute delay due to the rain. Those senators present were hoping to have at least half of their members present. As it stands, there were about 15.

After the call to order, roll call and the approval of minutes of the previous meeting and covered election of new members, selection of officers, college committee appointments, discussion of financial assignments and establishment of a meeting time.

New business includes Life Science and Human Services division rep Michele Ostrowski and Clubs and Organizations rep Linda Klyce.

Officer selection is proposed until the vacant senator positions are filled.

Divisions must meet with the deans of their respective divisions to determine how their allotments of funds are to be spent.

The next senate meeting is slated for November 4 & 15 p.m. Senators choose which committee meetings, both senate and college, and college and community, will be held. They will attend them throughout the remainder of the terms.

The advisor, Jeanne Branley, congratulated Student Trustee Greg Miller on his efforts.

The senators adjourned the meeting at approximately 5:00 p.m. If there is more time in attending a senate meeting or filling one of the remaining positions, contact Student Activities, ext. 2242.

Nova Performs at Harper

by Kim Ostrowski

Holy moly! I learned almost half semester's worth of the jazz genre. I thought it might be beneficial to attend a concert or two and listen to see if all it was written about was played live.

Last Wednesday's jazz concert in A-Bldg. lounge provided an hour of interesting but lackluster music. Although many students took seats set out in front of the four-member ensemble, but anyone in or even in the vicinity of A-Bldg. could not have failed to hear the tunes

A.R.S. Nova, a travelling jazz group originating from Illinois State University, played Harper at the request of Program Board.

Free admission and available popcorn did not seem to draw a large crowd, but for those of us who attended, it was well worth the price. Solo by each of the four musicians, although not of the professional calibre of the 'greats' of jazz, did highlight the performance.

P.S. We care, Peter

By Kim Ostrowski

Last year a Harper student with a bright future and limitless possibilities died with friends Peter Sohns, a Trustee, School and President's Fellow, WHCM broadcaster and member of the College Choir, is now paralyzed due to a brain tumor.

David Sohns must meet with the deans of their respective divisions to determine how their allotments of funds are to be spent.

The next senate meeting is slated for November 4 & 15 p.m. Senators choose which committee meetings, both senate and college, and college and community, will be held. They will attend them throughout the remainder of the terms.

The advisor, Jeanne Branley, congratulated Student Trustee Greg Miller on his efforts.

The senators adjourned the meeting at approximately 5:00 p.m. If there is more time in attending a senate meeting or filling one of the remaining positions, contact Student Activities, ext. 2242.

Peter's days on Monday, November 2, and Tuesday, November 3, from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. These days will allow the Harper community to make a donation to the Sohns family. The money will go to Peter in somewhat the same manner "as when Americans rallied for the Iranian Hostages," says Branley.

There are three locations on campus. A-Bldg.'s student lounge, F-Bldg.'s third floor and J-Bldg.'s lobby (by the Box Office) and a collection box will be available to pin on shirts, blouses, sweaters or lapels. If anyone would like to pin these to their shirt, Branley at D-142 or ext. 2393.

For a $2 contribution the person will receive both a lapel ribbon and a long ribbon. Long ribbons can also be tied to the many campus trees.

Names of contributors can also be written onto the ribbons. The ribbons will then remain on trees until November 3, from 8:30 a.m. to 6:30 p.m. These days will allow the Harper community to make a donation to the Sohns family. The money will go to Peter in somewhat the same manner "as when Americans rallied for the Iranian Hostages," says Branley.

This money will then be transferred to the Sohns for paying for therapy and equipment for Peter.

If larger contributions are desired, a capitol fund is available. Interested persons should contact Mrs. Parkman, ext. 2242.

Peter will be returning to Harper, although the exact date is yet unknown. He is now at the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago.

As the leaflet says, "Everyone can do their part. If one would like to send a card or letter or even arrange a visit, contact the President's Office for details, ext. 2242."

The four-year terms: More candidates, harder choices

Unlike the candidates for the six-year terms on Harper's Board of Trustees, the candidates for the four-year terms present a problem for me in recommending two candidates. At least five of the candidates seem, to me, qualified to serve a term on Harper's Board. As in the reason it's at least four of five, I'll get to that later.

The first recommendation is relatively easy. Lawrence Morton has been involved with the Board since its days of Trustee 1968. He is a perceived by many as a responsible, hard-working, honest man with good credentials. Highly endorsed.

Picking a second candidate was difficult. Susanna Oreck, Walter Scott, and Lawrence Weimer all have the credentials to do a good job. But several weeks ago Susanna Oreck called me at the Harbinger, to get my views of what the student concerns are here, and what the Board can do about them. We spoke for a while, and I told her that anyone concerned enough about our concerns to ask without having to be tricked down, deserves our vote. Endorsed.

Which brings us in Pritek Bakas. Mr. Bakas, for some reason which completely eludes us, has been in touch with us. When we first called him, he said exactly Mr. Bakas does for a living, he replied, "Consulting." And promptly hung up. I fed you figure he just doesn't want to be associated with a college newspaper, consider this: The Harbinger has exactly the same influence as the Herald. And the Herald has exactly a former Vice President of Administrative Services at Harper.

Well, Mr. Bakas, you certainly aren't required to talk to us, but then again we can certainly wonder why, can't we?

...Off The Record...

By Carol A. Carrick
Staff Columnist

Since this weekend is Halloween I always make it a weeklong holiday around our house. I completely transform myself into my house cleaning any time of the year is scary enough.

The neighborhood children will come over and might as well come in our front door. (Watch it if one starts screaming at me.) They will peer into my living room to marvel at my decorations.

Mrs. C. then says "you may be the neatest house on the block." We sure wished our Morton would let us take our room into a spook house like you do!

How sweet of those little monsters to notice.

They tell me how much they like my costume and that mommies don't even bother to dress up just to pass out candy.

I assure them I had to start working on this "Wreck of the Hesperus" look a week in advance. The kids come to my door, same as they always do, of course. I always get at least one wise guy during the evening who suggest I stop trick-or-treating. The kid who gets my vacuum cleaner fixed! (I'd like to tell you I'm not afraid of them, but I am.)

They begin to whap candy at me! Gawd, do those punks hurt!

"Chew 'em up for next time, you please!" I yell as they disappear down the street faster than lightning. I pack up an empty bag and thrust my finger into it wide piece. Placing it near my mouth I greet the next group of gobblins.

"Gee, Mrs. C., we love your bug lady costume!" Oh, I don't have a ghost of a chance this year. Sigh.

I keep thinking that I'll do better this year, but I have this recurring premonition. Well, according to our columnists, the goblins are the ones who come to my door, same as they always do, but when I open the door I frighten them so badly they reach into their bellowsaws and spit fire! They begin to whap candy at me! Gawd, do those punks hurt!

"Chew 'em up for next time, you please!" I yell as they disappear down the street faster than lightning. I pack up an empty bag and thrust my finger into it wide piece. Placing it near my mouth I greet the next group of gobblins.

Fall Fest: Lack of communication ruins hard work

By Larry Paulin
Editor-In-Chief

Now about Fall Fest Week is officially and finally over, there are questions that I have about a couple of the events.

First, about the Fall Fest Dance. I'm not complain concerned the cost. Now I realize that $3.00 isn't going to break even a starving college student like me.

But then I realized there was no band there, but rather a professional disk jockey. I wondered if the band was not available. I asked Board members why, and that plus DJs working for WHCM, were we paying some $300 to an outside firm to spin records.

Then I found out what really happened. Through lack of communication, apparently the wrong person from Program Board asked the wrong person. WHCM asked the wrong person. WHCM.

And, not surprisingly, you the wrong answer.

Scott Morton, WHCM's General Manager, was under the impression that the wrong person was going to be a band, and we needed his DJs to mix full in the breaks. When asked if he would have liked to do the dance, Morton replied, "Of course we would. We would have loved the possibility."

Confused? It gets worse. The football team (all 80 of them) apparently were the ones to show up at the dance in the first place. Program Board, through underfunded (and without a Special Events Chairman) looked to the football team to help them out. When the football team voted to ask Program Board to have a homecoming dance.

Program Board figured if even if no one else showed up, it would be a healthy crowd. From next estimates, it appears that one (unum, one) football player showed up (with a date), along with three or four others.

On the plus side (Yes, Virginia, there is a plus side), was the turnout of over 100 people. This is evidence of the dance of this nature at Harper, the decorations (good job, Chris!), and most of all, a job well done by Lisa Huni and Michael Johnson, the musical renditions (good job, Chris!), and the overall production of "Always to Fall Fest" queen Robin Keane and her court.

This year, dance could have been a resounding success, easily better than any ever held at Harper, with one, all important ingredient: COMMUNICATION.

The other sore spot during Fall Fest week was an annual event in which the Queen and her court are honored by the administration at a breakfast at an outside restaurant.

All-in-all, a good idea. I would think. That would be better in theory than in application. The guest list was The Queen and her court, President McGrath, Vice-President Dr. Burdette, Student Activities Director Laurin Tada, and Student Activities Director Jeannine Parkman.

Surprisingly nothing wrong with this delegation. Except perhaps over. Or lack of it.

To have an after breakfast a Fall Fest get-together where the same people who were instrumental in the Fall Fest week programming itself seems to me to be a slap in the face of those who put so much time and effort to make a week-long event that the Queen can reign over.

This event was a good idea, but it should be targeted to include representatives from every club and organization that contributed to Fall Fest. The Queen of Fall Fest should be increased by the size of her audience, and the administration, Student Activities, and the school board should be able to say they're a part of giving you to a group of students for a job well done.

Despite changes, Bonnie Koloc's star still shines bright

By Larry Paulin
Editor In Chief

The gods of music move in mysterious ways. I attended the Bonnie Koloc concert at Harper last Friday night, a preconceived notion or two.

I had heard that Koloc was dying, so, in fact almost by osmosis, I assumed she'd die a fact that depressed me no end, as I remembered her from days of covering songs by the likes of John Prine, Steve Goodman, and Jackson Browne (as well as writing some of her own material), every bit as good.

But I had seen any near thirty-year-old-in-keeping-the-1970s who's worth his weight would do. I went thinking to criticize the artist, not the act.

Boy, was I wrong. While she did do a number of songs that could only be classified as jazz, she also covered some of her earlier efforts, and still did a John

Prine tune.

But song selection wasn't the main attraction to me; concert, it was her voice. She has had a strong, sweet voice (back in the days of her early albums, in 1971 and '72). And great vocal range.

I don't exactly know what I expected, maybe a weaker, thinned-out voice from all those years on the road from coffee house to concert hall.

Whatever Bonnie Koloc does to preserve her voice should be packaged and sold. The power was there, the control was there, but most of all, the control. The ability to turn up a cappella love song to Iowa (I'm from Chicago) I will never forget.

Wiesenthal is turned into a compelling encore piece is amazing to me.

And the icing on cake is her band. There were times when at least two of the four band members, Steve Ervin on sax and Howard Levy on keyboards (Levy, an old friend of mine, is forthcoming addition), "With You On My Side" aside, the show

All in all, a thoroughly enjoyable show. And a nearly full house at Building 1000 agreed wholeheartedly.

If you have the opportunity to see Bonnie Koloc any time, anywhere, go! It'll be worth it.

The Boss is Back - This time with no hype

by Kevin Goldstein

Without any fanfare or hype, Bruce Springsteen's album instead of Long, the USA, never happened. For this album is more of a follow-up to his home recordings than to his albums from Nebraska than from his 1984 hit LP.

Tunnel of Love with "Ain't Got You," and one realizes we're back to basics when you hear the progression of Bruce's songs.

All of the album's 12 songs are about love. Most of those concern love gone bad or never existing.

Lyrically and musically the album is flawless. It's a perfect blend of Springsteen going solo with some a similar sound, and the train also with songs featuring multi-track recording with members of the E Street Band.

The first side features Bruce going at it by himself. These first three songs are all narratives told in person about men desperate to find love but the songs are too unconvincing as all three contain distinctly different points.

After that Bruce goes back to telling stories with others with names like Bobby and Billy and Janey. The best of these is "Spare Parts," a hard rocker about Bobby who's been in a car accident and pregnant, can't handle it, takes off, Janey is alone and needs money so she sells her wedding dress and engagement ring. This is the usual Bruce middle-class melodramatic stuff but somehow through clever wordplay and good music Bruce makes it work wonderfully.

The second side starts with the title track and by far the best song in the album. Done with some members of the E-Street Band, the song is an uplifting and sometimes searing view of the early stages of love.

Fame shows innocence: "Then the lights go out and it's just the three of us, you, me and all that stuff we're so scared of."

Then the pain: "It ought to be easy, ought to be simple, but it's not. You're in love and they fall in love but the house is haunted and the ride gets rough and you've got to learn to live with it." This side ends with "Born to Run." This side also contains the first single and already top-10

"Brilliant Disguise."

Long, the USA is a great album, probably better than Born in the USA, although it won't be as popular as it lacks a wide appeal due to its low key and sometimes unpredictable tone.

Nonetheless Bruce Springsteen would not fall into the pits of stadium by trying to repeat his most popular form.

This album will shine a new light on the more recent Springsteen fans, a light that shows Bruce for what he is: the best singular American artist in modern music.

SWEENEY INTERVIEW:

a candid conversation with the fiery prince of darkness about hope, hype, hemlines and hell

SATAN

October 29, 1987

Since the dawn of time he has been called many things: Devil, The Desolate One, Old Nick, The Fallen Angel and Scathbreak to name a few. But who is he really?

As reporter Peter Sweeney gives us a chance to make our own decisions about the man behind the myth—Dante—read on. Many questions remain unanswered: Who drew the road straight and lost the keys to heaven? Be careful how you vote though, rumor has it that he's still not in the Big Gay good graces.

So come, walk the darker side of the map. Who's on the dome of judgment? He's here, he's there... he's now and he's wow! The original Helluva Guy. Mystery Man, philosopher-leader...

SWEENEY: Satan seems so formal, what do you like to be called?

SATAN: Mephi is fine

SWEENEY: Okay, Mephi, I think the first question in everyone's mind is: Is there a Hell and is it as bad as we're told?

MEPHI: Yes, there is a Hell, but it's not like most folks picture it.

SWEENEY: It's not a deep cavern awash in the red glow of bubbling, molten lava in which wayward souls square and argue over who gets to burn whom?

MEPHI: Gosh no. You know, I once burned myself with a cigar right here in the middle of these two fingers (indicates). But did that smart? Blister... pure. I couldn't hold my hand correctly for a month.

SWEENEY: Pissfork?

MEPHI: Dinner fork. Do I look like a farmer?

SWEENEY: So Hell isn't a fiery inferno? Diane had it all wrong.

MEPHI: Absolutely. Diane has been through a few sessions and he has a better attitude now.

SWEENEY: Sesame? Like white and brimming ones? Don't be silly. Group sessions. Some folks have a different kind of enjoyment.

SWEENEY: Ahhh, you mean like tears people limbs off and throws acid in their eyes?

MEPHI: Well, there you go. You're a real sicko. So, all I mean is that Beezy can get you down. You know, fun of his life. Hell just sit around the lounge and suck for days.

SWEENEY: There's a lounge?

MEPHI: Several. Beezy is the activities director, I take it. He's got a lot of fun.

SWEENEY: Of all the things God has that you don't, which do you envy the most? Omnipotence? Omiscience?

MEPHI: Upper case processes.

SWEENEY: You don't seem particularly wicked. It's like you're plotting the downfall of mankind. In fact, it's hard to believe you're really Satan.

MEPHI: Is it? (begins laughing)

The boom of his laughter fills the room and teases to leave the building. In fact, it's hard to believe you're really Satan.

MEPHI: I'm not the kind of person who's interested in a Jacuzzi, women in string bikinis by a swimming pool, men playing tennis. Finally, the last laugh, whatever do you believe me?

SWEENEY: A little more detail. I would have been adequate. I spend two grand a week to go to places like that, I can't believe that's how Hell is.

MEPHI: Well, I try to keep folks entertained. They're not at first, but they get used to it, like they expected. Then they get suspicious. I'm just building their hopes up before I toss them in a furnace. That's why we have the group encounters and Intro to Hell course.

SWEENEY: Intro to Hell?

MEPHI: Sure, we have a swell continuing education program. Socrates rates it.

SWEENEY: Socrates? Socrates is in Hell?

MEPHI: Gah! He committed suicide; it's what you call a mandatory sentence.

SWEENEY: They made him drink the hemlock. That's not nice!

MEPHI: No, nobody made him drink it, he wanted to escape and he knew it—told me so himself. But that's not the point. I don't make the rules; if I did I sure as H.E. double-hockeystabs wouldn't be doing this for eternity.

SWEENEY: Sigh. I guess that's what you had a pretty sweet deal with God. I little bit of a break and you could've written your own ticket. What happened?

MEPHI: Your editor agreed that I wouldn't be asked about the Whoopie Cushion incident.

SWEENEY: Right. Sorry. What do you think about people who clean their ears and leave the dirty Q-Tips on the bathroom counter?

MEPHI: They make me sick.

SWEENEY: You know, You've been called the Father of Lies and here you are making Hell sound like a dream vacation. Why should we believe you?

MEPHI: Oh yeah, right, can't believe it no way! Don't listen to Old Nick, he fibs. Ooh, watch out.

SWEENEY: Right. So what do you think about people who are making out in the shower?

MEPHI: Well, why should I? To boost the tourist trade? Do you think second most powerful being in the universe is profit motivated?

SWEENEY: Right. So what do you think about people who are making out in the shower?

MEPHI: I'm sorry. Everything you spend your whole life chasing is there for you. You can have whatever you want: big house, fancy cars, beautiful women, money, that's very nice, it's every desire come true.

SWEENEY: Right. So what do you think about people who are making out in the shower?

MEPHI: What's a nice vacation for you, a week in Florida?

SWEENEY: I like Majorca.

MEPHI: Fine. How does new weeks in Majorca sound?

SWEENEY: Great.

MEPHI: About two months?

SWEENEY: Well, I think the novelty would start wearing thin.

MEPHI: How about two years? Or twenty?

SWEENEY: No way.

MEPHI: How about two thousand years? Or two million or two trillion? Or maybe forever? Maybe Hell is forever. Maybe it just goes on and on and on and on; ad infinitum. Maybe it never, ever ends. Maybe it's, um, SWEENEY: What would we find in your pockets right now?

MEPHI: Uh, let's see... matches, cigarette horn wax,

SWEENEY: Who else is in Hell? You mentioned Dante and Socrates, give us some other big names.

MEPHI: Well, Socrates is no secret since he pulled his own plug. I couldn't mention anyone else.

SWEENEY: Aww, c'mon. One name, just give us one big name.

MEPHI: Geez, you're worse than Joan Rivers. I can't, I have to, I have to.

SWEENEY: You mean the citizens of Hell can give you a hard time?

MEPHI: Sure.

SWEENEY: But you're the Emperor of the Sorrows!

SWEENEY: Yeah, that and fifty backs will get me a beat up Volkswagen. How do you discipline someone who's already in Hell? Make them stand in the corner for a written confession?

SWEENEY: What do you look for in a woman?

MEPHI: Petty little bitches.

SWEENEY: When will Armageddon take place?

MEPHI: I don't know. God didn't call me in for a meeting, someone else did. Gimme a break.

SWEENEY: But you're supposed to rise up and do battle! You're the Dragon in Revelations aren't you?

MEPHI: Yeah, that and fifty backs will get me a beat up Volkswagen. How do you discipline someone who's already in Hell? Make them stand in the corner for a written confession?

SWEENEY: You'll show up for the battle, won't you?

MEPHI: I suppose.

SWEENEY: You don't sound like your heart is in it.

MEPHI: You know, I'm not looking up to place their heads on my success. It's kind of a foregone conclusion that I'm gonna get my butt kicked.

SWEENEY: What wine do you serve with a romantic dinner?

MEPHI: I don't care for wine.

SWEENEY: What's your favorite color?

MEPHI: I don't know, yellow. Yeah, yellow.

Brown wrote a paper contrasting two techniques that could be used to create a ghost image of Hamlet's father for Shakespeare's Hamlet.

The first technique involved the use of a digitized pad, a pad that translates a picture that is drawn onto it, into numbers that the computer can understand. Again, images are taken of the computer images and shown on a screen.

The second method used a camera digitizer, which converts moving images from a video camera into numbers the computer can understand.

"Both techniques are impressive. Both techniques had excellent quality, although the technique using the camera digitizer was somewhat better."

Brown sent a copy of his paper to Amiga magazine asking if they were interested in the computer art work he had been doing.

They replied by asking Brown to write an article and send some examples of his art work to Amiga within three days. They would preview the article for December publication.

Wrinzel wants to be a Trustee in order to give a part of himself and his knowledge to the staff, students, faculty and community members who have been instrumental in his life.

"In return I shall receive the warm satisfactions that human interchange brings," he says.

Wrinzel sees himself as a new president for a person who must be an effective communicator, a very enthusiastic person and an excellent manager and administrator.

This new president should be qualified by education and experience in a career track program to be a two year community college pres-

Wrinzel feels that the Board will work to maintain the quality of education available to the students of the most diverse of backgrounds.

He also believes that the Board should be open to the public, and she would like to see Harper, addressing the increasing need for leadership and training of small and medium size businesses.

Lawrence Werner is a senior designer for Barrington Schools

System. He is on the Board of Directors and was an Executive Board Member for the Barrington

YMCA in Palatine. Werner is mission of the Village of North Barrington.

Werner feels that with several years experience as an attorney, having been through the sequence of law school and experience in the business world, he would be well qualified to be elected.

Werner says he would like to be elected because, "I really care about education and want to do what I can to insure that it is of the highest quality."

He adds, "I have been involved in educational matters for over 17 years

Nationally third-ranked Hawks march on to 8-0 as Coach John Eliasik records 100th victory.

by Bill Kugelberg

Sports Editor

This fall, the year has been the best ever for the third-ranked Harper football team and for many reasons.

The first reason is they exceed their record to 8-0 and ended them another winning streak to nine games as they pounded visiting Joliet, 29-0.

The second is it was Coach John Eliasik's 100th Harper career win and third, the game assured the Hawks of beneficial advantage throughout the playoffs.

Eliasik downplayed the 100th win, saying he didn't think much of until everybody started celebrating.

Also a highlight of this season has been the rushing achievement of sophomore running back Dan Maron. Maron rushed for 150 yards on 16 carries to improve his season total to 943 yards, shattering the previous record held by Ron Burke, who compiled 860 yards in 1980.

The Hawks opened the scoring in the first half as Tom Fuehler blocked a Wolves' punt and Angelo Brown recovered the live ball in the end zone for an early 8-0 Harper lead.

Tom Fuehler had a great first half until he broke his finger in the second quarter, said Eliasik. "Jack Brusciano (the interim coach) also had a really good game," Eliasik said. "The defense played the closest game to perfection I've seen."

In the second half, the second quarter strong from 16 yards out to extend the Hawks' lead to 14-0.

Tight end Jeff Duval lengthened the Hawks' lead as he caught a 7-yard pass from quarterback Al Snyder giving Harper a 20-0 lead.

Duval was the recipient of another Snyder run below the 10-yard line. (Joliet) gave us a tough game last time (a 10-6 Harper win). Their quarterback Wolves, allowing them only 6 first downs, 29 yards rushing and 0 yards passing.

The Hawks' offense complemented the defense's meeting saw a post-game tight which 212 came on the victory.

The Hawks next opponents will be the Illinois Valley Apaches on October 31 at 7:30 pm at the football field.

A Dream Come True

by Bill Kugelberg

Sports Editor

My dreams have been answered. I was fortunate enough to be able to see the Great Five of the World Series between the Cardinals and the Twins.

It was an incredible experience. If I ever have the chance to go again, I would do it again, as if you ever have the chance to attend a World Series game, you must go.

Let me start at the beginning and just my thoughts. My thoughts and the thoughts of my teachers, Mrs. Burns and Mr. Dohle, that I am sorry for missing school, but I just couldn't resist the offer.

After watching the Cards win the fourth game with a few friends, we decided to go to the next game in St. Louis.

The two guys I was watching the game with, Larry and Don, thought it was crazy, but after a minute of reasoning, we really could go, so we started planning.

Larry and I went into work the next morning and told them we were going to the next game. Don at 7 am. He couldn't go. The only Twins fan I know couldn't see his team in The World Series.

But we still went on the Amtrak.

After arriving in St. Louis at around 5:30 pm, we started to look for tickets. After we found one, we found a blarney seat for $75. I thought the whole trip was for naught, as we only had $60 apiece to go on the train.

But our luck changed and we had a guy with a pair of tickets who would sell them for $100. We bought them in a minute and made our way inside Busch Memorial Stadium.

After finding our seats behind first base in the upper deck, the score set upon us. Over the left field part of the game, we could see the St. Louis Arch. It was beautiful.

All the fans in the stands were wearing red and white.

The people behind us asked if we were from the Cards, but before we could answer, a large man came out from the crowd. Augie Busch was coming through the right field wagon gate. He stopped and talked with the Budweiser girls and the Budweiser Chicks (on a red wagon). Augie is a god to the average St. Louis citizen and probably to the whole state of Missouri.

Augie Busch has so much influence in that town that I bet he can do anything, during the seven years since he closed signs the Budweiser song, instead of the traditional version of "Take Me Out to the Ballgame." Then he went for the middle of the eighth inning.

The fans are usually loyal and here the same Cub fan (that I am) thought he was the best fan in the world, but there is some competition south of us and unfortunately we will never understand why.

After the Cards won the game, the small downtown section of St. Louis was wild, but only for about a half hour. Our train didn't leave until 4:40 am, so we had about four hours to waste after the game and the train station closed at midnight.

So after wandering around we found an open mall and went inside. Of course, there were no more cars for about a half hour. We sat down and fell asleep. A couple of uniformed

Harper receives highest recommendation: Ten - year accreditation

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

Harper College received a ten-year accreditation, the highest designation, from North Central Association of Colleges and Schools, on October 21.

Harper has been preparing for accreditation by the Central Association for two years, steering committee, consisting of Dr. Joann Prowell, student development professor; Dr. John McLaughlin, English professor; speech/communication professor; and Dr. Roger Russell, electronics technology professor, was developed three years ago to prepare a self-study document.

The self-study document, if that is kind, was designed to evaluate the college using criteria established by the North Central Association's Commission on Institutions of Higher Education. They are:

Criterion 1 "The institution has clear and publicly stated purposes with its mission appropriate to a post-secondary institution."

Criterion 2 "The institution has effectively organized adequate baccalaureate and physical resources into educational and other programs to accomplish its purpose."

Criterion 3 "The institution is accomplishing its purpose." Criterion 4 "The institution can continue to accomplish its purpose."

"I think it [the self-study document] was a very thorough and honest look at the college," said McLaughlin.

The last accreditation, in 1981, was for six years. The college was in the process of securing additional tax money from the state legislature at the time, so the evaluation was found to be less than financially stable. The evaluation team could not offer a maximum accreditation.

Throughout interviews, with faculty, administration, and representatives of the student body and careful examination of the self-study document, Chairperson from the North Central Accreditation Team, Dr. George Gram, observed the "spirit of collegiality," according to a memo from President McGrath.

There are four steps remaining before a final documentation of accreditation can be received by McGrath.

The first step requires "recommendation by all team members, the college president and the North Central Commission staff member assigned to the institution."

Then, McGrath must send a "Formal Written Response" which will become available to future evaluation committees.

Next, a panel consisting of three North Central Commissioners-at-Large review the written material and either grant their approval to the North Central Commission, or advise the college in a Review Committee.

Finally, North Central takes "official action" by either sending a letter and updated Statement of Affiliation Status to McGrath (expected in the spring of 1988), or a letter of withdrawal including reasons for decision.

President McGrath expects to receive the letter of withdrawal in the fall of 1988.

The first step requires the hard work the steering committee has donated for the past two years and sends congratulations to the Board of Trustees and to all members of the Harper College community for your part in earning the evaluation team's recommendation for maximum accreditation."

COLLEGE NIGHT A CROWDED SUCCESS

By Gloria Carr
Staff Writer

Harper College held its first annual "College and Careers" night on Monday evening of Informatics College and Careers' night with approximately 800 people in attendance.

In the past, colleges were invited to visit Harper during the day. Due to poor attendance from previous years, a new program was developed.

"We wanted to get at working people and were hoping to attract different people. This is the first year it has been this extra student development department."

"The panels, job search and all the seminars were filled to capacity," said Jane Weisney, also from the student development department.

John Papandrea, student described to come to college night because, I wanted to check out a couple of colleges I was interested in." He also thought having the program at night was a plus.

"It did not interfere with my search with school or after school activities."

The evening offered students over 200 opportunities to talk to representatives, advisees, academic departments and various presenters.

Plans for the program began last April by a committee of six representatives from the faculty, public relations area, student government and student development department. Due to the introduction of the various panels and presentations, the list of colleges invited was expanded. Ruth Miller, director of placement, said among the schools present were "All Illinois schools and the most prominent schools outside of Illinois."

Alan Young, a representative from University of Illinois-Chicago, says, "Everyone has been treated individually. High school students who are shopping around and college students are asking about specific courses."

One student said, "I found most of the people there who I expected were willing to help me, but did not really answer my questions."

Harper College had representatives from counseling, financial aid, admissions, health services, student activities and the learning resource center.

Many presentations were available, including a career third candidate, Harry Sunderland, received 9,979 votes.

In the highly contested four-year term race, Orzech received 11,341 votes, while Miller 6,979. Peter Bakas received 6,153. Walter Wroble and Lawrence Weiner rounded out the field respectively with 5,036 and 5,044 votes respectively.

"An environmentalist's viewpoint"

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Concrete covers and constructs will be here for a long time, probably longer than any of us. The familiar signs around the campus say something to the effect: "Please excuse the inconvenience - we're trying for a safer and more attractive environment."

From an environmentalist's viewpoint I noticed the "more attractive" part in those signs and decided to see if the campus is more attractive now.

Between D and F-Bridges, there used to be two wide sidewalks, both cement, and now there is one. Huray! Huray!

Less concrete means more room for grass, bushes and trees. Less concrete means more water infiltration (less flooding) and more oxygen. More trees mean concrete means a more vibrant, less harsh-looking campus.

That same sidewalk elimination, in my opinion, makes all the inconveniences caused by construction and destruction bearable. The absence of one sidewalk makes for a more attractive campus.

I also noticed many more ramps, instead of steps. Designed for wheelchair access, a good reason in itself the ramps also require less cement in construction.

Less cement benefits the ecosystem and ourselves by allowing for runoff and absorption levels increasing.

Why am I concerned about cement? About runoff? About flooding? It is a personal concern, but others who've had to experience flooding will share my concerns.

Acre upon acre of cement and asphalt used for new office buildings, completed, creates a barren wasteland on the otherwise green ground, creating a flood situation every time we have heavy rainfall.

I am also concerned about symbiotic relations with the ecosystem. Whether or not the College's administration and/or planners anticipated the benefits of limited concrete, I do not know.

If the "hole" behind F-Bridge is a conservatory plan, it regards the conservatory, I am certain the interlocking and other environments would benefit.

Also, let's not forget plants on sidewalks would help.

Anyone with further plans for "naturalizing" the campus please contact me or write a letter to the Senate.

A reNEWed club

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Many more activities around campus, especially clubs, are emerging this year. A prime example is the one of the members of Student Senate as chartering new clubs. One such new club is sponsored by psychology professor James Rollman and Jim Johnson.

After an clever year hiatus, the Psychology Club will again open on Monday, November 16 at 7 p.m. in Room 102 of the Psychology Club, sponsored by professors Daniel Cohen and Michael Ostrowski, began in 1976, and has been inactive since its opening until 1979.

The initial interest of the Psychology Club were to promote interest in psychology, especially among the current events, trends and testing procedures in the field.

Chairman of the Psychology Club, Ostrowski says, "we had to dissolve the club," similar to what happened to many other organizations then, due to a drop in student attendance and an overall lack of interest.

The objectives of the Psychology Club this year, according to Rollman and Johnson, are to expand the knowledge of its members by having discussions about established and expanding topics in the field, having speakers from the community, such as on the techniques of hypnosis (for relaxing, quitting smoking, etc.) and conducting field trips to various universities, Psychiatric Facilities, or the area, such as to Little City.

The exciting part of the Psychology Club is that 492 Harper students, faculty and staff members are not the only ones that can be interested in the field; anyone with an interest in a specific topic in psychology can attend the entire field meetings organized to allow for.

Once again, the first meeting will be at 7:30 p.m. on Monday, November 16 at 102. Club officers will be selected and the year's agenda will be determined at this meeting. Further questions regarding the Psychology Club can be answered by either professor Roll (ext. 3244) or professor Ostrowski (ext. 2496).

Honor Society inducts new members

by Kim Ostrowski

One of the most elite societies for American junior colleges, Phi Theta Kappa, inducted its newest members at Harper College's Phi chapter last Thursday afternoon at a ceremony and tea.

The honorary academic fraternity demands sustained excellence from each of its members: a minimum G.P.A. for the inductees is 3.50 at the time of induction of twenty-four hours.

The Thursday ceremony in A-320 started promptly at 7:30 p.m. with President Karen Lamb and Vice President of Academic Affairs David Williams, Williams representing the faculty.

Travis, who said he had the induction into PTK is a stamp of excellence on [the member's] permanent academic record,"

Williams said. Drane Gough, Associate Professor of Law at Loyola University and President of the Illinois Division of the A.C.A., spoke on the importance of the Constitution - its 200th anniversary and its implications on education.

Professor Gough stressed the importance of several recent cases' impact on the education system over the past two centuries.

Tying a Yellow Ribbon for Peter - But remember the "others", too.

As I write this editorial, I am staring at the large yellow ribbon I received for my donation to the Peter Soby - P.S. We Care fund.

For those of you not familiar with this cause, if there is indeed one, Peter Soby is a Harper student who was injured in a diving accident over the summer. His response to Peter's plight by his friends, teachers, and co-workers has been really heartening. The ramifications for doing things on a small off campus to help raise funds for Peter's bills borders on religious mania. Peter has obviously made many good friends at school. While this is obviously a good situation, it breeds a big criticism.

I sat in on the first organizational meeting for Peter. I was also the only person to discuss whom Peter personally. While I was and am in favor of doing what can for Peter, I warned them about the danger of disregarding the other disabled students both on and off campus.

I mean, at the time that four or five new programs were being planned for Peter, there were students in wheelchairs that were literally getting stuck in gravel in between buildings C and F trying to get to class because Harper wanted to pave new walkways and make a court to house yet another structure. Someone the slogan: "A safer and more attractive campus" didn't seem much of a consolation to these people.

Please understand; I am NOT saying that we shouldn't do all we can for Peter. We should. Now and later. But also, when you are trying to buy a tree, or buy something at an upcoming benefit for Peter, think a moment about all the places that you went today that were not disabled accessible. Those few steps or that large such, or those large doors.

Peter Soby and other disabled people do not want or need our pity. They DO deserve our consideration, courtesy, and help whenever possible.

...Off The Record...

h Carol Carkeek

The weekend came and went as fast as Judge Berk disappeared from the public eye.

It's possible I was suffering from weekend withdrawal symptoms.

I mean, here it was Monday morning. And there I was about to stumble out of the stairs in flannel at 7:50 a.m.

The stairs looked like they were never.

Putting my head down and plunging forward, I began the endless climb.

I did go on forever.

I climbed and climbed. Thinking I was nearer my destination, I raised my head. I saw the stairs again and knew I knew it was the third floor. I knew it was the third floor because the sign read: This Way Enter and that's one sign I always read.

Why is it that it seems to take longer getting from the first to the second floor than it does from the second to third floor in Bldg. F?

Of course, to make matters worse, some mornings I swear the stairs have been replaced by an escalator, and I'm the only one going in the wrong direction. On those mornings, it takes me longer to climb the stairs than it does to get from the parking lot to the building. And we all know what a long way it is from you to park in the next country.

Good Grief. I going take a new.

While I was standing there waiting for a second wind to climb the third flight, I noticed something very important down.

Something that only seems that makes having an 8 am class worthwhile. It was the only time of day that there was no one coming down the stairs.

There were no hurrying footsteps, no hurrying students plodding down at you like you're in a scene.

There was no rushing to suggest a poorly choreographed Ziegfeld Follies number.

What you COULD imagine were neat, orderly students walking up the right side and going down the left. Ah h. it's a stairway to Heaven.

While my mind was on other things, the distance grew shorter and I was already up the stairs to the door.

Good Grief. I going take a new.

It's like opening a stuffed client and having the contents tumble out onto the floor.

The whooshing sound of padded bodies is like that of a vacuum cleaner only being released of its pressure. The sound is like that of a communit train whining past your stop.

Then, suddenly, after I graduate, I disappear with "far out" signs in my hand. Know it is.

If someday, after I put those signs on my doors, I reappear with room doors open, those in hotel hallways for the third floor. Know it was me. If you see me, if I regain my sanity, my memory will appear with fondness for my college days. Know they are mine!

U2 - Two Views

History in the making
By Steve Gengel

For those of you, including myself, who were fortunate enough to see the rockers U2 at the Rossmont Horizon this past week witnessed an event that sends all other rock bands out to pasture.

Bono and the rest of U2 settled in Chicago for three unforgettable performances. The 20th, 21st, 22nd, and the 23rd of October and played to sold-out crowds each night. Each show began with the Edge's "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" or "Where The Streets Have No Name" to an ocean of flame from many a lighting rig.

Then, on came Bono cowboy hat and all greeted to a thunderous applause and began to perform his solo. After a few chords an electric guitar was later heard faintly through the storm of devotion but was noticed enough that the opening song was just about to end and it would be the beginning of what would be two hours of "A Voyage Through U2's Catalog."

"Where The Streets Have No Name" was followed with "I Will Follow" from their first album. Another song that has live for years was "Out Of Control" also from their first album.

Songs played soon after "Joshua Tree" included "Running To Stand Still", a raw version of "Bullet The Blue Sky", "Trip Through Your Wires", "Exit", "Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" and "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For".

Older material included in the show also featured "Bad", "Bad", "October", "Prude", "Gloria" etc... Songs from the B sides of singles like "Silver And Gold" and "Sprout" were effectively performed.

Work of other artists were also performed. These songs include "People Get Ready" and a powerful version of "Heber Skeeter" and "Help Me", a Beatles classic.

The show's encore included U2's first single release from the Joshua Tree, "With Or Without You" and ended with an ever popular "A".

U2 bid a long and goodbye to Chicago, but the Joshua Tree tour, as with any U2 show, will never be forgotten. It's the beginning of new things to come.

U-2
By Scott Morton

It was 8:05 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 23rd, and the 30th of October and played to sold-out crowds each night. Each show began with the Edge's "I Still Haven't Found What I'm Looking For" or "Where The Streets Have No Name" to an ocean of flame from many a lighting rig.

Much to their dismay, the singer stepped up to the microphone and whaled, "Hi people with the bubblegum on their breaths."

By the second song of the set, after the initial jolt, the crowd was bouncing around, the gum was stuck to the bottom of the chairs and even the walls were dancing.

They are talented. They're good and thanks to the fact that U2 aren't afraid to change, they're getting some much deserved exposure.

As I was going to the concert I said to myself, "I hope U2 doesn't play 'Wall Or Without You' tonight."

Not because it wasn't a good song, but because I viewed it as an image of pop idolization rather than an accomplished group. But they did play the song about an hour ago and it was very well-received.

Just seconds into the time, though, I had realized I was wrong.

If it takes having some of the best bands make a couple mainstream-sounding to tunes to increase the credibility of the band, then I say bring it on.

Throughout the show that lasted not under two hours, Bono kept me thinking along these lines. Not only did he do it, but he did it by putting the entire scenario of pulling an unsuspecting young girl onto stage for a dance with him. But he did it during songs. And the girls, probably haven't heard before, or at least weren't singing in their sleep.

The second time he pulled this stunt, instead of pulling a banner which read something like, "There is only one flag for the world! THE WORLD IS PLAIN!" they switched to everyone in the crowd.

Early songs like "I Will Follow", and "Party Girl" began to earn cheers from more than just the die-hard fans. The biggest crowd pleaser of the night was the ballad, "Say What?"

This concert was one of the best shows I've been to not because of the band, but because the powerhouse bands, or because the music was great, but because it gave me the more progressive side of the band, and moved towards "popular" mass, and it seemed to give the pop fans a glimpse into what they have been missing.

A HEAP O' WORDS BY PEDER SWEENEY

You could say Maw was a bright woman-a genius even-but I don't know why you would. Paw was always fond of sayin' that Maw's brain was no bigger than a goat turd, but I disagree. I think Maw had the normal amount of brain, it just wasn't made of very good stuff.

And I doubt that any of the great poets were ever inspired by Maw's beauty, (although the aforementioned goat turd may have been). Callin' Maw ugly is like callin' the universe big-you ain't exactly lyin', but you sure ain't catchin' the spirit of the thing. I believe I was eight years old when I chased Maw around the house with a melon baller plannin' to scoop her out and wear her for Halloween.

And that was Maw. Stupid? Yes. Ugly? Certainly. Flatulent? She blew the dog's head off. But there was more to Maw, much more. So many happy memories.

One, I recall, Paw was out back practicin' his approach shot when the business end of his seven-iron somehow got emmeshed with Maw's bridgework. In tryin' to wrangle it free, Paw put a foot to Maw's forehead to gain some leverage. About this time Maw started squealin' pretty good, but Paw was set on retrieving his club and paid her no mind. Eventually, Paw was able to work the club loose. Maw informed us it had been the spikes on Paw's golf shoes that had given her some discomfort, so we plugged the holes with some chewin' gum and she shut up. The seven-iron was somewhat scratched, but Paw was quick to forgive.

Life on a busy farm wasn't all sports and leisure, though, as Maw would surely attest. About once a month and sometimes more, a big storm would roll in. "Batten down the critters!" Paw would holler and Maw would dutifully go out and hold the milkin' cow in a headlock till the storm passed. Fall for it every time.

And it's not every woman who would sit quiet while her husband shaved the words "Go Cubs!" on her head. Well, Maw was no exception, so it's hard to knock Paw for druggin' her first.

Maw had two special talents: The first was her rare ability to grow hair in places where most folks wouldn't want it. The second was a thing where she would wrench her arm back behind her head so that she could lower her hand down over her face. She would then hook two fingers up into her nostrils and lift herself up by them. Now what you'd call a marketable skill, but always a hit at parties.

Maw was also a mighty patron of the arts and was never known to miss a local performance. Once, an experimental theater troupe came to town to perform Ibsen's "The Doll House" with Nora's stirring emergence into seldom delivered entirely in piglatin. Unfortunately, due to a minor mishap with the thresher, Maw was forced to clap with her wrists. The cast and crew were so utterly disgusted by this that they packed up and left town while everyone waited for the second act.

The truth, though, is that we loved Maw dearly and would never have done anything to harm her. Every once in a while, though, her nerves would flare up a bit and she'd start screeching about some little thing or other. Paw was used to these little episodes and would quickly soothe her by servin' up a crisp knuckle sandwich. Funny man, Paw... he kept a brick-which he called his remote control-next to his favorite chair and anytime Maw got unreasonable, he could correct her without gettin' up.

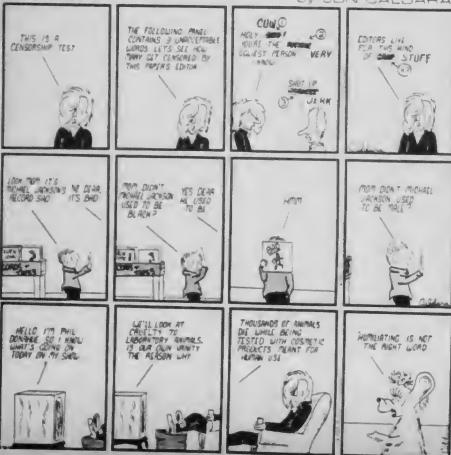

Paw had a fine arm.

As Maw grew older, keepin' up her level of productivity became more and more of a challenge. She seemed to think that just because she was gettin' old and rickety, the roof would stop leakin' and the hay would magically store itself. She was also mighty afraid of goin' senile in her later years, but that was just a matter of semantics since, as I've stated, she was always something of a halfwit.

The day we buried Maw was a very sad one for me and I still get misty-eyed when I think back on her final words:

"Awww, c'mon guys, this isn't funny. Lemme out. C'mon, dig me up, pleeeeeeease..."

Diabetes Screening

Diabetes is a disease in which the body does not produce or properly use insulin, a hormone that is needed to convert sugar, starches and other foods into the energy needed for daily life.

It often leads to other serious complications such as heart disease, kidney disease, blindness and nerve damage. More than 11 million people in the United States have diabetes, but many don't know it or don't even know they have diabetes.

The symptoms of diabetes are: frequent urination, abnormal thirst, rapid weight loss/gain, extreme hunger, drowsiness, general weakness, visual disturbance and skin infections/stow health.

These people are at high risk of diabetes: over 40, overweight, blood relatives of a diabetic and a mother or a brother who weighed over 9 lbs. at birth.

If you are aware of any of these symptoms, or if in any case of the above risk categories, call the Health Service, A362, for free diabetes screening November 9 through November 13.

Ambassador Program More News On Northern Illinois

The Admissions office in conjunction with the Student Development Staff, is in the process of developing the Ambassador Program. The goal of the program is to establish a group of students, who will be available to perform various student service functions. This group would provide a valuable recruitment and retention resource for the College.

We need your help! In order to maintain a quality group of ambassadors, we are asking that you identify yourself as someone who might be an asset to this program. We are seeking both traditional college-age students and adult students.

Activities that our ambassadors might participate in include accompanying Harper Students on visits, serving as receptionists, Student Orientation leaders, conducting campus tours, phoning new students with information about college services, and could assist them in adjusting to college life, and serving as hosts at special events.

The one comment that we will be asking of these volunteers is that they will offer several "positive" words of encouragement to reward the ambassadors. Your help in this project will be sincerely appreciated. For further information contact Bruce Bohrer in the Admissions office.

Presidential Search Committee on the job

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Presidential Search Advisory Committee (PSAC) was charged, October 27, to conduct a search for a Board of Trustees three to five candidates for President of Harper by February 29, 1988.

Patrick Bourke, dean of life sciences and human services, was appointed Chair-person of PSAC. Bourke, a fifteen year employee at Harper, served on a similar committee for President McGrath ten years ago and is currently chair-person for the Administrative Steering Committee for Marketing.

The PSAC consists of thirteen members. Board of Trustees Chair-person, Chris Howard said, "We wanted to have a committee that reflected our constituency."

There are ten contingencies represented: Faculty (two representatives), Classified staff (one representative), Administrative Affairs, Affairs of the President, The Board of Trustees, the community (two representatives), and the students (two representatives).

The Board of Trustees designated ten members, including Secretary Felicia Aylett, Executive Assistant to the President and Chair person Bourke. Three additional members were appointed by their colleagues: Dennis Ryden, the Classroom Empowerment Council; Phil Swartz and Theresa Cummings, appointed by the Faculty.

The PSAC organizational meeting, November 3, covered the calendar, the importance of confidentiality, and definition of responsibilities of the Head of Staff representative and the committee.

The calendar consists of three important dates. The first PSAC meeting is planned for December 1 for reviewing applications. February 29 is the deadline for three to five final candidates to be submitted to the board. The Board of Trustees will vote for a president no later than April.

Bourke and the committee are maintaining confidentiality of candidates' names in respect of privacy.

The Board of Trustees appoints Hendrick and Struggles in a compact, specialized search for higher educational administrators.

Hendrick and Struggles is responsible for advising both the Board of Trustees and PSAC, advertising, disseminating information, networking, and contacting applicants to complete necessary information.

The Board of Trustees has approved a $400 thousand emergency budget used to cover all of the responsibilities of the committee's representation including the application fee.

The Board of Trustees, in order to stimulate interest as early as possible, will begin the process on The Chronicle of Higher Education, October 21 issue.

According to the ad, "The President must have demonstrated scholarly accomplishments in his/her discipline or in equivalent administrative leadership experience and successfully completed a postgraduate foundation in appropriate educational setting."

Many agree that McGrath's communication and academic excellence" is equally important. In fact, Bourke is looking for (a president) just like the one we had."

And Greg Miller, student trustee said, "What I'm looking for is someone like McGrath,"

"Things are going great here, and the new president must minimize that."

interest assessment, a financial aid presentation, career change for a job interview panel, and a social skills panel.

Karen Bychowski, a high school student attending the vocational career presentation said, "I liked it a lot. I thought it was very informative. All four speakers were interesting."

Some of the presenters who spoke on the panels were Molly Boy, psychologist; Laura Whalen, child development specialist; Don Sklar, administrator; Connie Brownell, high school teacher.

Next year, College Night will remain essentially the same but build upon last year's success.

"We are definitely going to have college and career emphasis. And we will have professionals from various careers to serve on panels along with seminar," said Mills.

Coach Eliasik talks about playoff game against Moraine Valley on Saturday

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

Now we begin the second season

The difference between last season and the recent undefeated seasons is simple. The 9-0 record last year came with this season. Every team is all in and the teams who lose, very simply go home, losers.

But this is something the Hawks have not had to do this year. The 1987 Harper team has not lost a game after a game with a loss. This year is not losses.

They are the swimmiest team in the conference this year and they have had the leadership to get them where they are at, so they have to be good.

The man at the helm of the ship is coach John Eliasik and he is continually approaching the chance in play out the remainder of the season he has with several more wins. And this year he has some team behind him to do it.

Eliasik doesn't get cocky about this year because it is not over. He still is playing his cards ready one game at a time, just like he has been doing all year. But coming Saturday is no different as the Hawks will play host to the Moraine Valley Marauders in the opening game of the Region IV playoffs, a team the Hawks beat earlier in the year, 38-8.

"They have the scoring capability if we give them the ball," Eliasik said. "They used the short game little against us last game, and I would expect them to use it again."

Eliasik is leaving nothing to chance since he has already seen the Marauders play this year, but they were not the hawk they have been using.

"They have a big and fast back coming around who plays real well," Eliasik said. "They may try to establish him in the game."

The Hawks will surely be tested, according to Eliasik, and the rush defense is the key to the Hawks winning the game.

"Earlier in the year, we were running in the pass defense department, but in the late game, we were running because... The defense will definitely be tested."

When asked about who he would like to play in the championship game, Eliasik replied, "I just want to get through this game. We first have to get there in there about it."

Attention women softball players!!

There will be a meeting for those interested in playing softball on November 5th at 3 pm at Building-M in room M244. If you are unable to make the meeting or have any questions, contact Myra Minuskin at ext. 2466.

Martin breaks 1,000 yards as Hawks beat I.V.

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

Well ladies, it's official.

The Hawks have completed their first ever undefeated regular season campaign as it was wrapped up Saturday night with Harper downing host Illinois Valley, 15-13.

The Hawks, an extended third-ranked Hawks win streak to 10 games and pattern at 9-0 in the season, the first time a Hawks football team has ever accomplished this and the first time a NCHSAA team has done it since the Apaches did it in 1979.

The win also marked another record breaking day for sophomore running back Dan Martin. Martin rushed for 126 yards and 28 carries to put his current single season rushing record at 1,350 yards surpassing giving him 1,350 yards so far in his 2-year career. Martin broke the 2-year record held by Ron Burkhardt (1,350 yards) in 1979.

Martin is setting new highwater marks this year, coach John Eliasik said. "He has played a big role in where we are at right now and he is fantastic to be able to play behind the big offensive line we have. He has a good blend of things and he gets to do all those things behind the offensive line."

The Hawks opened the scoring in the first half with a touchdown quarterback Al Snyders a 12-yard pass to give the Hawks a 10 lead.

The Apaches answered the blowout in the second half, twice before the Hawks scored again before the half ended.

The Hawks closed the scoring gap before the half ended with Snyder striking again to give take 29.8 Apache lead.

The Hawks closed the scoring gap before the half ended.

The defense shut down the Apaches offense in the second half while allowing zero yards in passing offense the whole game.

"I can't say every member of the defense is going up to 100 yards," Eliasik said. "They were incredible. The defense is the most consistent thing on the team this year and they had a real good performance this game."

To prove the defense's dominance, the Hawks improved its 26-78,

which averages out to an 8.7

Senate Ready for Action

Officers Appointed

By Douglas Ray

News Editor

The Student Senate is finally ready for action after last Wednesday's senate meeting, where two vacant seats were filled and officers were elected.

The two vacant seats were to be filled by club representatives: members John Reszenebny, member of the Young Democrats; Trevor Lub, and George Simonsen, member of the Political Science Club, were voted to fill the two positions.

Bob Bois, senator for the Technology, Math, and Physical Sciences division, was unanimously appointed Student Senator.

Gwyn Stunt, counselor Aida, was elected vice president and Linda Klopp, representative for club activities, was selected for treasurer.

Because of restricted time, the officers report and committee's report as well as senate goals were deferred until the next meeting.

Literature Club, and the

The senate updated the list of senators representing computer science, library and academic computing, calendar, copywriting & patent, cultural arts, educational services, institutional marketing, and student conduct.

Reports were given by senators Orosowski, Knickelbein, and Baumyak on the needs they had with their diverse clubs.

Senators Bois and Baumyak, and Mike Hamm, representing the Academic and Educational Arts student senate, reported on the Illinois Community College Student Activities Association (ICCSAA) conference held October 30 and 31.

Recently in the hospital room of the Halligan Building, the Student Activities Advisors were staying for the annual Illinois Community College Student Activities Association (ICCSAA) conference held October 30 and 31.

Because of restricted time, the officers report and committee's report as well as senate goals were deferred until the next meeting.

According to John Gelch, Harper's dean of physical education and health, it began in 1973 when Triton and Harper agreed to have a football playoff. The propeller was a

Harper - Triton Propeller Returns Home

symbolism of a win

The losing team would take the propeller home the winning team at the end of the game, Gelch said. "We thought the propeller would stimulate more interest in football games between the two teams."

But, according to Gelch the propeller was stolen before its official induction as the symbol between Triton and Harper.

Borelli, director of Harper's student activities at the time, was reached by phone at Eastern Illinois University where he is now Vice President of Student Services.

Borelli said, "The propeller came up at one of our student activities board meetings." According to Borelli, student activity directors from different colleges used to get together to exchange ideas and information.

A propeller was chosen as a travelling trophy because of its location of the two schools being separated by Interstate 90.

According to Borelli they were members of what was then named The Skyway Conference, which seemed to make a propeller an appropriate symbol.

The conference consists of athletes and student activities personnel. The conference is now called The North Central Conference.

The propeller, was a prop that Triton had access to, which they contributed to represent the winners of the yearly tournaments between the two schools. And when the original disappeared Triton immediately replaced it.

"We knew of the real one and the mysterious circumstances in which it had disappeared. So most people had thought all these years that the propeller that we have seen exchanged at the Triton, Harper games have been the one and only one."

According to Bois and Gelch about the mysterious disappearance of the propeller they started receiving post cards from all over the country. Some post cards came from different people saying things like "Have you checked your lake recently?" We knew where the propeller was."

Then, in 1985, Bois said some, more than others, to believe they would get the trophy back.

"As long as the post cards were coming and they came from out of state, we thought we could avoid the propeller again," Borelli said. "But when they stopped coming we all figured we'd never see it again." he said.

When the propeller was found a note was attached, the note read as follows:

To Kevin Conroy, student activities director of Triton, and Frank Borelli, student activities director of Harper at the time, we will be glad I have returned.

If you take better care of me, I'll stay awhile."

Signed, "The Prop."

Features

Autumnal friend

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

In a recent edition of the Chicago Tribune there reappeared a classic, like an old friend long missed.

I am not talking about classics in the sense of literature, poetry, or art, but about a prose. The story, really a cartoon, is John T. McCutcheon's "Injun Summer."

This story graced the front of the "Sunday" section of the Tribune for many years, but is now tucked deep within. Why the change?

Perhaps not as many people remember the little story. Or, maybe no one cares to read them anymore. It is too sentimental, not "innovative" enough.

Whatever the reason for placing the story on the inside, rather than on the cover, I am happy to report it is still printed. Even wrote a letter to that Tribune editor.

I guess "Injun Summer" represents the essence of Fall. For me, I have never read the story in the memory of a grandfather to his young grandson while they observe the corn fields while they observe the corn fields in dash. Because the story is dated first printed in 1907 the corn stalks are rarely, if ever, seen anymore.

Corn shocks are amorphous or so corn stalks prop up each other to allow them to dry before the winter sets in. I only had the opportunity to see corn shocks once, and that was while driving up to northern Wisconsin on a road trip. The amount of corn farms on the hills, was the field with the corn shocks. Never again have I seen the little tapers of corn.

The story begins when the corn stalks get snow. The corn down, period, without stacking them in shocks.

Anyway, these corn shocks in the story give food for thought. The grandfather tells the young boy about "Injun" spirits and their legends.

The grandfather lets the boy, who is very much like him, lick the corn shocks from here, but then's Injin tents... and the smoky song o' smell in the air is their campfires a-hum and their piping.

The story goes on to explain why leaves change and eventually fall, fair old "Injuns" come with the change on the leaves, causing the leaves to change color and fall to the ground under the weight.

Nowdays, especially night are the campus fields formerly used for crops are being scraped and flattened for buildings, or buildings are growing where we call it.

Stories like "Injun Summer" make one think about our heritage and the seasons and yes, even the weather. Perhaps the story is just that, a story, but it originates from an event that is not all that obscure and long ago as we might think.

Parking lot repairs - The administration's little joke?

Enough is enough already. Administration has had its little cold! It is well into November now, and, maybe its just my imagination, but it seems that the geniuses designing the master renovation plan (such a thing exists), have left the best for last. The parking lots.

Somewhere I'm convinced of this, someone has a job whose only responsibility is to make sure that some group (the largest group) is inconvenienced by the construction. I like to think of him as a "Construction - Project Inconvenience Expert" (C-PIE).

This is the same construction project that we were told would only inconvenience students for a couple of more weeks? Two weeks ago, I know it rained a lot, but not for five weeks straight.

But back to the parking lots. Assuming the powers that be knew that parking lot 2 (the south side of M) will have to be under repair when this project begins, why would they wait until the weekend to get ready to begin the project? Judging by the progress on the visitors lot in front of A Building, parking lot 2 should be available by the time the weather gets warm again.

This means that the hundreds of students who would normally park in front of either Building A or M will have to walk twice as far to their cars, sometimes after dark, in the freezing cold. Because a project that was supposed to be finished in two weeks, I know, C-PIE in charge should be given a raise. He's certainly doing his job.

From the "Don't just stand there and bitch, what-would-you-haves" file, why not allow students to park in the faculty lots while the repair work is done?

I realize that students having such a little further to go from class each day isn't a huge deal in the cosmic order of things, but I did notice that none of the faculty or administration parking lots were closed for repair.

Like Ginsburg, I was a product of the sixties and seventies, but I didn't smoke marijuana. At least I don't remember smoking any.

I was at a gathering and someone asked me if I wanted some Coke. I accepted, adding, "Could I have a straw, I like to drink mine this way."

Another person passed me a slightly odd-looking cigarette I never heard of before. "I've never tried one before," I replied.

Still another passed me a couple of large white pills. I accepted. "This might cure my headache," I said.

Appearance seemed to be a factor with the first nominee, Robert Bork. But I don't think that a few hairs on my chin count when shaving. So that doesn't count.

On the crucial issue of civil rights, I feel I am very civil in people when I am right (which is most of the time). So I'm okay on that one too.

I have, on occasion, however, been known to exceed the bounds of propriety and misplace a decimal point on my checkbook. I failed to return a library book in a timely manner, neglected to buckle my seat belt for short trips, crumpled up my car keys, and failed to return increment change amounting to less than a dollar.

But I knew for certain that I would be a good Supreme Court Justice. I was approved when I committed the ultimate crime. I yanked off the tag that says: "Under penalty of law this tag is not to be removed" from my fed pillows.

Movie Worth Less Than Zero

by Robyn Davis
Entertainment Editor

Our scene begins with a voice announcing the graduating class of 1987. We then close in on the main character, exchanging words with their parents shortly after the ceremony. It is implied that these are not normal relationships here. Friends are more important.

Andrew McCarthy, James Ganz, and Robert Downey Jr. star as three friends recently graduated from high school. The difference between these kids and the other 80's graduates we go to movies to see is that they are not just lost in the fast lane. They are in the ultra-charged lane of Beverly Hills.

This lifestyle portrayed is taken from the description by Brett Ratner of his new controversial best-selling novel on which the screen-play by Harley Peyton is based.

"Less Than Zero" was produced by Jon Avnet ("Risky Business") and Jordan Kerner and directed by British-born Marck Kaven ("An Officer and a Gentleman") in his American debut.

Anner describes the story as "a bleak portrayal of a clique of rich young people from Beverly Hills who revolve around causal sex, serious drugs, and non-stop partying."

This is quite accurate. It is bleak. They are rich, young, and party a lot. These criteria do not necessarily make for an interesting evening at your local Putt Putt theater.

The story is a tragedy. From the start you can feel the mood of depression hanging over the film. The lighting and music set an ever-present feeling of doom.

The biggest tragedy is the waste of talent in the film. The characters are so one-dimensional that they don't even make the film a profit. We see these faces before and liked them. Whether it be poor acting or lack of talent, the movie leaves you wondering throughout, where or what is it bringing up in and why.

McCarthy, who has starred in such films as "St. Elmo's Fire" and "Mannequin" is Clay Easton, a college freshman who returns to Beverly Hills for Christmas vacation. He is the first semester at a school back East.

Jamie Gertz is Clay's high school girlfriend. Gertz most recently starred in the horror movie "The Possessed" and has been seen in "Crossroads" (opposite Ralph Macchio) and "Quicksilver" (opposite Kevin Bacon).

Robert Downey Jr. is Julian Wells, Clay's best friend. Downey has appeared in "Back to School,"

"Weird Science," "First Born" and "Baby It's You," and he recently appeared in the tele-movie "The Pick-Up Artist." (opposite Mandy Ringwald)

In the beginning we see flashes of what has happened since graduation. This City is a school. Julian and Blair (Gertz) are caught in bed with Clay during one of his visits home. On Clay's return at Christmas vacation, Julian and Blair beg Clay for help with Julian who is in serious trouble with drugs, money, and family.

Julian's mother has taken through a series of Hollywood glamour parties and the adventures that result in trying to get Julian back on track.

For a group of supposed friends there seems to be missing tenderness. Clay is lacking in personality, Julian and Julian's mom is much easier to know. When watching the film because these characters are lacking personality, you don't feel like you care about them. You don't walk out of the movie drained like you usually do with a good teenager.

We are led to believe that St. Elmo's Fire-type stars "Our clique is breaking up, really sucks, I can't handle it." There's a big difference here though. The characters are not as involved in "St. Elmo's Fire," and the "Less Than Zero" crowd simply have more expensive problems.

On a scale of 5 stars (no, I won't give it less than zero), this tragedy of a movie ranks 2.

THE MARGINAL PROPHET

A HEAP O' WORDS BY PEDER SWEENEY

Almustafa

Sage, prophet, holy man and CPA of now.

For twelve years he had awaited the ship which would bear him away from the island of Orphalese and back to the land of his birth.

And for twelve years the people of Orphalese would tug upon their Prophet's chain by saying unto him:
"Almustafa, what?"

And the Prophet would sneer and spit and reply:

"Almustafa this goddam island!"

Until, in his twelfth year, on the seventh day of the month of the Neon Madonna, the Prophet looked to the sea and saw on the horizon the ship which would carry him away. The floodgates of his heart were opened and spilled forth with such joy that his undergarments needed changing.

And as did the ship approach the pier, so did the Prophet approach the pier.

And as did the Prophet approach the pier, so did all the people of Orphalese approach the pier.

And as did all the people of Orphalese approach the pier, so did the pier become rather overrun and begin to sway and threaten to spill into the sea.

And as did the pier sway and threaten to fall into the sea, so did all the people of Orphalese look to their Prophet for guidance.

And having been so beseeched,
the Prophet said unto them:
"Get off the pier you idiots!"

And all of the people of Orphalese stood sway from the pier and thus were led by the Prophet's great wisdom.

And so the Prophet stood before the masses and so was warmed by their love though he would have preferred cash and he said unto them:

"Weep not for my parting, but rejoice in the time we have known together. Do not let your love flow out of you but scoop it up and put it back into you for your love is the gift of the Lord and the Lord gives of it but sparingly and so on and so forth. Listen, we've been over all of this, haven't we?"

And a pregnant woman stepped forth from the crowd and said:

"Master, speak to us of babies."

And the Prophet replied:

"Babies are the salesman's foot in the door of humanity. Were it not for the spell of befuddlement they weave around otherwise sane adults, continuation of the species would be left to careless teenagers. Everyone wants to have a baby, but no one wants a toddler, a tot, a teen or a grown-up. We owe our existence to the cuteness of babies."

And a high-cheekboned man sashayed forward and said:

"Prophet, speak to us of the plight of the gay man who is trying desperately to attain recognition and validity in society against overwhelming indifference."

And the Prophet said unto him:
"Next!"

And from the front of the crowd
a wise man stepped forward and said:
"Prophet, speak to us of Geography for six-hundred."

And the Prophet replied:
"Largest landmass in the Western Hemisphere."

And the wise man said:

"What is Cuba?"
And lo! The Prophet called the wise man a stupid man and deducted six-hundred.

And from the crowd came the delicate voice of a young girl:

"Master, speak to us of love."

And the Master said:

"Awww, Jesus Jumpin' Christ!
Speak to us of this, speak to us of love!
For twelve years you jerks have been following me around! Don't you have jobs? Oh Master, speak to us of love. Oh Prophet, speak to us of the Wankel Engine. Oh Shepherd, speak to us of dust high in fibre and low in saturated fat! How the hell should I know?! Am I the Shell Answer Man?! Well, I've had enough of it! I'm getting on that damn boat and getting the hell away from you stupid little monkeys and good riddance!"

And the crowd stood silent as sorrow turned to anger and anger to wrath.

And a voice from the crowd said:
"Prophet, speak to us of tides and reefs and ships that pass without stopping."

And verily the Prophet did groan.

What it will take for the Hawks to beat Illinois Valley for the third straight time

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

On paper, Saturday's game between the Hawks and Illinois Valley looks as if the Hawks will have an advantage in every aspect.

One should only have to read up to the scoreline to see who should win this game. The Hawks won their last two meetings against the Apaches, 22-7 and 15-9 this year.

But I have noticed a trend in the Hawks' last two meetings between them and the Marauders.

In the first game on October 3, the Hawks scored 22 points, the leading receiver Jeff Prase had 8 catches for 143 yards, and quarterback Al Snyder completed 16 of 24 passes for 233 yards.

In the second game on October 10, the Hawks scored 15 points, the leading receiver Jeff Durbin caught 2 passes for 73 yards and Snyder was 8 of 19 for 183 yards.

Most of the Hawks' statistics decreased in the second game.

I little-bit think a few things happened that night. It was played on Halloween night at Illinois Valley, Illinois Valley is a far drive (Joliet, who finished the season 1-9, is about 100 miles from Joliet) and the weather was terrible. That day, prancing Halloween is taboo for those teams.

There is one set of facts of that night that increased in the second game. In fact, it increased and tather largely at that. This player has played a major role in the Hawks' success this year.

In the first game, Dan McMahon had 80 yards on 35 carries, but in the second game he rushed for 100 yards on the same amount of carries.

"We are going to do the things we normally do and hopefully we'll do a little better," McMahon said.

The final stat which improved between the games was the Hawks' lead in sacks. So far this year, this team has proved themselves worthy of their 10-0 record and their intense play forced Illinois Valley to their knees.

If the veterans can remember the disappointment they suffered against Durban last year, Iowa is only a bus trip away.

Another stat which improved between the two games was the pass defense. In the second game, the pass defense did not allow any passes over 20 yards.

This year promises to be a major factor as Illinois Valley beat DuPage last week on a 2-yard pass play.

McMahon has assured me his team will not be making any changes against the Hawks team, and I also believe he will not change for Saturday's game.

He said his team doesn't play well and that they have been beaten because the Hawk defense shut down the passing game in their last meeting.

Hawks get past Moraine Valley, 30-26

By Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor

The last play of the contest almost ruined the Hawks' perfect season last Saturday and what a way it would have been to end the season.

The Apaches were able to drive the ball inside the Hawks' 5-yard line, but fortunately for a moment the Hawks' defense responded with a 73-yard touchdown run to put the score at 23-20 in the Hawks' favor.

After holding a 20-0 lead, the Hawks were able to sneak away from their home field with a 20-26 victory.

The Hawks beat the Marauders earlier in the year, 18-8.

The win sets Harper up for a date with Illinois Valley this Saturday at Harper for the North Central Community College Conference championship. Illinois Valley earned a trip to the game by beating heavily-favored DuPage, 28-26. The winner of this game will play a team in play in the Royal Crown Bowl and the loser will play to the Midwest Bowl in Triton. The last two years have been part of touchdowns to cut the Hawks' lead to 20-14.

The two teams traded scoring blows in the second half.

Harper got the first scoring in the third quarter for the Hawks as he hit a 29-yard field goal to put the Hawks up 20-14.

Illinois Valley responded with a 73-yard touchdown run to put the score at 23-20 in the Hawks' favor.

The always-reliant Hawks running back Dan Martin ensured the game in the second half and exploded for a 73-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter to put the Hawks on top of the Marauders record book at 18-8.

Martin extended his record for a single-season rushing to 1,215 yards, and he needs only 26 more to break the school's all-time record of 2,000 yards rushing for his entire two-year career at Harper.

The Apaches put their final points on the board late in the fourth quarter on an 18-yard touchdown run to end the game's scoring at 30-26.

Ironically, the Hawks were outgained in total offense by Illinois Valley, 425 yard to 344 yards, but Harper out-downed the Marauders 19-16.

Snyder continued his impressive freshman year completing 10 passes on 18 attempts for 108 yards and 2 touchdowns.

The Hawks' 20-0 lead took nearly half an hour through the second quarter as George Chasman scored from 1 yard out for the Hawks.

But before the end of the half, the Marauders struck for a

Harper student Selected as Semi-Finalist

By Alisa Christoffel

Staff Writer

Charlene Wanar, 20, daughter of Robert and Shelly Wanar of Mundelein, has been selected as a semi-finalist in the 1988 Miss Illinois USA pageant, which will take place in the Grand Ballroom at the Woodfield Hilton Hotel the weekend of November 27th.

The winner will represent Illinois in the Miss USA pageant which will be televised live next February. Miss USA will win over $100,000 in cash and more than $75,000 in prizes and awards.

Wanar will be judged on the basis of beauty of face, figure, pose, personality, grooming, intelligence and speech ability.

Wanar's sponsors for the Miss Illinois pageant are Countryside Bank; Rosati's Pizza; Colorprint, and Scott's Auto Parts.

During the next two weeks Wanar will be preparing mentally and physically for the Miss Illinois USA pageant. She will work a two hour day at my health club," she said. "I'm on a low fat/no cholesterol diet. I take care of myself. I give myself the best environment I can have to myself."

Wanar is selected to be a semi-finalist in the Miss Illinois USA pageant. She will be competing against over two hundred girls from different cities in Illinois.

Besides the usual evening gown and swimsuit competition, Wanar will be required to have a location for state costume during the glamorous ball costume night. Every girl wears a costume that she feels represents her state. In this case, the cardinal or monarch butterfly.

"You're judged on what you can think of creatively," said Wanar. "You're not necessarily somebody (or something) else. You have to portray an image of what you are because they're not judging you on your looks."

It's just basically what your creativity is."

Wanar's costume, designed by fashion designer Mar Neely Stahl Russo, received her design training while she was a student at Harper College. According to Russo, Wanar is "a very creative, smart and talented" by the design education she had received at Harper.

Wanar, a 1985 graduate of Woodlawn High School, began her modeling career about three years ago. She shot pictures with various photographers and did magazine modeling with MTV in Chicago.

Her first pageant, Miss Teen USA, was held at her home of being selected as a state semi-finalist.

Last summer, Wanar entered the English Leather Monostitch Calypso Girl Competition. She placed in the top ten and got a chance to parake on the stage in Las Vegas. Recently, Wanar was chosen from high school to receive her state constituency license.

While in high school, Wanar also competed athletically. She refers to herself as a modeling student at John H. Johnson's Chicago and graduates in January, was given a chance to become a "Magnificent Model" in a very important competition," Wanar said.

And he's willing to put me to work as long as I keep sending photographs through John H. Johnson," she said.

Wanar describes herself as a model with a real soft, natural look who would like to do trade shows, catalogues, and with the Linda Achille type look.

Is high fashion modeling in her future? "It would be very nice because the money is there," she said. "But I'm not very comfortable. I want something that I can have a base. Something that I can relate and depend on," says Wanar.

During her junior and senior years of high school, Wanar took advantage of the cosmetology program available through Woodlawn High School. She continued attending her high school classes while studying part time at the Academy.

For her graduation ceremony from the Academy she participated in two competitions: haircutting competition and a fantasy bartending competition. Wanar was able to get a job for a place medals on both categories. Upon graduating from high school, she received her state constituency license.

While in high school, Wanar also competed athletically. She refers to herself as a

This is Harper College on the Air

Henry L. Roepken, chairman of Harper's journalism department, states that Harper College has the only two-year college news cast nationally that is broadcast on commercial radio stations.

For its 18th anniversary this fall, it can also credit itself with having one more distinction.

Originated 18 years ago by Roepken, This is Harper College on the Air is prepared by sophomore journalism students enrolled in the Radio and Television News class.

Whichever there's a class, there's a newscast, there's a game, there's a show. Roepken said. "In the community there will be five newscasts five minutes a piece, plus a half hour.

To create an original journal each week takes approximately 30 man hours of work. It's very demanding work. It makes the students work just as hard as if they were on a professional level.

According to Roepken, students have to work 10 hours a week to meet the demands of the course. It's the same type of course that is offered on a university level, he said.

Roepken said that Harper's journalism curriculum is probably the best in the country.

Does the journalism program attract students? "We prepare students to go into the journalism positions listed in the Harper College brochure: newspaper, radio and television newscaster, wire services, public relations and advertising agencies, and business, industrial and consumer magazines."

Roepken said, "Every year I get about 12 people started in the field. If they have the talent and ability, the opportunity is there," he said.

The courses given are of university level and provide the students with the necessary information.

Roepken said, "The employers cannot tell me that I don't have the people."

According to Roepken about half of the journalism students go on to further their education and the other half go on into their prospective fields.

"I've had people around the country compliment me on the success of the program," he said.

I constantly try to improve the curriculum but still the students have fun going in and grab what ever they can," he said.

Roepken started with the college in 1967 when Harper's facilities were located in the former Palatine High School, where he helped establish some of the early public relations programs, radio publicity, wrote the first business report and helped to start the Journalism program for the college.

The original This is Harper College on the Air began 18 years ago under Roepken's guidance in his electronic news course which is now Radio and Television News. "It was originally created as network news broadcasts," he said.

The broadcast is now being heard in WATL 850 AM at 12:30 p.m., Saturdays until Dec. 12.

Experience in the field

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Some students truly become involved in their work, be it in the class or in the field. One club has literally gone into the field hands, or at least some of their members, in Geology Club.

Student Senator and Geology Club member, Bill Bussey, attended the 51st annual Tri-State Geological conference at the University of Iowa. Geology Club's advisor, Larry Knight of Ray Price, was with Bill, with all three representing Buoy at the conference.

Every year this event attracts dozens of students from colleges and universities in Iowa, Wisconsin and Illinois. This year the geologists travelled what was once a major magma shield. It was along these old shores that they searched for clues about environmental changes that occurred eons ago.

Professors and graduate students from the University of Iowa conducted the tours and lectured on specified areas of study. Such areas included age and composition of the rocks and environmental conditions that existed during the sedimentary stage of being deposited.

Not all of the conference was spent in the field, however. There was time to break away and make observations of one's own, and to enjoy the Fall colors.

The weather was chilly most of the time," adds Bill. "We spent two nights camped in a forest preserve near the University before dawn with frost on our noses and a genuine need for hot coffee."

By the end of our long day in the field, I had begun to feel a bit like Martin Perkins, laughed Bill.

Thus, it cannot be said that Hawkeye students are always apathetic. Clubs and organizations around the campus are there to help students acquaint themselves with peers and with extracurricular activities.

At home for the holidays?

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Some might think, "why worry about crime in the winter; no one's going to go out on cold days anyway."

Sorry, but criminals take advantage of the fact that Thanksgiving is three weeks between now and finals, or only one week until Thanksgiving vacation.

Many of us will be counting down the days until we leave for the holidays. Others will stay at home and enjoy the break.

However, the course of action, the safety of the home is something about which we rarely think. Public Safety published a green booklet entitled "Protecting Your Home and Family While Travelling."

Because few people bother to pick up pamphlets on the racks where I would give a synopsis of that pamphlet because the holidays can also be sad days if a home owner fails to handle his burglary that could have been prevented.

Tell relatives you're gone, and give them a rough itinerary with your name, phone number, and which city you could reach you at when you're away.

Ak pose if a vacation household program is available in the area.

Home checks are an added measure against burglary and vandalism.

And, of course, lock all basement and garage doors and windows, as well as those in the house.

Furthermore, using automatic timers on lights and/or T.V.'s around the house will make an empty house seem "lived in."

If one stays at home for the holidays, keeping watch on vacating neighbors houses is not only responsible, but appreciated. Alarmists prevent unwanted attention by burglars and/or vandals.

If an elderly or disabled person or persons requires a more attention than one younger or able, asking that person will not only help him/her, but give the welfare sense of contribution to the welfare of others.

Thus, even though school is rapidly drawing to a close and the holidays are approaching, please "be careful out there." Vacantees may not be the only ones having a good time!

Editorial

A clarification, computer fraud, and smoker's cough - These are a few of my favorite things.

I'm convinced this job is turning me into a rabid old man before my time. I was so frayed about something at least explains the Parking Lot follies I wrote about last week, when I come across two more things to aggravate me.

First, the parking lot. The activities preceding the late passing of the sun last Friday晚上, the blame gets shifted. It seems the parking lot (as well as the sidewalks already finished) project is not only under the auspices of the esteemed State of Illinois (a.k.a. Land of Confusion), but also under their complete control. They gave the money, accepted the bid, and allowed Harper to do the work.

The only provision in the contract for completion dates is the total project which is targeted to April '88. Every time Harper's administration hassles the contractors, they are told, "but we're ahead of schedule."

One of the other things I found out concerns computers. Specifically, the selling of computer hardware. It seems that IBM and Apple have a student/faculty/staff discount program that allows purchases of select systems up to 40% off list price.

It also seems that IBM recently is a little "Product Coordinator" from the college staff to take in and/or cancel orders and collect money. Apparently Harper doesn't think this a worthwhile effort, despite the fact that it is currently in successful operation at Oakton Community College, where they have a significant computer faculty/staff size.

According to Leverage Haffner, Harper's Academic Computing Director, reselling computers would "...require a substantial amount of time, and interfere with the primary purpose of staff members." I am not sure. And as soon as we find out what that is, we'll let you know.

Wait, it gets better. Currently Harper is searching for a retail firm to serve as its middle man on campus. Maybe I'm overly cynical, but I am not sure if any outlet firm will be able to get their cut from our discounted price. I am positive for the distribution either way, but with an outside firm, we'll just be giving the money to an outside company. The logic escapes me.

The last (and quite possibly, least) of my grievances concern the non-smokers. I am a non-smoker, of course (quarter to half a pack per day, and I've never been particularly proud of it, until recently). I understand non-smokers' rights to breathe clean (both of my roommates are non-smokers, and I don't smoke my apples or allow anyone else to; either), and I respect non-smoking areas.

However, I am beginning to take offense to the American Cancer Society's anti-smoking propaganda. Or more specifically, to Harper's legalizing smoking right off campus. I prefer to law enforcement of all activities to be machine-free (cigarettes, at the loss of over $3,000/year to Harper), and the policy the Harbinger supposedly has prohibiting all tobacco and alcohol ads.

Banning alcohol ads I can understand.String as how many students are under 21, violation of the law is being advertised. But since most of (if not all) Harper students are legally of age to smoke, all we're legislating is morality.

Sure, if you want to quit smoking, go ahead. It is better for you, and it doesn't convert me.

I wonder if I can find a "Thank you for smoking" sign for my office.

...Off The Record...

Season?

Should I eat foods that sound like you're chewing rocks and resemble wood shavings and cut grass?

Should I drink things that look like crushed chalk and tastes like Elmer's Glue?

Oh well, I have to admit, I've never seen a fat squirrel. Hmmm, maybe this squirrel has something here.

I mean, who stores food better than squirrels? Who wishes they could hibernate come the first sign of winter more than P. Who's nuts? I am!

By now the realization has set in. If I don't dump a few pounds soon, the only holiday outfit I'll be able to wear will be Santa's.

RAINMAKERS: A flood of good music

By Steve Hill

When a record sounds exceptionally good, one may try to pinpoint the source of the quality. In some cases it may be an excellent lead singer, great outstanding lyrics, or perfect instrumentation. In other cases the quality comes from somewhere, from the recording process itself right down to the drums. This is the case with the new release from the Rainmakers, called "Tornado."

If you've never heard the Rainmakers, the first thing you will notice is Bob Walkenhorst's vocals. To put it one way, his voice evokes a sense of emotion. The Rainmakers offer people like Neil Young and Mark Knopfler who have never claimed to be exceptional vocalists.

Walkenhorst's voice is similar to the Ringingbells of Jason and the Scorchers. Like most "bad" rock voices though, you can get used to it easier than to the Rainmakers' performance.

This record is preceded by Terry Manning, who also produced the debut Rainmakers LP last year (some of you may recall their 1986 tour stop here at Harper).

Skill and enthusiasm pour out of this record in flood proportions. Many songs employ a heavy "choreographed swamp-beat" ala Creedence Clearwater Revival, but there is quite additional musical source of energy here.

Walkenhorst knows how to get a feeling across, he shows off in songs like "Government Cheats" and "Information" on their first album.

Here we have more songs that provoke, stir, anger and laugh, such as "Tornado of Love," which is not a love song at all but deals with the "atmospheric bomb."

Humorous line abounds with such great lines like "I beg your pardon if I seem to be from somewhere else," or "I realized then that the wages of sin was two bucks an hour and working weekends."

The rest of the band must be great as well. They are excellent musicians. Steve Phillips is lead guitar, Rich Ruth on bass, and Pat Tomek on drums.

Give the band a listen; they're worth it. The only unfortunate thing is that they may get lost in the shuffle due to the recent flood of new releases. Good music is there when you look for it!

Arsenic and Old Lace

by Joseph Kesselring

A Comedy in Three Acts

Produced by special arrangement with Dramatists Play Service, Inc.
A Harper College Theatre and Student Activities presentation

The Cast

Abby Brewster	Tari Vaughn
Martie Brewster	Margie Rathke
Teddy Brewster	Larry Paulin
Mortimer Brewster	David Tarzon

The Scene

The entire action of the play takes place in the living room of the Brewster home in Brooklyn, in September, 1940

By Pearl Henderson
Managing Editor

It's hard to believe that two sweet little old ladies could be killing off men like he does. He kills off the dubious Dr. Einstein (played by Dan Dudyck), and another "charity case."

In this delightful but somewhat hard to believe comedy, two sisters Abby and Martha (both played by Tari Vaughn and Margie Rathke respectively), manage to pull off not one murder, but by the end of the play, three. And they can't even get caught!

Arsenic and Old Lace opened last weekend to a crowd of over 6500 Friday, and 1000 Saturday, in Harper College's auditorium J-144.

The play is set in Brooklyn, New York in 1940 where the Brewster family lives together with a host of nephews.

Teddy (played by Larry Paulin), thinks he is the Immortal Theodore. He and the prudish Abby and Martha entice Teddy to join them in their conspiratorial effort of what they seriously believe as "charity work" in the Panama Canal.

And Mortimer (played by David Tarzon), stands up to his unwelcome brother, Jonathan until the bitter end.

And last but certainly not least, the good-natured and kind-hearted Mortimer (played by Tracy Picotte) and breaks the engagement because he decides that Brewster's should not get married.

He is my own personal laundry list.

1. He is always in constant motion. There are no lights.

2. When Mortimer is used and gagged Officer O'Han (played by Paul Despres), doesn't even notice him.

3. Mortimer takes short cuts through the cemetery in get to the Brewster home, and thinks nothing of it.

These guys put a few eccentric events that go throughout the two-hour play. Everyone in the Brewster family seems to be just a little off key.

Teddy thinks he's the president of the United States, Abby and Martha are crazy workers, and Mortimer is a mad killer, who to date has 12 murders he can boast of.

The only person in the family who seems half way normal is Mortimer. I wonder why?

Arsenic and Old Lace succeeds in being both entertaining as well as educational.

All the characters are fully rounded, and the actors all deserve a round of applause.

But, here's the little thing that bothers me. Good English grammar still rules. Good English grammar still rules.

Jonathan and Dr. Einstein, or the Beldam's.

Arsenic and Old Lace has one more weekend, Nov. 20 & 21st. So you will have plenty of time to go see it. Come on, guys, go Mortimer, and decide for yourself who the bad guys really are.

THE BREAKFAST NOOK YOUNG LOVE IN ONE ACT

(It's 8:30 on any Saturday morning. The scene is a cozy breakfast nook surrounded by lace curtained windows. Outside we see the first rays of sunlight as they sparkle off the snow and ice to the world. Sunbirds fly from branch to branch, cooing merrily and rejoicing the new day. As the curtain rises, we see young newlyweds Him and Her, Himmerner as they settle in to the breakfast nook for their morning repast of love and Cheerios.

HER: Good morning, dear!
HIM: Good morning, honey! What's for breakfast?
HER: Anything you want, dear.
HIM: Bacon and eggs?
HER: You know where they are.
HIM: I think I thought you were offering...
HER: Ha!
HIM: Oh.
HER: You said you hated my cooking.
HIM: Not quite. I said you hated how to cook. If you knew how to cook, I'm sure I'd like your cooking.
HER: I do know how to cook and plenty of people like my cooking. If you don't, that's tough for you.
HIM: I understand that plenty of people also enjoy being lashed with a buggy whip.
HER: Oh, that's been a good proposal you ate! And your breath stinks, too! It's taking the curl out of my hair. Couldn't you brush your teeth before you come to breakfast?
HER: What kind of sense does that make?
HIM: I'm not talking about sense! I'm talking about the smell of me and my cat. You're walking stink bomb!

HER: Be quiet!
HER: Don't tell me to be quiet, you jerk. I'll talk whenever I damn well please. You said you don't listen to me half the time anyway!

HER: Conservatively.

HER: Conservatively? Conservatively? You think that's funny? I can't believe what a fool you are! What am I doing here with you?

HIM: Shut up!
HIM: Why, I mighta...
HER: What? You oughta what?
HIM: Oughta...
HER: Yearn what?
HIM: I mighta...
HER: Asshole!
HIM: Slut!
HER: Paw the cream!
HIM: What are we doing this weekend?
HER: Nothing, we're broke.
HIM: We're allways broke.

HER: And we never do anything.
HIM: Well, we should save some money so we can do something.
HER: You look at the checkbook and tell me where we're gonna get some money.
HIM: I'll get some food and kitty litter.
HIM: I'll get rid of you before I get rid of the cat. I might get rid of you anyway.
HIM: What the hell was that noise?
HER: Oh, that's the stupid neighbor's stupid baby. It always starts screaming right after I leave the house, driving me nuts.
HER: That's a living attitude.

HER: Love shmoove. It's not my baby.
HER: So why don't you nap over to borrow some sugar. From the mommy and smother the kid while she gets it?
HIM: Don't be so stupid! God what an idiot you are!

HER: You don't say about killing babies?

HIM: You said you wanted to do that, too?

HIM: Oh, you're going to kill babies with those?

HIM: I can't believe what a jerk you are!

HER: I told you!

HIM: I told you.

A HEAP O' WORDS BY PEDER SWEENEY

HER: Asshole!
HIM: Slut!
HER: They're having an appliance sale at Marshall Fields this weekend. We should go get a nice espresso machine.
HIM: Whatever your heart desires. Since when do we drink espresso?
HIM: Well, we don't drink it because we don't have an espresso machine. And it's espresso, not espresso.
HIM: Oh, I thought it was espresso because you drink it fast.
HER: Do you wanna get one?
HIM: Sure, but I think we were broke.
HER: I think we're in the card.
HIM: Then why don't we go out for a nice dinner and put that on a card?
HIM: Then we couldn't get an espresso machine.
HIM: Okay.
HER: Okay what?
HIM: Okay, we'll go out for a nice dinner and forget the nice espresso machine.
HIM: Forget it, we're broke.
HIM: Okay.
HIM: Is it remotely conceivable that you could get a nice spoonful of cereal from the bowl to save mouth without splattering the table with milk?
HIM: Grrrrr.

HER: What's gross supposed to mean? I spend all my time coughing up after you. Can't you at least make an effort to get your solid food into your stupid mouth?

HIM: Sorry.
HIM: That's all you are is a giant, stupid pig taking gross solid food without making a mess of everything. I'm so big right now and so sick of it!
HIM: Sorry.
HIM: I told you I don't give a damn that sorry crap! I don't care if you're a mouse, you pig!
HER: Sorry.
HIM: That's better.
HIM: Piss off.

When I look up to the dark,
a cold sensation burns deep within me as if the universe was through my soul.

It surrounds my insensors, tightens my nerves and wrangles my body & muscles.
I feel lost, but not forgotten.

This Evil presence, squeezing upon my will, now takes over consuming up all the evil dwelling within my spirit

I ravage all light
all escape routes
And pulls me down to its slippery surfaces.

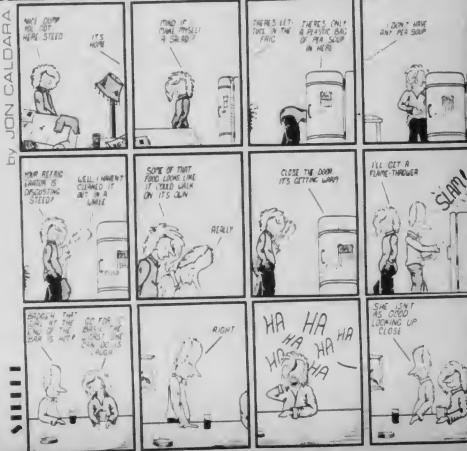

I know no fear now
all life is just use from my system
My will is uncontrollable, since it has no complete understanding.

I shake
The space is still, the sound is gone, the senses have set in to infinite themselves
Nothing has stopped, sickness is here
I try to stand, hands trembling
Fins not responding accurately

I cry
I feel worn out
I feel refreshed
I feel the day in all its glory
Coming to seek me out

The day that presents the dark

Toys For Tots Brightens Xmas

The holiday season is a wonderful time for giving gifts to our families, our friends, and especially to children.

Again this year,

members of the Food Service staff decided that instead of exchanging gifts we would rather give gifts for a child.

This staff has arranged to extend to all of us the opportunity to share in making this a happy holiday season for children in our area through a

Toys for Tots' collection.

Beginning November 20

Last year, "Toys for Tots" collected and distributed 60,000 toys to area children with the help of church groups and nonprofit organizations.

In this fourth year of the program the staff will request for small toys with the help of additional collections such as the one at Harper. Many of the toys are destined for children who possess disabilities or are disabled during the August floods.

Bob Hope is the National sponsor and Clark Webster of WJW-TV and the Cleveland Plain

Dealer is the chairman. The Food Service department will be assisted by the co-sponsoring

U.S. Marine Corps.

From November 20 through

December 11 employees, students and area residents may leave toys in a bin located in the Building A cafeteria. The bin was constructed and donated by the Physical Plant.

Toys are needed for children of all ages up to 14 years. Some of these children have no gifts

"Toys for Tots" gift requests that their Christmas gift toys be brand new or in mint condition, and not gift wrapped. Facilities matching the gift to the child who will receive it. Only toys should be donated—not money, clothing or other gift items.

If you have any further questions you have about "Toys for Tots," please contact Karen Villano of the Food Service department at extension 2250.

female "jock" during her high school days. She was involved in all types of sports and won awards in softball, volleyball, basketball, gymnastics, diving, and track.

School was not Wunar's only concern at that time. After graduating from high school in 1983, she worked full-time in a beauty salon.

Wunar did everything from hairstyling to makeup application. She became more interested in makeup and facial applications and traded careers.

Her new job was as a makeup artist in the new defunct "Natural Colors" store at the Springfield Mall. She advanced to the position of Assistant Manager.

After "Natural Cosmetics" went out of business, Wunar secured a position as Manager at the Grand Road "Hil-Or-Miss."

Desiring more involvement in business, a chance to better herself and serve as a role model, Wunar chose to leave "Hil-Or-Miss" and pursue a Business Marketing and Finance Degree at Harper College.

Wunar is currently a freshman. "I came here for a semester first to get back into the groove of things, and to see if I could do it again," she said. "I am really starting my freshman year."

Wunar found little difficulty adjusting to college life her first semester and was honored academically by being named on the Dean's List.

Enrollment on the Rise

NEW YORK, N.Y. (CPS) -- During a decade in which enrollment at U.S. colleges predicting drastic enrollment decreases at U.S. campuses, undergraduate enrollment actually rose 10 percent in 1986, the College Board reported.

In all, almost 10.9 million undergrads registered for classes last fall.

The U.S. Department of Education counted a total of more than 12 million students, including grad students, on campus last year.

Official figures for the 1987-88 academic year won't be forthcoming until next January. Initial unofficial reports from a wide variety of campuses, however, indicate surprising increases in the numbers of students this fall, fueled partially by increases in the size of the schools' freshman classes.

That was not the case in 1986, the College Board's survey found. Total undergraduate enrollment dropped by 3.1 percent from 1985 to 1986.

The steepest drop was at 2-year

Wunar's education is very important to her. She's looking forward to receiving her two-year-degree at Harper and transferring to Northern Illinois University to receive her Bachelor's degree in Business, Marketing and Finance.

Wunar is looking forward to the competition. "It would be my dream to come true to win. I feel that I have a much chance as anyone else there because I got picked just like they did."

Wunar gives this advice to anyone who would like to follow her footsteps: "If you want to start (modeling) young and don't spend too much money on pictures right away. If your parents are able, get yourself into modeling school like John Casablancas and learn the field."

"If you're interested, follow your passion in life and if you don't find one go into something else. If you keep up with (modeling), you have to learn everything. Everything is very important. You have to be in the hair, the way you carry yourself and your professional attitude."

Wunar said, "Everything just depends on you. If you don't like the aspects of it, if you have a rotten attitude on the job, they'll know that and they won't hire you again. Just be yourself. Be the best you possibly can, and things will work out."

Does Stock Market Bring Down Investing Colleges?

CPS--When the Dow Jones Industrial Average recently plummeted 508 points, the value of many stock portfolios held by schools across the nation also fell precipitously.

Campuses typically own portfolios full of stocks, and use the profits to pay for new buildings and other big-money construction projects.

Schools with large endowments, moreover, have in recent years been using their stock profits to provide financial aid to students frozen out of federal aid programs by budget cuts.

While some officials worried that wealthy contributors might become less generous, no one was predicting the collapse would hurt contributions in the future, although the collapse in percentage terms was worse than the great crash in 1929 that ushered in the economic depression of the 1930s.

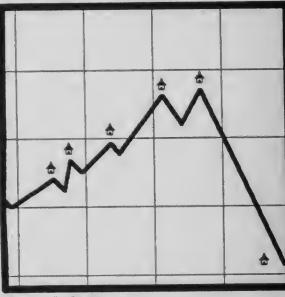

As (contributors') personal wealth goes down," said Stanford University's Provost James R. Thompson, "donors may be less willing to make donations to the university."

The university will wait for the market to settle down before making any conclusions," said Stanford University's Provost James R. Thompson, "a typical of most colleges attitude."

Stanford's $1.5 billion endowment "took a $70 million hit as a result of the crash," said James B. Brey.

The University of Texas system's endowment fell from $2.9 billion to $2.6 billion. David L. Jackson, director of Asset Management Michael Patrick said.

But because colleges play the stock market carefully and conservatively, said Jack Cox of the National Association of College and University Business Officers (NACUBO), the impact will less than other investors suffered.

Cox and other observers predicted the market would rebound, as it did during the tumultuous market drop that preceded it.

"I don't see an appreciable impact on endowments," Cox said.

"With endowments so widely diversified, the stock market should not have much of an impact on institutions," Cox said.

NACUBO's Cox saw a silver lining business and the federal government, he reasoned, would have to make more money available to help pull the nation out of a recession.

"Higher education is a good investment especially during hard times," he said, because education and retaining become even more essential.

Stanford, however, is thinking of investing more in stocks, now that last week's crash has let some share prices fall low enough to become bargains, Brey said. "We have the cash. Now we're better positioned to invest."

Most observers say the stock market should not have an immediate impact on tuition, salaries and other education costs.

"The crash will have no impact on the 1987-88 budget," said Stanford Vice President for Budget and Finance William Murphy.

"I don't think it will affect us," said Washington's Woodham. "But if contributions and endowments decrease and other revenue sources also suffer from the result of a faltering stock market, adjustments will be needed."

"But," Woodham added, "right now it's just too hard to predict."

Peter Soby benefits gaining momentum

By Elsby Carr
Staff Writer

When Peter Soby developed a form of cancer and was left paraplegic, he only changed his life but also lived up to the standards of students at Harper College who have reached out to help Soby and his family.

"Something like this just doesn't happen to someone like Peter; it's always the news but it does really affect you. It's still an incredible shock," says Dennis Gonzales, a friend and neighbor.

During his year at Harper, Soby was involved with the College Choir, traveling with the group to Europe, a Trustee Scholar, a WHCM broadcast co-host of a small disc jockey show.

Since his accident many things have changed for Soby. He now has four regular therapy classes where he says his goals include "strengthening arms and shoulders, they teach you to do different things." Although Soby had been in months of physical therapy before his accident, Mrs. Pat Soby says, "I think he does super." His therapist works with him, using his hands, so far he's writing and he has surpassed all the goals his therapist has set for him.

The cost of the hospital classes, medical care, medical expenses have already reached an incredible amount. "I haven't paid off all the bills, but already the total is over $75,000.00," says Mrs. Pat Soby. In order to help Soby and mostly with the expenses, the P.S. We Care fund was organized by the Student Programming Committee. The committee consists of friends, students, faculty and administrators members. Among the students on the committee are Debbie Dugan, Karen Reusch, Tracey Wren, Scott Frazee, Bridgette Werner and Carolyn O'Donnell.

One of the first major fundraising efforts was the "Taste On For Peter." Originally we had 100 tickets but by noon we were sold out. I have another 450," said Frances Branigan, a counselor in the student government department, who was the advisor to between 40 to 45 students. Cacique's administration helped running the tables for 12 hours a day. It involved every facet of the Harper Community.

Many other fundraisers are planned including Jewel and Deaconess Days where 5% of the sales will go to the fund. Approximately 23,000 customers were mailed out with early registration notices.

Next month members will be asking local merchants to donate goods which will be auctioned off at Harper and processed into the fund. In addition to these other plans, are being discussed for raffles, a walk-a-thons or wheel-a-thons in the spring.

In addition to all the fundraisers Soby has received letters, visits and one unusual gift from former Bear members Brian Baggett, Linda Lee Frazee and Mary Bufford to whom Soby gave them a football.

The thing that is really unique about this is that in just one year Harper has benefited many lives," says Jean Pankau, Director of Student Affairs. She continues, "He has Cancer is the leading cause of cancer death among men and since 1982, there has been a 40% increase in the number of women who smoke.

The risk of developing lung cancer is 10 times higher for smokers. Cigarette smoking is related to about 1 in 5 of all cancer deaths.

Don't smoke cigarettes, cigars and pipes! Clean the ash tray. Hold the lighter and matches away from your friends and coworkers know that by participating in the Great American Smokeout today, you're supporting their support and participation.

You'll be in control of your own smoke.

You'll be in control of your own cigarettes. One day without so many friends among the faculty, student body and administration. It's remarkable to see a genuine swell of concern about all these smokers.

Friend and committee member Bridget Caliendo says the thing Soby needs most is real emotional support. It's real important people are constant in visiting and writing him.

That's the two most important things to him right now. He needs to know people are behind him.

Friend and committee member Brian Baggett says, "Peter is real important to us. He's our friend and he's our brother."

With plans of returning to Harper next fall, Soby says, "I appreciate everything that's going on at Harper. I'm just smoking - just 24 hours may be the start of something big, a family members, etc. instead of smoking."

"It may just start, eat foods that take time to eat such as an orange that has to be peeled, or other fruits and vegetables, and unsalted popcorn."

"Stop beverages slowly—don't skip, include exercise as part of your holiday activities—take a walk with your favorite relative."

"Before you sit down at the dinner table, decide what's your favorite food and eat it first, then only those other foods that you don't want."

"Take small portions and space them out on your plate."

"Eat slowly—chew each bite well and savor its flavor. After each third morsel, place your fork and knife on the plate until you have swallowed that morsel. You will feel satisfied after eating."

"If you enjoy something someone else is eating, or you like Aunt Susie's sweet potato-mashed-potato casserole, take only a tablespoonful and then take the edge off your appetite."

"Put leftovers away immediately—allow me time for thinking, one last mouth."

"Finally, help with the dishes. Your hostess will appreciate it."

DON'T BE A TURKEY ON THANKSGIVING

Here are a few tips on how not to stuff yourself like a Thanksgiving turkey:

"Don't eat until dinner, eat a light breakfast and, before the main meal, drink a low calorie beverage or cup of coffee to take the edge off your appetite."

"While watching football on TV, occupy your hands with knitting, playing games with real delight and can't wait to get back to Harper and meet all the people who mean so much to me."

Pankau reflects a thought on many people's mind when she says, "Do you really matter to me? At Harper, we care about what's happening to you. We're anxious to see you back."

Hawks bring home the championship, Cola Bowl next

By Bill Kugelberg

Sports Editor
Hawks running back Dan Martin set a goal before the NAC championship game against Illinois Valley. But when offensive coordinator Tom Martin was carried off the field on a stretcher, Martin told the linemen he would accomplish the goal if him.

"I went over to Bishop and told him I would rush for the 2,000-yard mark for him," Martin said.

Martin needed 143 rushing yards to break the 2,000-yard rushing mark in his career at Harper. He got 141 yards rushing, but the Hawks have one game remaining in the regular season.

The Hawks put together two impressive drives in the second half in heat visiting Illinois Valley 21-0.

The third ranked Hawks' seventh consecutive victory gives them the chance to meet undefeated and second ranked Ellsworth (9-0) by the Royal Crown on Saturday at Bishop's Field in Lindsay.

It is rumored this meeting could be the national championship in the minor college level.

The Harper victory was a come one as three Hawks left the game in the first quarter.

Don Lee, linebacker, left the game in the half and didn't return. Steve Bishop, offensive lineman, was taken off the field after being hit and taken to the hospital in an ambulance. And defensive lineman, Pete Breung left the game and also didn't return.

"I am sure the rest of the team will be ready for the game on Sunday," Harper coach John Elasik said. Bishop probably won't be ready, and Breaming might be back.

The Hawks offense woke up early in the fourth quarter with a 10-yard run by Martin and on the play the Hawks defense decided to take control of the game and get the ball back for the offense.

The Hawks had the ball on the Harper 20 yard line. Jim Treadwell, quarterback, after a 10-yard run, took the ball to the end zone for the first score of the game.

After Martin got the ball down to Illinois Valley's 21-yard line, he stepped up the drive by handing off to several tacklers and settling in the end zone to give the Hawks a 13-0 lead.

The Hawks first score came in the first quarter as quarterback

AJ Snyder, a receiver, Dale Prazee for a 49-yard touchdown strike.

The Hawks sealed the victory in the fourth quarter as Martin scored his second touchdown of the game from the 1-yard line to extend their lead to 20-0.

The Hawks were the Hawks third of the year and the seventh defense recorded the shutout and that's rare in a championship game.

Ironically, the Hawks were outgamed offensively 239-238

Kukor, Tom Witt made his bid for two-season awards as he had another excellent day of putting kicking 6 times for 243 yards for an average of 40.5 yards.

The Hawks will play

Ellsworth on Sunday and Elasik knows a few things about them because we don't play them during the season. But I know they have a lot of speed and they are an explosive team," he said.

And the defense played an excellent fourth quarter.

Women's B-ball preps for season

By Bill Kugelberg

Sports Editor
The 1987-88 Hawks women's basketball team has some big shoes to fill this year. The team will be trying to repeat last year's record of 21-6 under the guidance of coach Linda Martin.

The Hawks can return two players from last year: Jamie Satalic,护航 and Kim Price, while new players include Speli, Kim Greenhoff and Michele Cadek to scholarships and Mary Memphis to travel money.

"I think we would think this year's team would be weaker in almost every aspect of the game," but French believes the only thing this team lacks is experience.

This team has good height and better speed," he said. "There are also a smattering group; they can pick up offenses faster. But in comparison to last year, we are way behind on time."

Another thing that has been greatly with all of the players I have on this team," he continued, "is that we have a lot of talent, but the starters until this dropped."

With the lack of experience on the team, it is going to be something this team will only improve on as the year goes on.

We have more big kids on the team than last year's team, so I think that is good," French said.

French believes the team has improved, but the team still has a long way to go.

French, an ex-Baylor player from Manne South, was Teachers top recruit, but he doesn't mind Harper any longer.

Last year the team was mostly returning, but this team is dominated by freshman and the experience they have at the college level should take some time to show.

This team is so young, it doesn't really know the staff.

I hope that by the time the conference play starts, they will have it down.

Teacher may be looking toward sophomore Linda Simmons to lead the team while he is also looking for some good girls from tall players, Pascale O'Dowd, Linda Barber, and sophomore Kim Price.

The depth of the team comes from Linda Henders, Jennifer Black, Bev Schmid, Julie Rose, and Schlaizart, and Connie Angel.

The team looks capable of making a statement this year, and although it will be tall and gritty to rebound will reflect where they finish the season.

Kim Free grabs the rebound while her teammates look on.

Administrators to Approve IBM & Apple Discount

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

Lawrence J. Haffner, academic computing director, is attempting to finalize an arrangement with IBM and Apple to offer a discount on personal computers.

IBM is offering Harper College a 40% discount on many of its computer systems and two of their printers. The discount will be available for administrators, faculty, and staff.

A Faculty Product Coordinator from the college staff is required by IBM to take/lease or buy and to collect money. In the past, the college has been reluctant to approve a staff member to assume responsibility as the middle-man for requesting computers, according to Haffner.

Haffner explained that reselling computers would require a substantial amount of time, and would interfere with the primary purpose of Harper staff members.

Recently Haffner is searching for a computer retailer that is interested in doing the paper work without receiving any substantial profit. He is also pursuing the possibility of selling the computers out of the book store.

According to an Apple discount program application, the discount will apply only to full-time purchases by employees, faculty, and administrators directly involved in the instructional process.

The plan is taking part in the Educator's Buy program offered by Apple.

The plan offers a 17% discount to Oana, faculty, and administrators on the IC, IIc, and IIGS systems.

Nahin, a computer retailer, is also offering a 10% discount to full-time students, 37% off to part-time selected Apple hardware (part-time students receive 20%).

Apple also offers the Higher Education Purchase Plan (HEPP), which allows only the purchase of the Macintosh computer. The program, offered only to eighteen other colleges, offers the same discount as the Educator's Buy, but requires no agreement with a computer retailer as well as with Apple and the College.

According to Haffner there are a few problems with this plan. The most disagreeable problem with the HEPP plan is the restricted purchase of only Apple Macintosh computers.

An "open access lab" is also requested consisting of at least seven Macintosh computers, which Haffner feels is not needed at this point. There are also problems in the logistics of delivery.

The next step, according to Haffner, is to present the figures to Vice President of Academic Affairs Dr. David Williams.

Haffner said Dr. Williams will probably bring the computer discount proposal to the other vice presidents and the president.

Haffner gives the possibility of finalizing the plan with IBM or HEPP by Apple a "fifty-fifty chance."

Harper Child Development Center

Quality Day Care for Sixteen Years

By Gwen Brodig
David Howard
Staff Writers

The Child Care Center has been offering parents quality child supervision for sixteen years through periods of growth and expansion.

The center first operated a pre-school within the Child Development Center in 1971. It was located in building D, room 117.

In the early 1970's, perhaps 72 or 73, a separate program was also introduced here. It was referred to as Baby Sitting Service, handled by the Women's program, designed to care for children while parents take courses at Harper. These were started in 1972 and handled by the women's program.

This program like others has seen a change of hands down the years, but the basic concepts remain. Jane Thomas, one of the original organizers, the now head of the Child Learning Center, continues to offer her Harper wisdom.

In 1980 when building J was built, the center moved in that direction. Some classrooms were built for the center. The Baby-sitting Service was incorporated and is now called Full-Time Child Care.

In developing the facility everything was planned to accommodate children. One was in windows with direct access to the playground, also made for the children.

As with every program there are many goals. One of the goals is to anticipate what these children need. The children are in stages of exploration when they must experience real things, real people and real events.

Child Development Center prepares children for Halloween.

The classrooms are set up for safety and inclusion in the classroom. There are areas for a sandbox, a play kitchen and a place for real animals for the children to touch.

improvement on the earlier program when children were located in a normal college classroom.

Thonar believes that "Play is the way that children learn. It's their natural way of learning."

Teachers set up weekly themes to offer the children a broader look at the world around them.

Harper Hawks End Season 11-1

Student Senate

Sets Goals

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Our Senate is accelerating its work, as was evident at their last meeting when they established goals.

One of the Senate's primary activities is to establish Senate subcommittees for each of the senators. It is the formation of these subcommittees that the Senate will accomplish its annual goals.

Senators must join at least one of these subcommittees. "But it is preferred that they join one or more," states the Senate's constitution.

Some of the goals of the Senate this year are:

A "Meet the Candidates" night for Student Senate and Student Trustee candidates in Spring of 1988.

A greater student participation in large decisions.

Attempting to start a yearbook, or something similar.

Allocating more funds for clubs and other activities.

Planting/growing ivy on many of the buildings' walls around the campus.

A possible winter ice sculpting contest and show on campus.

An aluminum can recycling drive and/or facilities.

Having the fireplace in A-Bldg. lounge "on" in the winter months so the people are warmed and quite useful in their application.

Further student suggestions should be written on a piece of paper and submitted to the Senate, now housed in the Student Activities Office, 3rd Floor of A building (by the pool hall).

If one wishes to talk with a senator about suggestions, stop into the Senate Office (also by the pool hall) and talk with the senators in person.

Sitting in on a Senate meeting can also be arranged; if interested, please call Sue McGonigal, ext 2242.

Final review

By Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

In the two main holidays I came and went last weekend, this means the Harper community has only one week remaining before final exams. Because there is NOT much time left on the clock before Finals, some might be concerned about how to study for their last test or for their final exams.

Yes, I am talking about reviewing material, not about tests.

For some of us who transfer, and especially those of us graduating after this semester or next, this may not seem to mean the difference between admittance and/or scholarships to the college or university of choice.

So what is the best, most efficient method of preparing for these all-important exams?

The method is probably the oldest and best known, beginning early in the key study period. This method certainly makes swallowing the "reviewing pill" a much easier task, especially for tests in classes that require a large amount of ideas, concepts and facts.

Comprehensive finals demand a virtual relearning of the material by the creator and, hence, demand a careful review. This review should concentrate on material with which one is most familiar.

For example - when leaving through notes or test, one may come across a question that doesn't quite "click," the details of that particular subject just do not come to mind.

there. Within real things to get with their themes the idea is forgotten. With the theme children children can get talk about objects they touch, and see them.

There are also on campus field trips to the TV studio, dental hygene, nurse's office, public safety, library, just to introduce kids to these places.

With more teachers full time, part time, student, and volunteers, the children are more involved and provide more individualized relationship which is more beneficial to the children.

The child care program is accredited by the National Academy of Early Childhood. It is licensed to care for 45 children a day, totaling 180 children from different days and ages.

Thomas says that "...we are committed to high quality, and that quality is the most important thing you can say about our program."

Good old Russian Success story: Billy Joel Live

by Kevin Goldstein

As part of the U.S.-U.S.S.R. cultural exchange, Billy Joel and CBS Records have released a double live album, "KOGH," marking the concluding Joel's historic tour of the Soviet Union. Over 75 minutes long, the album contains 15 Joel songs, plus bonus tracks, and ends off with a Soviet choir singing a traditional Russian song "Ode to Joy."

After the Russian introduction comes the Joel songs. Most of these include short introductions by Joel (told to the Soviet audience by a Russian interpreter).

The most powerful of these comments is before "Goodbye Saigon". Joel's controversial ballad about the troubled Vietnam soldiers ("Many of them came home as heroes, many did not come home at all.")

Five of the 13 live songs are taken from his recent greatest hits album. The last track may seem to become a live extension of that album including renditions of "An Innocent Man", "Nautilus", and "Angry Young Man". Songs included on the greatest hits album.

The final side contains two covers and brightest spot on the album

His rendition of the Beatles classic "Back in the U.S.S.R." is as uplifting as Joel has ever been.

He ends the album with Bob Dylan's "The Times Are A-Changin'" song which has become symbolic with the renewed communication and artistic exchanges between the United States and the Soviet Union.

The sound quality of the album is first-rate. Thus it mostly becomes the mixing of cross-roads between the American and Russian audiences seem to lack the enthusiasm of their American counterparts.

A COOL FEELING: a well package album. However, if one owns Joel's greatest hits, it becomes a bit of a splurge to spend $12-$15 for 8 songs and 2 covers (as good as they may be).

The scene opens in a crowded noisy jail cell full of women. One of the cellmates, who seems to be some sort of file out. The camera keys in on a woman who seems to be placed amongst her friends and running around.

When Claudio Faith Draper's lawyer approaches the bench requesting that she be declared mentally incompetent to stand trial for murder one, she violently disagrees.

The replacement of her fancy lawyer for William Levinsky a public defender (Richard Dreyfuss) begins her fight against being labeled "Nuts".

Directed by Martin Ritt ("Norma Rae"), it is based on a true story. Barbara Streisand stars as Claudia Draper, a troubled woman with a turbulent past who has killed a man. In addition to her powerful performance as the main character, Streisand did the music for the film and produced it.

The all-star line-up includes Richard Dreyfuss as Levinsky, her court-appointed lawyer; Academy Award-winner Marlene Dietrich as Claudia's mother; Tony award winner Eli Wallach as her hospital staff psychiatrist; and Karl Malden as her stepfather just to name a few.

The entire drama is set up much like a well done play where there is minimal scenery and a lot of stage and dialogue to well acted that you forget about the room.

I might add that the film is done like a well done play where there is minimal scenery and a lot of stage and dialogue to well acted that you forget about the room.

Although the plot sounds a bit heavy, the dialogue keeps it from becoming so. There are excellent tidbits of comic relief throughout to make the mood well-balanced.

Aside from the fact that the courtroom scenes were a bit overemphasized, including frequent cross-examinations, the film is a refreshing break from the drug-party/extended-video-type movies. Since all honest, hard work has been sent into oblivion from Warner Brothers, I probably wouldn't have gone out of my way to see it.

I suppose the commercials simply were not flashy enough nor the music trendy enough. Pardon the cliché but "you can't judge a book by its cover" and this one is hardly at this point. It's well worth going out of your way for.

Overcome test stress

Worried about semester exams? Think you'll "freeze" when faced with that test paper? Here's some advice to help you calm your nerves.

BE PREPARED. Ask the instructor what will be on the exam, when it will be, and if it will be an objective or essay exam. Review all notes and minimize rereading of texts. Recall facts by reviewing them aloud and try to predict and answer possible test questions.

USE RELAXATION TECHNIQUES. Do a quiet sit and enjoy 10-15 minutes of peaceful quiet thinking of a favorite place or person. Lighten the relay muscle groups, stretch your feet and arms, gently relax those muscles. Repeat for your shoulders, neck, chest, etc.

MASTER TEST-TAKING SKILLS. Read all directions carefully. Survey the page for key words such as "Define," "Analyze," "Compare," and "Criticize." Make difficult terms and concepts relevant to the test item being discussed.

THINK POSITIVELY. Encourage yourself that you can do well on the test. Don't allow poor past performance to affect your attitude toward the test hand.

Finally, be satisfied with your accomplishments.

Hawks go flat in RC-Cola Bowl lose to Ellsworth, 41-9

by Bill Kugelberg
Sports Editor
Harper quarterback. Al Snyder can attest to the physical type of play that went on at RC-Cola Bowl in Iowa two weeks ago.

The freshmen from southern Illinois left the game early in the third quarter with a shoulder injury, as the Hawks fell victim to Ellsworth, 41-9, at the University of Iowa, 41-9.

"We couldn't keep up their speed," Harper coach John Elsasik said. "We couldn't keep the ball away from them either."

The game opened in favor of the Hawks as it drove the ball down from their own 36-yard line into Harper's end zone on a play that covered 64 yards in 9 plays, for an early 6-0 lead.

"We got the ball back early as Snyder hooked up with Drake Jackson for the 52 yard pass-play to give the Hawks the ball on Ellsworth's 20-yard line. But we drove stalled and Harper had to settle for a 30-yard field goal from Tom Martin."

The score stood at 6-3 in favor of Ellsworth at the half.

On Ellsworth's first possession, it put together an impressive 65 yard drive in 9 plays which ended in another touchdown and a 13-3 lead.

On Harper's next possession, it had the ball on its own 32-yard line and with 1:10 left, Snyder dropped back and was sacked for a loss of seven. On second-and-seventeen, Snyder dropped back and passed on the left side, looked for it and instead of running out of bounds short of the first down he courageously took on the defender head on. That was Snyder's last play of the season.

Snyder's replacement, Steve Cozra, didn't have much luck against Ellsworth, either.

The game turned when Snyder got knocked out. Harper running back Dan Martin said, "It seemed like it shut down our mental attitudes. Cozra didn't have many of those qualities this year and I thought that really hurt us."

Martin finished the season with 2,000 career rushing yards at Harper.

Snyder left the game having completed 10 of 18 passes for 130 yards. Wau's kick 66 yards for a touch-down and a 20-3 Ellsworth lead.

Ellsworth scored again with 12:10 left in the game on a 15-yard run by Ulysses Bentley and then again with 11:23 left in the game on a 3-yard run by Ken Theofel.

Ellsworth had 344 yards.

With 9:32 remaining, the Hawks' Scott Miller blocked a Panther punt and ran the ball 15 yards for a 20-10 Ellsworth lead.

The Hawks led by Cozra, were able to put together an impressive 10 drive in four plays capped off by a 13-yard pass to Dan Martin.

Prather put the score at 34-9.

Ellsworth continued to run up the score, as it scored for the final time with 1:10 left in the game as it recovered its own fumble in the Harper end zone.

"That's the way they do it. Shut up the s---," Elsasik said.

"But the s--- goes on. What goes around comes around."

The Hawks were held to first downs the entire game, while the Panthers had 10. Harper's Gene Bernhart spent the night in Cedar Falls last year.

First spot for the Hawks was the punting duties of Tom Martin. He punted 12 times for 407 yards.

"He really came along all year," Elsasik said.

"And this paper is concerned, Ellsworth finished with the top ranking in the nation. Les-McRae of North Carolina finished second and Harper placed third."

Ellsworth was against the new structure of the league in the beginning of the season and it was evident in Iowa.

"I feel the structure here is what they had two years ago to prepare for the game and we had only one. If we would have had the week off, we could have put a lot more time into preparation."

The Hawks and Red Division in the NAC structure should probably have been last year.

Even though being down throughout the game, the Hawks stuck in the game.

"These kids really stuck in there," Elsasik said. "They proved their character by sticking in there."

The contrast in what this game meant to the season was evident in what Elsasik and Martin said after the game.

"This loss doesn't take from my season," Elsasik said. "I just feel for the kids especially the sophomores because that was possibly a once in a lifetime chance."

This puts a damper on my season," sophomore Martin said.

"I was really hoping the season would go on a win."

The loss ended a twelve-game winning streak for the Hawks and concluded their season at 11-1.

The game also marked the second consecutive year in which the Illinois State University track team was knotted out of the game. Harper's Gene Bernhart spent the night in Cedar Falls last year.

First spot for the Hawks was the punting duties of Tom Martin. He punted 12 times for 407 yards.

"He really came along all year," Elsasik said.

"And this paper is concerned, Ellsworth finished with the top ranking in the nation. Les-McRae of North Carolina finished second and Harper placed third."

Slow starts seem to be a trademark for coach Tom Teschner's women's basketball team, and this year is no different.

After opening the season without the services of Angela Barber, the Ladyhawks started a tremendous winning streak. Waukesha won 10 straight (1-21) over McHenry, 74-57.

Truman '78, Harper '32.

A slow start has plagued the Ladyhawks, as they were unranked 32-21 in the opening period. Pascale O'Donnell led the Ladyhawks to a 5-point winning streak through the first half. Truman went on a 23-7 scoring rampage to set the tone for the game. Two more periods followed.

Truman '78, Harper '32.

The game against McHenry proved to be much more on the offensive side as Harper was behind 36-21 at the half.

It is safe to say that many points in a game, Teschner said. "We should win."

Harper Bids Farewell to President McGrath

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

President McGrath will end his ten year presidency at Harper College early in February, 1988 and will undertake another challenge at Trinity College in Washington, D.C.

"I think it (Trinity) will be a lot like Harper was ten years ago," said McGrath.

President McGrath was previously Vice President of Academic Affairs for twenty city college universities in New York. McGrath said he took the job at Harper as a challenge "for the good of the community."

According to President McGrath, the main problem for the college was the lowest enrollment in the State of Illinois. He said that student enrollment was down and the State Appropriation was being reduced.

McGrath came to Harper when Harper was financially unstable, faculty and staff had little pride for Harper.

According to Martin J. Ryan, Dean of Liberal Arts, "Morale when Jim McGrath came in Harper, among faculty and staff was at its lowest ebb."

Ryan explained that McGrath's predecessor, Dr. Robert Lahti, worked hard in putting Harper on the map by building other campuses and enlarging the campus here in Palatine.

McGrath wanted to get Harper on the map by developing for Harper a reputation in academic excellence.

Lahti accomplished some important things. For example, he had new buildings built. But Lahti lacked the academic interest and the faith and concern for the faculty and students.

Karen Keres, former Professor of English, described what it was like to work under Lahti. She said that teachers became very afraid of Lahti. They were afraid of losing their job if they tried a new idea and it did not work.

"McGrath is a genius at recognizing and encouraging the best in people, rather than administrators," said Keres.

She said that McGrath was not afraid of growth. "He brought back trust, respect, and excitement about learning," said Keres. "That to me was his greatest strength."

Vice President of Academic Affairs, Dr. David Williams explained McGrath's theory about Harper. "It's not itself," McGrath believes that the faculty and staff need to be proud of Harper and consider Harper their own.

According to Ryan, "Ownership builds commitment. Involvement builds an ownership-type atmosphere. Jim personifies this get-involved type of leadership."

McGrath has done a considerable amount of work to accomplish when he started as President of Harper College.

"The president's job is to not only be the link between the board of Trustees) and the college, but also to coordinate all the divisions and departments and keep the college's mission statement clear," said Dr. David Williams.

"We are here to represent national institutions," and Jim McGrath has kept us moving in that direction," said Williams. "I think Jim McGrath has opened up, grown, and expanded under President McGrath's leadership in ways that it never ever been before," said Ryan. "He has a way with people."

According to Vice President of Student Affairs, Bonnie Hiltz, "His personal contribution has been... his humanity, that and his high focus on student awareness."

"He has created a most favorable and positive environment and it is attributable to President McGrath. It has been a joy to come to work," said Hiltz.

President McGrath has done a number of things for Harper College during his presidency. Among them are: developed trust among the staff, encouraged administrators to work by involving himself in model oversight, increased the treasury balance for the Education Foundation.

McGrath has provided the funds needed to efficiently operate a community college by suggesting a referendum which increased taxes to support the improvement for the campus. (With the addition of over 500 trees), increased morale, opened communication among the staff, encouraged new ideas, and provided good communication between Harper and the business community.

There are many more contributions McGrath made during his ten year stay at Harper, but I am afraid there is not enough room in the newspaper to list all of them.

"McGrath was tireless in his efforts. He was here day and night," observed Ryan.

He was an excellent model to follow. He believed "...most of us administrators started out not as administrators but as teachers."

McGrath taught two classes this fall semester: accounting and advanced Shakespeare as an independent study. "I get a lot of satisfaction from those two classes," President McGrath said.

Over the years McGrath has learned. "There is a collective wisdom in a college community" and added that the wisdom will direct the community in the future.

As for Harper's next president, McGrath advises "Have faith in the college community, the faculty, and the staff." Additional photos see page 7.

Our active alumni association

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Final exams are next week. Christmas break is just around the corner and most Harper students will return in January to begin another round with classes. I did say most.

Some of Harper's community will be graduating and, like, becoming alumni. So what can alums do?

Hopefully, they will join the ever-expanding ranks involved in Harper's brand new Alumni Association.

This new project, headed by the Director of Student Development, Ray Devorey, began operations in September. Since Devorey strongly feels the Association will become an enormous success, as evident in the promising returns from the summer mailing.

If someone has graduated from Harper and has earned a degree or a terminal certificate (or more), the person can mail a letter of welcome and an application to the Association. In order to contact as many students as possible, and often set some of them straight, the criterion of the certificate or degree were established.

As it stands today, of the 25,000 names received from a list of those students who graduated with a certificate or degree, well over 6000 responses have come in.

Even today, and every day so far, our office receives another response," says Devorey. "We had hoped for a return of 100 or so, but 6000? We are really pleased at the reception the idea has."

LEARN HOW TO FLY HELICOPTERS.

If you've ever wanted to fly a helicopter, here's your opportunity. The Army has openings now in its Warzone Officer Flight Training Program.

To qualify, you must have a high school diploma, be at least 17 years old, and have at least two years and a time of service commitment. You must meet certain physical and mental requirements for training. Call for details on the Warzone Officer Flight Training Program.

Prior to entering flight training, you will receive approximately complete basic training and pre-flight training.

After basic training, you will return to your local Army Reserve unit and train one weekend a month and two weeks a year for at least 48 months.

If you'd like to wear the wings of a Warzone officer, stop by or call:

ARMY RESERVE, BE ALL YOU CAN BE.

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Approximately 234,000 students have graduated from Harper since the college opened and, comments Devorey, "every one of the graduates invited to join the Friends of Harper."

The Friends of Harper is operated with cooperation from Public Relations and has 12

current members. Each of the members receives the same invitations and is invited to attend all functions of the Association.

One of the functions already hosted by the Alumni Association was the October 3 gala party, after the football game.

There were so many little children running around, playing the ducks and geese that it was decided to postpone the party.

The age and background of the Association's members is quite varied. What maintains the relationships between the members?

Their common interests hold the group together. "People tend to gravitate according to their major field of study," says Devorey.

One of the functions held by the Association was the October 3 graduation class. When people have similar interests, says Devorey, they tend to keep in touch.

Other areas in the hopper for the Association are a Spring

"desert night," worthy alums and graduates, an annual career fair,

a chat session, and a possible boat ride around The Star of Chicago.

New mailings to the January graduates, well come out after grade reports, ideas or plant would be gladly accepted. Also, although fundraising is not what

"we're all about," says Devorey, the Association would appreciate concerns.

Harper's Alumni Association is in a minority in Illinois in that it is only one of approximately 200 colleges and universities run by communities college in the state.

Some of the alumni have been invited by Ms. Patty Roberts, of Public Relations, to do an interview for television and have been run on the news.

These students are chosen from the first and second years of the university, says Devorey.

Interviewed alumni with careers range from Lottery Director

Sharon Sharp to Doctor Keith

Kaufman, a psychologist.

They have similar interests, says

Devorey. They tend to keep in touch.

Guest interviews this week are Rita Schaefer, now a graduate student at Loyola University.

As can be seen, the Harper

Alumni Association, although extremely young, is well on its way to becoming an integral part of the Harper community. Keep up the good work, new alums!

Harper bids farewell and good luck to a good friend

Touching the soul of the common, you shall find
No public benefit which you receive,
But it proceeds or comes from them in you,
And no way from yourselves.

Shakespeare, Coriolanus: I, i.

By all rights, this should be one of my easiest editorials to write. I mean, I am just writing about a man who's done about as much for Harper College as anyone possibly could, and even if I'll never think of him in a negative light, I would just have to read the front page of this paper to see what others have to say about James McGrath.

The problem, as it turns out, is how to say these things without sounding like a eulogy. President McGrath is alive and well; he is here to stay, and we're really ought to know how grateful we are that he was here.

The first thing that comes up whenever Mr. McGrath's name is mentioned is school morale. Faculty, staff, administrators and students LIKE him. That is an extraordinary percentage of day students on this campus who not only know the president's name, but who looks like too. Mr. McGrath can frequently be seen walking across campus, saying hello to students who didn't even know that he knew them.

It boggles my mind that on a campus of 20,000, any student can make an appointment to go in and just visit with the PRESIDENT of the college. Try that at NTLU (with only a slightly larger student population) and you'll never get past the secretary.

Mr. McGrath has turned this college into one of the most respected two-year institutions in the country. It was no accident in bringing him here from the new post at Franklin College, the president of George Washington University (with whom Mr. McGrath had worked in New York) said, "I know of no fine college president than Jim McGrath."

There is a journalistic rule that says that after the first time you interview someone, you call him by his last name. You may have noticed I have subsequently referred to him as Mr. McGrath. There are few people I know that have earned that kind of respect. Mr. McGrath's smile, one in fact, is a rare and welcome aspect I can think of in assessing James McGrath's tenure as president of Harper College. His replacement is going to have his hill of a time to follow.

...Off The Record...

With Carol Carkeek

"Parting is such sweet sorrow..."

If I knew who said that, my friend Liz would say it wouldn't matter anyway. I'd "lift" it just the same.

Two more times, maybe twice, I used to brag about the material in this column. And right away I was branded with having "the blues." Didn't I have set aside this last chance to acknowledge, say, perchance, and just plain say, thank you, too? I feel fortunate and honored by the quality of education I received at Harper.

I hold myself publicly. Thanks for my material. And from now on, watch what you say; it gives people ideas. I'm not sure if I'll ever be able to meet again. And to Liz for being nice when he would have been honest.

To my editor, Larry, a heartfelt thanks for your support. I would have been lost without you. You know your fundamental READING skills.

I do regret that I'm not reading your column right now, but I'm still here. And I hope you're right. I hope this will not be our last meeting. I would like to say, "Thank you, Larry, for your hard work and dedication to the Harbinger."

On a final note, I would like to say,

...and I hope you'll be happy and successful in your future endeavors.

Carol Carkeek

fun, and now I am glad I worked up the courage to walk through the door.

Thanks to the entire Harbinger staff for accepting my work with open arms. And to Pearl, who has been efficient.

And if nobody has said it lately, you do a darned good job! Pearl, I am so grateful for your continued support. I would have been lost without you. Thank you, Carol. I hope you have a wonderful life.

It seems as though I've been around here forever. Many of the students I've taught are now gone. But to those still here,

I say, thank you, too. I feel fortunate and honored by the quality of education I received at Harper.

Recently I was checking my transcript credit against various transfer colleges and many administration office asked where Harper was. They knew. In fact, they smiled, and without mentioning my name, furthered my education.

Yours, I am so fortunate and lucky. If you have a readout of my transcript, you will see that I am a graduate of Harper College. The name of the college is on my transcript, and my name, too. I am a graduate of Harper College.

On a final note, I would like to say,

...and I hope you'll be happy and successful in your future endeavors.

Carol Carkeek

semester was not the books, the tests, or even the grades so much, but one class: Speech.

This is the class that I brought the syllabus home and was so excited to see what it would be like.

It was the same class I told my husband I had to drop because I thought I would fail.

This is the same class that I hold a perfect attendance record in and I now search the syllabus for my turn to speak. Why the sudden change of heart?

Strange as it may seem, the same students I was afraid to speak in front of are now like family to me. We are a team. Funny how things work out, but I look forward to X-VM.

Yours, I am so fortunate and lucky. If you have a readout of my transcript, you will see that I am a graduate of Harper College. The name of the college is on my transcript, and my name, too. I am a graduate of Harper College.

On a final note, I would like to say,

...and I hope you'll be happy and successful in your future endeavors.

Carol Carkeek

It is true that the last name my one has is usually the longest memory one holds. I am grateful for everything at Harper for providing me with such a nice one to remember.

So Merry Christmas to all and happy, good-byes.

THE SLEIGH

A CLASSIC CHRISTMAS TALE CELEBRATING THE PHOENIX-LIKE ASCENT OF THE HUMAN SPIRIT FROM THE ASHES OF MISERY AND DESPAIR.

By Naomi DePluma

Jack Muellstrom paced nervously back and forth. With each cry of his wife from the next room he would stop his pacing and listen anxiously. Hearing the soothing tones of the midwife he could restrain his pacing.

It was Christmas eve and there were no gifts in Jack Muellstrom's house, nor a tree to put gifts under. There was no money for such things and now, with another mouth to feed, Jack and his wife Hillary would have to forego even the smallest of luxuries.

Hillary Muellstrom let out a sharp series of cries from the far bedroom and Jack stood rock still, eyes wide, listening. Finally, Hillary's cries ceased and were replaced by a different sound, the cry of an infant.

Eventually the midwife emerged from the bedroom and made the awaited announcement: "A girl, Mr. Muellstrom! A very healthy, very beautiful girl!"

Jack Muellstrom's eyes flooded with tears. "A girl, a girl," he muttered as he fell to his knees and clasped his strong hands together. "Thank heaven above for this wonderful gift! A girl . . ." He checked his tin pocket watch, which was possession. "A little girl born on Christmas morn! A blessing! We shall call her Mary!"

Five years passed. Jack Muellstrom worked long and hard to make his small parcel of land produce crops, but it seemed that luck was always against him. He could scarcely grow enough to feed his own family and each winter seemed longer and colder than the one before.

Hillary Muellstrom had taken ill two years earlier and had never quite recovered. Comined to her bed, her eyesight failing, it was all she could do to mend a trouser leg before succumbing to exhaustion. Jack cooked and cleaned and cared for his bedridden wife.

But amid this scene of squalor, young Mary! Her light red hair in pigtails, her big adoring blue eyes, her gay disposition and unwarvering good cheer, these were the things that gave Jack and Hillary Muellstrom the strength to face relentless hardship day after day, year after year.

Jack Muellstrom stood in the doorway and watched with unabashed love as little Mary held broth to her mother's lips. At almost five, Mary seemed older—another way in which hardship deprives the young.

"You'll be better soon, Mummy. I know you will." He then took the broth.

"Everything will be good soon. I know it will."

"Daddy will have good crops and you'll be up and feeling well and well!" "I'm very happy!

"Oh, hello Daddy. I was just telling Mummy . . ."

"I heard you, sweetheart."

"Tomorrow's Christmas day, Daddy."

"And your birthday, dear."

"What's wrong, sweetheart? Are you afraid of pulling like the other children have?"

Jack Muellstrom saw the silent tears fill his wife's eyes. He lifted Mary into his arms.

"No dear," he swallowed, "I don't think Santa can bring you a sleigh this year."

"Why not, Daddy? I've been good, haven't I?"

"Oh yes dear, you have. You've been a very good girl." He carried her to her small room and put her to bed.

That night, fighting back tears of rage, Jack Muellstrom swore that he would never disappoint his little angel again.

The following year was the harshest yet for the Muellstrom family. Hillary was thin and frail and her eyes were only useful at a distance of inches. The growing season had been especially poor and by mid-December the Muellstroms were dependent on the goodwill of their neighbors.

Jack Muellstrom had sold his only possession, the tin pocket watch, in November and now fretted whether he had spent his master's plight. He had used the money to purchase a new pair of work boots and a length of rope so that he could walk his daughter a sleigh; the first gift he would ever receive.

"All else be damned!" he swore to himself. "My little Mary will have her sleigh!"

So nearly two months he worked on the sleigh in a small outbuilding, keeping the project a secret from Mary. He gave the runners a gentle curve and fashioned handles for steering. He planed and sanded and smoothed. He had created a sturdy and pretty sleigh. With a hot iron he imprinted a large snowflake on the center slot and then painted the sleigh three times. It was Christmas eve when the last coat of varnish was dry and the rope was attached.

That night, as he tucked Mary into bed, she said, "Tomorrow's Christmas day Daddy."

"And your birthday! You'll be my six year old girl!"

"Yes Daddy."

"What's wrong, sweetheart? Aren't you going to ask if Santa's going to bring you a gift?"

"I don't think he will, Daddy."

"But don't you want a sleigh?"

"Oh yes, Daddy! But Santa has so many other little children to worry about."

"Don't you worry about that, dear. You just go to sleep and dream of the nice sleigh god-like Santa is bringing you."

"Goodnight, Daddy. Kiss Mummy for me."

"I will, sweetheart. Goodnight."

Jack and Hillary Muellstrom awoke before their daughter the next morning and, with great joy, set about preparing the sleigh. Jack brought it into their bedroom so that Hillary could take part in the occasion. Hillary cut a strip from her hand dress—which she knew she would never wear again—and fashioned a bow around the sleigh.

When all was in readiness, Jack Muellstrom went to wake his daughter and bring her in to receive her Christmas sleigh. He returned a moment later with little Mary in his arms . . . dead.

"We are here as an educational institution, and Jim McGrath has kept us moving in that direction," said Williams.

McMahon injury a fake?

By Pedro Sweeney

McMahon hurt?
Pulled hamstring?
Sure. And Ditska and Singletary are losers, right?

No, McMahon is smart.

McMahon, fine Ditska and Singletary don't even kiss.

It's just good football.

The McMahon objective has been achieved. He's been in the playoffs. Don't say this out loud, but the rest of the regular season is of no importance to the Hawks except as qualification for the playoffs. If he's smart, and he is, keep McMahon's hamstring well. Keep him from taking smaller regular season wins, and precious few in the post-season.

The preventable losses are all unacceptable compared to the probable savings. We live hopefully in the advantage that McMahon can play. It's a proven statistical likelihood that if McMahon played out the season he would be hurt. A hurt McMahon means no Super Bowl victory. A hurt McMahon is better than to lose the Super Bowl for the sake of a few pointless statistics.

An additional bonus: McMahon, who will play an important role in the bid for the championship, gets three games of the best play-off preparation on the part of his team.

The iron rule of course can't let it be known that no real value is placed on the balanced regular season. There's too much money involved.

The elegant solution is an uninformative injury ofeterminate severity. Let our golden child off the shelf. Harrumph. It's just good football.

BO-dacious

By Dennis McGinnis
National Correspondent

Bo Jackson can play two professional sports? Without a doubt, as he proved on Monday night. He can play both the running back position for the Los Angeles Raiders against the Seattle Seahawks, and the football linebacker position for the Los Angeles Raiders against the Seattle Seahawks.

This is the guy, man, who hit 32 home runs last year when City Boys say he'll be named the outfit of the Royals Stadium. At 6 feet tall, and weighing 210 pounds, he can run a 4.1 of 9.3 seconds in the 100-yard dash, makes him one athlete who displays the required standards of playing in professional sports. Bo also received the Heisman Trophy while playing at Auburn Husker Long, Indonesian for the Los Angeles Raiders, added another accomplishment to Jackson's resume as he recently stated that Bo Jackson is the finest physical specimen that he has ever seen.

Bo Jackson is the finest specimen, while others have labelled him crazy. But Bo comes under much scrutiny because he is and a superb athlete. Stamps on the field and he's a force to be reckoned with and make much about him because, nothing is an outlander and a running back is a running back. It appears to me, and millions of football fans, Whichever Bo decides to play baseball or chooses to stick to football, he has proved we can play both professionally. As Bo Jackson says, referring to himself in the third person, Bo does what Bo wants.

Hawks beat Truman, lose to Elgin, fall to 2-8

By Bill Kuegler
Sports Editor

The men's basketball team pulled a 6-11 and Hyde routine in the defensive aspect of the game, but they lost the game of games over the past weekend.

The Hawks, after usually dominating Truman, 80-65, fell victim to visiting Elgin on Saturday, 76-72.

Harper 80 Truman 65

After the win, Harper coach Bill Probas wasn't elated about his team's surprising an 8-game winning streak because he expected it.

"I was surprised by the win," Probas said. "You can evaluate the philosophy I am teaching, we can have big leads more often."

Probas' philosophy consists of closing the 45-second clock on the advantage of the team's offense.

The Hawks run the offense, the opening thirty seconds of the game, but in the final fifteen seconds, try to get the ball inside so the jump shot.

Sophomore Tim Kelly and Bill Garda led the Hawks with 23 points apiece.

We came out to play this game, but the way we were playing, Kelly said, "Everything clicked in this game." The defense set up the offense and from there we just had to follow in.

The Hawks had 10 assists in working order during the first half as the 40-24 Harper lead at halftime showed.

Freshman guard Tracy Perry also made double figures for the Hawks as he contributed 15 points.

Elgin 76 Harper 72

Travis Perry was in use again against visiting Elgin, but in the second half, the Spartans pulled away from the Hawks for the win.

Harper held Elgin to only 27 points in the opening half as Bill Garda pulled 9 rebounds and contributed 7 points.

We have a lot of players who come from some defensive programs," Probas said. "They have learned to play man-to-man and we are trying to teach them how. There are periods when they play zone, but there are too many mental breakdowns. We just have to keep trying."

The Hawks were panned by Elgin coach Jim Schmid, standard Gary Crager as a point in 24 points, including going 7 of 8 from the free-throw line.

Elgin tied the game late in the fourth quarter as sophomore Mark Rue (13 points) had a jumper to give the Spartans a 6-5 lead.

The Hawks' improvement of their team from the first game they played them is evident. Elgin coach Jim Hinckle said, "We didn't have enough heart to put through any shot, and didn't have enough intent to catch one."

Travis Perry contributed 13 points and Bill Garda added 13 points but Elgin had 15 points, but it wasn't enough for the Hawks.

Ladyhawks fly past Lake County, 79-36

By Bill Kuegler
Sports Editor

I could tell when your leading score at home with 10 minutes points than the opposing team your team is in pretty good shape.

The Ladyhawks demonstrated they live by the same rules as Paschal, O'Donnoughue, Leah, seventeen points on the half and sixteen points in the second half.

Leah had only 9 points as Harper mauled the visiting Ladyjackets 70-36.

The Ladyjackets started running the last half correctly. Harper coach Tom Eschner said, "Boehm [Leah] did a good job in her first start, she really played well with confidence."

The Ladyhawks led control of the game early with 11-49 remaining in the first half, but then drove the entire Lake County game.

The Ladyjackets had trouble getting into rhythm and making mistakes.

The Ladyjackets had trouble scoring in the second period (during matador/mimicante period) (just ran up 27-2 lead). The Ladyjackets held a 30-15 lead at the break.

Harper managed to pull away in the second half, limiting the Ladyjackets to 21 points while O'Donnoughue added 10 points scoring (four罚球) netting 5 points to finish the contest with a game high 27 points.

Boehm 27 points also had some good card work behind them. O'Donnoughue had 16 points.

The Ladyjackets had trouble scoring, so did freshmen Angie Barber (10 points) and freshman Leah Riddle (10 points). Both of the Ladyjackets 10 points came in the second half.

Sophomore Natalie Simons added 6 points to the Ladyhawks effort, while Linda Hafner and Leah Riddle added 4 and 3 points scoring for Harper with 4 points apiece.

Two Student Senators To Be Replaced

By Larry Paulis
Editor-in-Chief

Student Senator Michael Duddles (Business and Social Services) and one of his three members scheduled to be replaced sometime on or before the next Senate meeting.

A minute ago, posted Tuesday, was the Senate office looking for applicants from the Liberal Arts and Business and Social Science divisions to fill these two seats.

Duddles was reportedly impeached due to his lack of attendance at Senate meetings and office hours. There was no comment from Senate members about the status of current Liberal Arts Senator Don Baczyk.

According to Senate bylaws, the Senate has the right to replace any impeached Senator by a two-thirds vote of its members.

The Harbinger has learned that, while public notice has been posted for replacement within the Senate, the candidate to replace Duddles was a Michael Hanan, currently a student volunteer serving on several Senate committees as a member at large.

Harper's Enrollment up 7.1%

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

According to official documents from the registrar, the spring semester of 1987 over the spring semester of 1987. For the year 1987, students registered at Harper College by fall semester. There were 11,267 full-time students and 11,267 part-time, and continuing education students.

These figures are not the highest in Harper recent history. Probably the highest enrollment figure ever free, said Vern Marks, Vice President of Administrative Services.

Since then enrollment figures have been declining according to Marks. (This year it looks much better than it did last year.)

Harper administrators estimate the total number of credit hours students will enroll for each year. This figure is divided by the standard number of credit hours to constitute full-time.

For the purpose of this calculation, a student taking 15 credit hours would be considered full-time. Thus the total number of credit hours registered at Harper is divided by 15 yielding a figure named full-time equivalent (FTE).

FTE is not a number of students, rather it is a figure that represents the total number of credit hours.

For the spring semester last year, the FTE figure was 6,551.0. This year the FTE figure is 6,234.6 showing an increase of 6.4%.

Ultimately interpreted this means that not only did more students register this semester but they took more courses also.

Figure are yet to come in on fall registration. An additional two thousand students could be expected to enroll.

As is common, the bookstore line for the bookstore is long.

Don't let that deter you if you need to return books.

The last day for full refund is February 1. Books must be accompanied by a receipt.

Also, near the end of the semester the bookstore will be buying back used books for half their cost.

Theatre Director turns vacation into something much more in jolly old England

by Kim Osirowski
Features Editor

Now it is true, our lovely vacation has ended. Hopefully everyone has pleasant memories. One of Harper's community who decidedly enjoyed her vacation is Jo Willis, who recently returned from a "super vacation" of sorts in Great Britain and the British Isles.

The vacation of bagpipes, castle Soths and crumpets was home to Ms. Willis from late from late August to early Dec. Those three months were a long, tiring, but well-deserved respite from hard work here at Harper.

Willis, submerged after almost a year's worth of proposals and petitioning, waiting, board meetings and interviews, waiting and finally, the arrival.

Enthusiastic when asked to discuss her sabbatical, Willis related her high points of her trip, from her theatrical experiences to chats with students and sight seeing.

Living in Regent's Park area, next North of London, Willis spent all of her three months in Great Britain based in an American plan apartment. This type of apartment is ideal because it is easier to move in and out of quickly, as she recalls, when she wanted to prepare her favorite dishes or some of the many interesting entries from the diverse and cosmopolitan London peoples.

In the apartment at Regents' Park, Willis enjoyed becoming a fixture in the neighborhood by discussing events with people from the area to get into the swing of things. After a initial settling period I found I was really into the swing of the lifestyle there. It was so different from our homogenous suburb, up here [Northwest suburbs].

Meeting new people is part, if not a great percentage, of the international experience. Such was definitely true of Willis' visit. She is as gregarious and friendly as anyone in theater major, and I many new people and, hence, their characters.

I met very kind people everywhere I went. In fact Great Britain is it. I was not familiar with a particular street or building I would ask someone and they gave me the information without any bother. It was wonderful.

After the became one of the natives, towards the end of her stay, Willis commented that most people would often stop her for information because, I guess I looked as if I knew what I was doing and looked a bit smart!

When asked if she had had any problems understanding poor non-English dialects, she responded:

"Because they were so very kind they would speak English and I asked them, I did not understand them at all. I did meet a gentleman from Newcastle on Eon, however, who was extremely difficult to understand. On Sabath he had us interpreters, which I thought was during approximately four plays per week. Other theatrical productions included musical comedies, contemporary dramas and workshops in the theater or so producing. I also attended several plays such those created by Jeremy Irons, Maggie Smith,

Albert Finney and Anthony

Ward.

The workshops featured many actors and directors. One such featured guest, Mr. Terry

Hans, discussed play directing.

Mr. Hans is the artistic director of the Royal Shakespeare

Theater and became an exciting inspiration" for Willis.

It is from the workshops and from her time in Britain that Willis will develop ideas for Harper College's new theater.

Even with sabbatical, one never mixes business with pleasure. However, after the pleasure of hand is completed, some pleasure signs off as well.

Willis' first stop on her tour of the most historical countries in Europe in England, Wales and Great Britain.

She recalled with pleasure several of the sights she saw; at the top of her list was Canterbury, and apparently the cathedral there from London and home to Canterbury Cathedral (at St. Thomas of Becket and Henry II) located in the city of Canterbury with names on the stone (Roman houses, hence, its name) was next on her list of memories.

Then (Oxford and Cambridge) and finally, and fantastically, castles.

Willis appreciates their history when encountered in person. She added that their houses, so well built in medieval times. She did not talk with faculty at the universities, but did chat with students both on campus and in the local pubs.

Castles! Willis visited several mentioning that most are now in ruins, but still stand as symbols of power.

Willis' comments were so interesting that most people would often stop her for

The Harbinger January 21, 1988

open to the public, and are restored. One castle that remains partially visible in her memory, is that local Cardiff in Wales. It is a large castle that is restored and has, in fact been left in near mint state for the express purpose of demonstrating how massive and long lasting castles were.

Cardiff's castle is interesting to visit, says Willis, because of its history, then, because of the castle, then during Cromwell's reign as the only non-monarch autocrat in England, the castle was ordered demolished by him. The castle was restored, and is now in mint condition and still does retain the elements, leaving at an angle greater than that of the famed Leaning Tower of Pisa.

Other leisure pursuits were spent with the students involved in the London abroad program. Willis, who is a good cook, cooked Thanksgiving dinner in her apartment for the group, packaged it, and sent it to their containers, turning them to a warming fast, stacking the containers on the taxy floor and having to sit encrossed on the seat because of the lack of space.

It was hilarious. Willis laughs, "I think the other member of my group must have thought I was crazy American, but the group and I had a wonderful time!"

Of course, the trip to London was over and complete for the theater-oriented Stratford-on-Avon was missed. Willis also visited Shakespeare's birthplace in his grave and Anne Hathaway's this wife's cottage.

Willis' trip, going there when I did, because there were not many American tourists at all, she says.

However, the old saying goes, however, All good things must come to an end. Willis feels she made many wonderful friends in London and hopes to return to the area again in the next time on her own time.

She says, too, that she would like very much to be on the faculty on the Abroad program.

Armed with her newly-acquired directing techniques and a desire for innovative theaters, Willis is currently working on the Spring theater musical, "Gypsy," January 20th and Saturday, January 21st. "Gypsy" will open March 19th after which she says, "I'm off to New York."

Willis' next venture, and the theatrical world planned? Willis hopes to travel to New York, the Second seat of theater at the

And you thought we needed Bork to screw up the Supreme Court.

The Supreme Court of the United States handed down a ruling last week that promises to be every bit as offensive to believers in free speech as Roe v. Wade legalizing abortion was "right."

In January 1983, a Missouri high school principal's decision not to run two articles on teenage pregnancy and the effect of divorce on children was challenged by the student authors in court. A lower court decision in favor of the principal was upheld by a high court, "High" court indeed. What are the good justices smoking these days, and why aren't they sharing it?

It seems that at least five of the supreme court justices (the whole was 5-4) feel it is alright for students to learn about freedom of speech, while if they are in school, but to do it only after they graduate.

The articles in question were apparently not in violation of any morally accepted conventions in print journalism (i.e., obscene literature), or obvious (illegal activity), but offended the sensibilities of the principals.

What I would like to know is where on the boundaries lie? The court did not say whether its ruling would apply to colleges and universities, as well as public grammar and high schools.

Certainly discrimination based on sex is bad. In the world will tell you his primary job is to decide (or at least help to decide) what is or isn't proper for the paper in print. But the fact remains that authors can, or should be, selected on the basis of their ability to do their job, not on the basis of who (or she) selects it. Staff that is competent to do that also.

If the faculty or administration of a school wants IT'S views published, then why do they make a student publication?

We at Harper College have had an open ended administration as well as Board of Trustees. I had two editors openly critical of Board policies, and another two critical of administration decisions. The only responses I have had been of a positive nature, including being called in by John Coughlin, legendary fire-breathing chairman of the Board member, who disagreed with everything I said, but praised my right to say it. So no, I'm not nervous for our paper, but I'm worried about the fate of my children's right to speak in their name.

As a prospective editor-in-chief (and a student, I might add), I would be appalled at any colleague (even more so a principal) who would ever attempt such fascist tactics. Even as an adviser, I would attempt to insist that:

But I close this off in the most ideal of worlds, where if the Supreme Court sanctioned something so grossly immoral like the selective prohibition of free speech, perhaps? that the whole world would change.

The system of checks and balances put into place by the framers of the Constitution to prevent just such an abuse by a branch of government would provide for a Constitutional amendment to right the wrong. But in this case, we already have one. The bad law isn't a prerequisite to becoming a Supreme Court Justice.

A message from your Health Center

Winter often brings health problems—conditions such as colds, flu and other respiratory infections are much more prevalent during this time. Lingering cold air directly on the ears can quickly cause the ears to become numb, which result in shivering of breath and coughing.

Most frequently, people, especially those with chronic respiratory conditions, breathe through their mouths, thus preventing warmth and moisture from reaching the lungs. This causes spasms which result in shivering of breath and coughing.

To minimize this added burden to the heart and lungs, cover the mouth and nose with a scarf or use an air warming mask while outdoors.

Walking slowly and allow yourself more time to do so. Try to stay out of the wind. Always dress for the weather.

Eating Disorders -- The fine line between diet and danger

The first in a four-part series

By Patricia Santucci, M.D.

In recent polls, 80% of college students said they were overweight. The holidays always bring up the issue of self-improvement and we make pledges to be in better control and to lose weight.

This lot usually includes a diet or exercise program. That simple, eh? Well, that many of us, to lose weight, eat five or ten pounds and get fit like shapely models.

Why do some lose a few pounds and then mostly stop while others continue to alter their lives? For a growing number of individuals, both men and women, the diet does not end with the loss of even twenty-five pounds total. It doesn't end even when the goal is reached.

The tendency to diet, just a few more pounds off, and I should begin to feel better, I still feel fat, people tell me I am doing it. I just cannot believe them! They associate with food and fitness stars.

What is an eating disorder? Most of us are familiar with anorexia nervosa (self-starvation) and bulimia (compulsive over-eating followed by vomiting and/or laxative abuse).

In America there is fear of becoming fat, even when underweight.

This leads to a great deal of anxiety about weight gain.

As the diet continues, the fear of gaining weight may become the focal point in their life.

They have what is referred to as a distorted body image. They actually misperceive their body weight, size and shape.

They feel fat even when emaciated and thin to the extent that they feel they are too thin.

At this point, the starvation becomes involuntary, like an addiction to drugs or alcohol, and they cannot stop.

The starvation causes an intense carbohydrate crave which often results in a binge.

A binge in moderation (between 3,000 to 4,000) in a short period of time.

The feeling of losing control over food and eating presents such immense fear that panic ensues. Not only does one feel physically ill, but emotionally there is a whole spectrum of negative emotions.

The compulsive overeater again does not take any further action but feels guilty, depressed and disgusted. Those on their way to bulimia usually attempt some reaction to the binges, such as vomiting or laxative use is employed to relieve the discomfort and effects of the binges.

The cycle usually goes on, typically starvation in the morning and planning a binge and purge by the afternoon. The binge and purge cycle becomes more frequent and more out of control.

When one tries to stop it becomes more frequent and more out of control. When one tries to stop it becomes very difficult. Ashamed of their actions, they tell few people and can get little support which intensifies their feelings of being alone.

Even more distressing is the disorder they are unable to lose weight, even if they vomit almost everything they eat. They are trapped!

Rowe nails crucial free throws as Ladyhawks rally past Triton, 75-70

By Bill Kugelberg

Sports Editor
Julie Rowe thought she had lost the game for the Ladyhawks.

But it was this free throw from Simmons who would be responsible for securing another Harper win (as she usually did) in a rally that ended with only 14 seconds remaining.

The Ladyhawks held on for the win as they slipped past Triton, 75-70.

After Rowe said, "I almost lost the game for us but I thought I had the chance," she added,

"The win gives Harper an impressive 4-1 conference record, 8-6 overall, while extending their winning streak to 8 games.

The Ladyhawks led 33-30 at half late in the game but 5 unanswered points by the Ladyhawks put the stage for Rowe's free throw.

"Julie really helped our cause. She is playing much better now," said Harper coach Tom Testinardi. "They came back toward the end. Our wings had them in. They [Triton] came down the court quick."

It was nervous at the time, Rowe said. "We were up by 11 and we let them come back." Following Rowe's 2 free throws, she then stole the ball at the other end of the court. She was fouled at halfcourt. Rowe led Harper in scoring with 20 points, while Rowe (20 points), Pascale O'Donnoghue (14 points), and Natalie Simmons (10 points) joined her in double figures.

There will be an organizational meeting for anyone interested in trying out for the Women's Track and Field team on February 1st at 3 p.m. For further information contact Renee Zellner at extension 2466.

The softball team is now looking for members. Anybody interested in playing softball this year should contact Myra Minuskin at extension 2466.

Wrestling Wrap-Up

By Marc Radler

Last Saturday, the Harper wrestling team competed in the Harper Invitational, placing third as a team.

Many individual place winners represented Harper, including Brian Cianci (third at 113), Mike Cianci (second at 134), Bill Condo (third at 138), Mike Hufnus (third at 167), Mark Cecer (second at 177), and Rick Hufnus (second at 190).

In the previous week, the Hawks placed fifth in the 1988 Annual Carthage Invitational.

Hawks fall to Triton, 114-82, Leonardo scores 24 points

By Bill Kugelberg

Turbovers can be an ally when they are on your side, but if they are on the other team's bench, they can prove to be deadly.

Harper never started so ugly, bad. Tuesday night at the Hawks' Nest as Harper committed four consecutive turnovers late in the first half, falling to visiting Triton, 114-82.

Triton's 114 points broke the record of most points scored in a single game against a Harper men's basketball team. The record was previously 107 points held by Illinois Valley 21 during the '76-77 season.

The Hawks were holding tight to a 35-31 Trojans lead when Triton exploded for 9 consecutive points to give put them in the lead for good.

The Hawks never recovered from the Triton splash.

During the winter break, the Hawks lost three of their starters, Gary Miller, Bill Giada, and Craig Brown.

Coach Bill Probst was forced to do some quick thinking as he has landed an excellent player in newcomer Kevin Simpson.

Simpson recorded 28 points in his opening game as a Hawk. Joe Leonardo led Harper with 24 points, while teammates Travis Perry (18 points), and Joe Prassi (11 points) joined him in double figures.

BACZYNSKI SECOND STUDENT SENATOR DISMISSED

Douglas Ray
News Editor

Don Baczyński, student senator for the Liberal Arts division was confirmed dismissed from the Student Senate at the meeting on January 25.

No concrete reason made as to the reason for his dismissal. "It was not a Student Senate matter," said Jeanne Pankana, Student Senator.

Baczyński sources speculate Baczyński's disregard for public property may be the cause for his dismissal.

Baczyński is the same senator admitting to discarding 4 thousand Harbinger papers during the election due to his mistake of his name.

He explained, "The only way to keep it even was to get rid of the (Harbinger) paper."

Following that incident Baczyński sought through the election committee to determine what action should be taken.

When asked if he had been informed of his dismissal, Baczyński said, "Not yet. Nobody said anything."

He did not attend the recent Student Senate meeting because he "wasn't feeling well."

Diane Bones was the only formal candidate for the Liberal Arts Senate. Anyone desiring to apply for the position can contact Bob Bone, Student Senate President, extension 2344.

At the next Student Senate meeting a new Liberal Arts senator will be elected. The meeting and time will be posted on the Student Senate office, A332.

Presidential Search Committee set back three weeks

Douglas Ray
News Editor

According to a memo from Felice Avila, Executive Assistant to the President, the deadline for the Presidential Search Committee (PSAC) to choose three to five nominees for President of Harper College has been moved to three weeks.

Due to a sudden influx of applicants on the deadline date (January 15, 1988) "the PSAC will not be able to submit the final list names by January 29 (the original date for submission to the Board of Trustees)."

PSAC was originally charged with the job of selecting nominees for president of Harper College on October 22.

The first advertisement for the open position was made in the October 21 issue of The Chronicle of Higher Education. By the end of November approximately 30 applications were received.

According to Patricia Bourke, Chairman of PSAC, there was a substantial decline in the number of candidates applying December.

She speculated the reason for the diminished number of applications during this time was due to the holiday season.

Many of the applications have come in within the last week," said Bourke. A total of 15 applications have now been received by January 15.

PSAC will next meet on February 4 to compile a list of ten to fifteen candidates.

The members of the list will be interviewed by the committee on dates still to be scheduled.

After interviewing the candidates, the committee will recommend three to five nominees to the Board of Trustees to vote.

The Board of Trustees must select a President for Harper by April 1, 1988, because President McGrath's contract expires on May 1.

President McGrath will begin his Presidency at Trinity College on February 1, 1988.

McGrath will complete thirteen days of work here at Harper between February 1 and May 1.

During his absence, Dr. David Williams, Vice President of Academic Affairs, will be acting President.

McGrath is honored at his farewell banquet Thursday January 21. McGrath's last day at Harper is May 1, 1988. (Photo Credit: Tatyana Brown)

Campus after

by Rob Baker
Staff Writer

Construction at several sites on campus, brought to a halt by the arrival of winter cold and precipitation, will pick up again as soon as the weather improves.

According to Don DeBaise, director of Harper's Physical Plant Division,

The delayed projects include applying asphalt to a section of the perimeter road and to the parking lot.

Both asphalt jobs, being handled by different contractors, were near completion in the Fall when the weather turned cold and forced them to be put on hold.

The asphalt plants closed in November because of the winter, DeBaise said. "They'll open up again as soon as we get good dry weather. Then they'll be done in a week unless rain gets in the way."

A evidence of another delayed maintenance project is visible in the center of campus near F Building. According to DeBaise, there is quite a bit of work to be done yet in association with this.

DeBaise also said that the new construction projects to begin in the summer, pending board approval.

construction to continue bad-weather delays

DeBaise explained the need for new doors. "The doors we have now are the original doors," he said.

"None of them are 15 to 18 years old. They don't operate properly, they're not energy efficient and they're not properly designed for the amount of traffic they receive."

These projects are not expected to be completed until the end of the summer, and Completed projects include this ramp near C Bldg. and some sidewalk resurfacing. Still awaiting completion are the stairs to F Bldg. library and the restructuring of the retaining walls both F Bldg. and A Bldg.

Features

"What did I do? Well, . . ."

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

It will be two weeks this coming Tuesday that we have been in school. Do we remember what we did over our four-week Christmas vacation?

Several students gave their stories and here is a sample of how some of our peers spent their Christmas vacation.

Diane Szwarczki, reading in A-Bldg., paused her endeavors to say she "pretty much what I normally do."

Diane relaxed.

"Wait a minute here! This does sound like much fun!"

But, Diane adds, "I did go to a night club with a friend for New Year's Eve."

OK! Now celebrating sounds more like a vacation!

Relaxing is a main part of vacation, as freshman Clausus Payne relates.

"I spent a lot of time with my boyfriend, who came back from college just before we watched old movies on television, talked about old times and cuddled."

Sigh.

"I also went to the Nutcracker ballet," she added. It was my first time at the Nutcracker and was so excited. Afterward, we went to dinner. It was really special."

What did she do for New Year's Eve?

"Oh, Charissa sighed, "we stayed up late and had a quiet night looking at the Christmas tree and all of that."

Ah, true love! The Christmas holidays truly are meant to be spent with loved ones and friends.

Kelly Wika, residing a month away from her studies in Bldg. 10, recall her vacation says she skied at Devil's Head and Alpine Valley, in Wisconsin.

Then, for New Year's day, Kelly visited a friend's cabin in upper Wisconsin to do some snowshoeing.

"The lake behind the cabin had all sorts of [hmm] liquid refreshment stopping places around it, and we had a good time."

That Saturday Kelly and her friends returned home and rested from their vacation, partying a bit.

Did everyone have a 100% good vacation?

No. Cases in point of some vacationers that had down sides included that of sophomore Patty Bentele and a man who lost his job.

Patty had an essentially quiet vacation with her family from out of town. I did say essentially. On the day before New Year's Eve, however, her widower called. Ouch!

Another case of a vacation gone sour comes from a gentleman who lost his job for Christmas Day. He had planned to relax at home, but job hunting instead. Walking, television and his 40-day diet and drinking filled his nights.

There is a happy note to the gentleman's story, however; the employer recalled him just in time for working on New Year's Eve!

The Harbinger January 28, 1988

Friends of Harper

by Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

"New Year's Eve was super," he mused.

"Didn't anyone go 'out west'?"

John Booz (pronounced Bowz) flew out to Colorado with a group of twenty-four friends for a week of skiing. Because they were there for New Year's, there weren't many people out there and yes, the rates were somewhat cheap.

Has he any broken bones to report?

"No," laughed Dan, "I am an aggressive skier but not all that much of an expert, so I guess I was pretty lucky."

Wasn't it just a smattering of the experiences had by Harperites? Some vacations are relaxing and some are stressful.

What seems to be a consensus of those students asked (regarding vacations)? Take a vacation from the vacation to reality!

Last semester I wrote an article for Harper College's active Alumni Association, mentioning the involvement of citizen participation through a group of Friends of Harper; people have asked me,

"What exactly is Friends of Harper?"

As a college relations pamphlet states:

"One of the most important responsibilities of Harper College is to make its community aware of its importance as a cultural center for the Northwestern suburbs."

The Friends of Harper organization strives to strengthen the community by serving as a primary liaison between the college and the people in the surrounding areas.

The Friends of Harper consists of businesses and professional organizations, senior citizens and residents to emphasize how vital Harper is as a source of educational, cultural and social activities.

Friends of Harper has produced a slide presentation on why "Harper Makes A Difference," business leaders who later remarked, "I didn't realize how much was going on out here!" and enjoyed special events ranging from theater evenings to fundraising dinners, ranging from theater evenings to

Editorial

Fan Mail from a flounder

Normally, we try to treat less than favorable letters and notes with a grain of salt, or (when they are well-thought-out and constructive) at least consideration.

Most of the comments we hear (at least to our faces) are complimentary. The few written notes we have gotten in the last year have, however, been negative. The main reason these letters are ignored, at least in print, is that in the end and a half plus that I have been here, we have received several disgruntled letters, and until now, NONE have been signed. Edinions are open to all letters, after all, the Editor must be signed, names withheld upon request). I think that anybody who has a criticism, legitimate or otherwise, should have the guts to sign their name.

I am not going to do with the people over my years who have written about specific articles or problems. For some reason, these people are forthright enough to give their names. Well, just my luck; I received a nasty, AND SIGNED, letter this week. It being a slow editorial week, I thought I would share it with you, as well as my reply:

Larry Paulin

Last semester Harbinger were filled with mistakes, spelling errors, cut-off and mixed-up articles. You yourself contradicted yourself when replying to a letter from me. The originality of Peter Sweeney, "He's alive and well in Page 5 will show" you write. Yet your editorial was an apology for putting Peter's article of that week. You also said that "some" of his articles were re-runs. Wasn't it more "most" or "all"?

ARGUED Bygones are bygones. Here is the first issue of the year. The "England" story is continued on the page promised. Nancy Palau, despite her "uplifting" re-run Christmas story, has graduated, with a fine story. The same for Teddy Livingston. And B Street is still in a boring rip-off of "Blown Count".

BUT ALL STOLE, Page 5 is back the way I liked it. And Peter Sweeney is reborn. An important new item on "B Street". Here's hoping for a return of "Tommy" - legally. "My Friends" and Steve Hill's "Adventures of the Bear".

This year I started my own paper, "The Dossier" and I realize what a rough job "Editor" is. You're excused from further abuse.

Sincerely,

Paul M. Grossman

Dear Mr. Grossman:

Your letter is reproduced exactly as received (the original is on file in my office), with one exception: The spelling and grammatical errors are in Italics and Underlined. I guess it is preposterous being an Editor, huh? But on to your other complaints:

First of all, we do what we can. As best we can. Our department editors are all students, most full-time, and most of us work outside jobs. We receive no pay for our efforts, however, unless tuition rebates after the semester ends, nor are we for the most part concerned students. For the times that we mess up, offer a blanket apology. And believe me it's pointed out to us when we do mess up.

But no apology is offered for our efforts. We are grossly underpaid, and we know it. We have been here until 2 AM and back at 7 AM at the latest, to put things out. But it comes with the territory. If you have the time, do more than criticize, you're welcome to come up to the Harbinger office (A36) on Monday, Tuesday evening and help proof and correct the issue before it comes out.

But, as you say, bygones ARE bygones. On your other concerns: Last semester, about half of Sweeney's articles were reprinted. He promises more originals.

As far as your votes for "Tommy" and "Adventures of the Bear", they are due to me. That leaves the vote totals at 2 for each (and I'm including the artists' votes for the sake of argument).

On one more double-check the spelling of their name. You should probably double-check the spelling of your name. You know what they say: "Say what you want about me, but spell the name right!"

STREET DRUGS

Drugs destroy dreams - for both casual and habitual user. Doctor James Curreri of the Chicago Police Department Narcotics Service will discuss the danger of drugs to teenagers at 2 p.m. on Thursday, February 9 at 322

This free presentation will examine the variety of drugs used, how they are taken into the body and the short and long term effects of drugs, street drugs, and how addicts live and hang around the streets, and the legal ramifications of drug possession.

FEBRUARY IS AMERICAN HEART MONTH

Cholesterol is a waxy-like substance carried in the bloodstream which is needed for the production of cells and hormones.

Excess blood cholesterol contributes to the growth of fatty deposits on artery walls, narrowing the arteries and increasing the risk of heart attack. Half of all adult Americans have blood cholesterol levels associated with an increased risk of heart disease.

An important first step to take to help prevent heart disease is to get a blood test done. Call the Heart Disease Health Services. Also, offers cholesterol testing for students for a $1 fee and for staff and faculty for $2. That is a simple prick of blood which can be analyzed in minutes to provide an immediate reading.

Do something good for your heart today - learn your blood cholesterol level.

Eating Disorders -- The stereotypes and causes are changing

The second in a four-part series

By Patricia Santucci, M.D.
Cardinal Health Systems, Ltd.

Anorexia nervosa is not a new disease. Literature dating back to the 17th century refers to patients who "would not eat enough to look like skeletons clad in skin."

In the past ten years the number of patients who develop eating disorders has increased dramatically. Statistics indicate 5% to 15% of high school and college women are bulimic. The incidence in males is unknown.

The onset of anorexia is usually highest in the early teens, but can be found through the late 20's and 30's.

Until recently, eating disorders seemed to affect mainly females. Now, achievement-oriented females in upper-middle class families (Upper-middle, Black, Oriental and Hispanic) are now beginning to appear.

Sociocultural pressures are high for women. We are bombarded with messages about what is "normal" and what it means to be a "successful" woman.

The "Successful" career woman today not only must compete with her male counterpart, she must be better than him. TV programs, magazines, movies, and commercials all reinforce this image. Today's "successful" woman is seen as being tall and thin.

Individuals who feel they must please others or who have a strong need for approval are at risk developing this illness.

One way to be thin is to diet. A majority of Americans do this at least once a year.

This behavior results in fear and anger which may surface as an eating disorder.

Personality patterns also predispose some to be prime candidates for eating disorders. The person is often at risk for depression.

The concern of a negative self-esteem, the difficulty of expressing feelings, and issues of control all feed into the dynamics of who is at risk. The inability to properly cope with stress results in the use of food to deal with those issues.

Frequently, these suffering from an eating disorder also struggle with alcohol and drug abuse.

Broadcasting some different news

Sean Cobert
Staff Writer

When it was suggested that I write a review of "Broadcast News," my response was "Is this really necessary?"

With all the critical raves, magazine covers (including this week's People) and accolades from the movie people, not to mention Oscar predictions, aren't there enough people clamoring to explain how good this film is?

But when it occurred to me, What about all the things "Broadcast News" isn't? What about all the things it hasn't got?

A hit soundtrack for instance. Don't these people know that any commercially film-oriented movie, if it's somewhat successful, will end up with top 40 hopefuls, recorded for the most part by acts that are unable to understand an entire LP or a willing audience?

At present, "Broadcast News" has no soundtrack available. This makes it a very odd movie, with "Dirty Dancing," which currently boasts three top 20 singles, but doesn't inspire much Oscar discussion.

Another thing that's missing from this film is the "magic sex" scene. Magic sex scenes occur only in movies and are usually the kinds of budgets that one can only get when a movie studio provides you with a personal fitness trainer.

Likewise, there are no gross flicks. As any mediocre movie producer will tell you, there is nothing like a good gross kick to make a capacity crowd convulse in [nervous] laughter.

One more thing: Broadcast News is not a star vehicle, despite the presence of three hot leading actors. In a star vehicle, the audience is expected to root for the lead, and to do so as though anything with a star like Meryl Streep or Goldie Hawn is a star vehicle.

In this film, the grain characterizes the two stars from sympathetic to unapproachable to win our complete allegiance.

Finally, "Broadcast News" makes the mistake of fleshing out real supporting characters. This is something you'll never see in a movie like Death Wish or Rambo movies. For the first time, actress Joann Cusack ('Cinderella', 'Sunday Night Live') plays a human being rather than a butt for handicapped jocks.

At the same times, James Brooks seems to be the only director in Hollywood that sees Jack Palance as anything other than the dead incarcere. Nicholson's cameo as America's leading news anchor is particularly convincing; it's hard to imagine he's ever done anything else.

Actually, there are a lot of other great things "Broadcast News" is going for, but after all this is a review of what the film isn't, not what it is, right?

Dance Preview

by Nik Opeka Harper's Program Board presents the fashionably music non-event of the semester. The Celebration begins at 8:30 pm in the building. A lounge and will go on late until 1 a.m.

Featuring such groups as New Order, Sisters of Mercy, The Cure, The Smiths, and Flock 242. The posters on the back also to take the suburbs where they have never gone before. The posters advise to come dressed in black. Why? For a reason. Program Board creates the following statement: "Black is the absence of color. A vapid darkness. The opposite of both power and circumference. The Celebration in Black is a reaction to the flashy, hi-tech, pretentious dance clubs of the suburbs. These events will be sure to maximize the exciting, giddy music and atmosphere conducive to dancing."

With a cover charge of $1 for Harper students, $1.50 for other students, with a valid I.D., and $2 for the public, one can hardly not go. The admission fee may also win one a free drink or a copy of Time from The Turntable. Five passes to Zanes Comedy Club, or free albums from IRS and Warner Brothers records. An Angry Album To Make You Happy?

Kevin Goldstein
Staff Writer

Almost three years since the last Sex and the City show in San Francisco in January of 1978, John Lydon (Rotten) gathered together four new musicians including some with classical training and formed Public Image he means it.

The next cut is "Rules and Regulations" whose well-timed, flawless rhythmic section makes you wonder how good the Pistols could have been if they were musically inclined.

The side ends with "The Body" and "Save Me" a song in which Lydon shows his disgust on the influence that religion plays in everyday life.

Half Side Two leads off with "Hard Times." More anger from Rotten "Spies everywhere! You put the poison in the air! HARD TIMES! Will they get better?"

After that is "Open and Reckoning" which if one eliminated the shimmering production would most resemble Lydon's old days with The Sex Pistols.

Song seven perfectly sums up this album with its title: "Angry". Lydon shows more disguised anger against people who refuse to be themselves, and express their real thoughts, not the thoughts of others.

The album ends with "Fat City" however, after listening to the album a bad taste is left in ones mouth as you realize all the concentrated anger, and frustration that was put into this album.

P.L.I.'s best effort since 1984's This Is What You Want....This Is What You Get!.

Soby Makes Progress

Peter Soby, the Harper College student who was left paralyzed after a diving accident, plans to be released from the Rehabilitation Institute of Chicago sometime in February.

Soby is working hard and although his hands and feet still do not work, he has learned in therapy to get some movement in his upper arm. He is able to sit in a wheelchair several hours a day and his attitude continues to be strong.

Soby came to Harper in December for a special event in his honor. In fact, he closed out the evening's performances with one of his own he played "Amazing Grace" on his harmonica.

Harper has raised over $8,000 so far. Last semester's events included operating concessions at events, Java & Donuts Day, Yellow Ribbon Days, a community talent show, paper and can recycling, and so on.

Peter Soby

For this semester, there will be a Bears Basketball Game on April 6, an auction, a walkathon/wheelathon, and the paper and can recycling competition. The auction is in student parking lot #1 on the west side of the campus.

White Visits Harper

Internationally famous billiard champion and池上藝術家 Jack White is truly a master of the game. He makes even the sharpest of shooters look dull, bringing a touch of class to a sport that for years had no real respectability.

White will exhibit a cross between uncanny trick shot and stand-up comedy in the Building A Game Room on February 1 at noon. Admission is free and open to the public.

White began playing pool when he was eight years old and his professional career has spanned over 30 years. He has traveled to over 100 countries in 29 years in 123 countries and is the only professional pocket billiard player in the White House. He has five honorary degrees from different universities and is called the "Doctor of Poolology."

EDITORS SELECTED FOR LITERARY MAGAZINE POINT OF VIEW

Harper College student activities has named the editors for this year's edition of Point of View, the annual literary magazine.

Frank Andrew Man Mayfield, who has been appointed Art editor, will convene a student jury to judge art submissions, which will be responsible for the design of the magazine.

Poetry and fiction will be selected and edited for publication by Literary Advisors Rob Fraser and Carol M. Keene.

The editors are looking for art and literature students interested in helping to judge the material.

The advisors, Frank Smith for literature and Mike Knudsen for art, encourage all creative students to submit their work for consideration.

All work must be accompanied by a release form that gives the college the right to publish the release form is available in the Student Activities office, in the Art Department office, and the Liberal Arts Division office, F-

Unlike some student magazines that print only the work of the editorial staff, the Point of View published on a competitive basis, writing and art submitted from throughout the Harper College community.

Competition is stiff, but the visual quality of the magazine is very high, so the magazine is a real showpiece for student achievements.

The final date for submissions is February

10, 1988. All writing should be double-spaced. If you are unable to return manuscripts, please keep a copy of your work.

$3 Million Planetarium For Harper

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Board of Trustees allotted $8,000 to develop educational opportunities. This study, which will be completed by August 1988, will determine how great the need is for two new buildings.

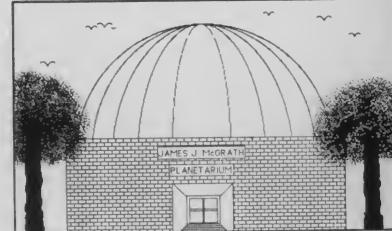

The buildings in question are a building to relieve the overcrowded P building and a planetarium.

In reference to the shortage of facilities on campus, Vice President of Administrative Services Verne Manke said, "It is most likely that the building will be built between the P and F buildings." An enclosed walkway between P and F building is also a possibility.

Paul Sipera, associate professor of Practice Sciences and pioneer for the planetarium project, has received support external from Harper College in addition to the commitment by faculty, administrators, students and Harper alumni.

The Student Senate voted unanimously to endorse plans to build a planetarium and "recommends that said planetarium be named 'The James J. McGrath Planetarium.'

Sipera must present the

plans for the planetarium to the Board of Trustees. The presentation will include drawings by Meyer Rudoff, professor of Architectural Technology, site proposals, and a detailed description of the functions of the planetarium.

"A real presentation is at least six to nine months away," said Sipera.

The planetarium has three areas of focus: student education, public education and entertainment.

The planetarium will have two classrooms for astrology and display areas will be available for Chemistry, Biology, and Physics.

The planetarium will offer the public laser shows, similar to the sky show at the Adler

Planetarium. Also, guest speakers will offer lectures on Physics and other topics.

Finally the planetarium may be leased for private use; it will provide a location for special events such as weddings, conferences or lectures.

Sipera's largest problem to overcome is the cost of the project. The laser show costs $1 million dollars and Sipera

McGrath Reveals Evaluation Team's

"strengths" and "concerns" for Harper

(Photo Credit: Harper College)
"You can't leave without another plaque," said Chris Howard, President of the Board of Trustees.

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

President James McGrath received the final report from the North Central Evaluation team listing the 35 strengths of Harper College and the 14 concerns of the evaluation team.

The team based their evaluation in October on interviews with faculty, administrators, Board of Trustees, and community members and reading of the self-study and other institutional documents.

The North Central Evaluation team complimented Harper on a well-written self-study document, a well-defined mission statement (found in the Harper bulletin), an increased enrollment in the Continuing Education department.

Additional strengths were: the faculty and administration work well together, the Board of Trustees is very supportive for the college, students are well prepared for transfer to four-year colleges and have little trouble with job placement, the school has a well funded student activities which has an excellent program.

The team seemed most concerned about the abundance of part-time faculty in some areas, the lack of space in the LRC (P-building), and the lack of space for Liberal Arts Division.

President McGrath was honored with two additional awards as the most outstanding bid from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools later this spring.

Also, addressed at the meeting was the issue of early retirement for several faculty members.

The Board of Trustees approved the early retirement for all of the above faculty and President McGrath expressed his appreciation for their many years of dedication.

President McGrath expects the Accreditation Certificate from the North Central Association of Colleges and Schools later this spring.

Nejman recounts adventures

by Kim Datrowski
Editor

Michael Nejman, Student Activities Coordinator, services as residence assistant (RA) and often, big brother for twenty one Illinois students studying abroad in London during last semester.

Nejman and the students involved in the Illinois Consortium for International Studies (ICS) program flew to London to study English and experience the different culture for the entire fall semester.

ICS is composed primarily of sophomore collegiates from around the state; in fact, Illinois State University is the only four-year institution in ICS.

Because most four year institutions have international study programs in their junior year course selection, transfer students who do not get chances to enroll in the programs. As Nejman says, "through ICS we can offer an exchange program to transfer students so that they may otherwise miss."

"I don't do all of my learning in school."

I also learn from my part-time work as an Upjohn Health Care Services' nurse assistant. I'm learning more with every flexible hour I need and hands-on experience that's helping me become the best nurse I can be.

Upjohn HealthCare Services has much to offer student nurses. We're one of the nation's leading providers of dental, health care, hospital staffing and private duty nursing. Call today to find out about our v.b opportunities. 382-2650

Five Harper students took full advantage of the opportunity. Vickie Lopez, Barbara Mammi, Mary Titone, Linda Ton and Valerie Tokre.

As an RA, Nejman organized activities for the students as well as a social director and a resource for the students in the program. He worked closely with Study Director Peter Dow, Program Director and Academic Director Don Erickson, from ICS, to help the students acclimate themselves to their new surroundings.

Nejman and Ms. Eve developed a calendar that advised students of activities planned for each week and the costs involved so that everyone would quickly involve themselves in the culture.

Nejman also established a room for students to help with translating. For example, "lift means elevator, floor means washroom, liftube means the underground rail system and get in" means get in line.

Students lived in a four-story, youth hostel called Bryanside in the heart of London, directly off of the Marble Arch and next to the Swiss embassy. Meals could be cooked in the three kitchens or bought in the neighboring restaurants.

Bryanside, notes Nejman, is only about a half hour from the west end (the theater district). Unlike conventional schooling, the program conducts classes in the basement of Bryanside.

Nejman recalls how casual the arrangements were, sometimes the students jumped out of bed upstairs, threw on a robe and went to the showers and back down to class.

Classes of eight to twelve allowed a rare opportunity for almost a one-to-one learning experience, which can be good and bad.

Socialization with the teacher was very common, even to the extent of going to a pub after class," recalls Nejman. Teachers also knew the class academic weaknesses, causing some students to quit judging on questions.

Classes in the ICS program are held twice a week, covering a wide variety of subjects. Due to the relative intimacy of the class, the second day is generally reserved for a "hands-on" approach to learning. This was discussed the first day of the trip.

Some examples of the field trips include art professor Nancy Cook's tour of the Tate Gallery and the British Museum, and an audiology students' trip to the East End (formerly a dilapidated area, now undergoing rehabilitation by the yuppie population) and industrial or rural areas, and literature students' venture to Stratford-on-Avon and to various Shakespearean sites.

Some classes with equally fascinating field trips were education class, with a visit to Cambridge, Oxford, the class on British legal systems went to the Old Bailey (where the class saw a lively murder trial); and to the political system class went to the Parliament building.

On the last day, students could access many tours set available to them by ICS, to places such as Scotland, Ireland and France. During the ten-day semester break students visited Greece, Italy, Paris and the U.S.S.R. (See next issue for Nejman's views on the Soviet Union).

One interesting adventure led Nejman to a talk with rocker Alice Cooper, a talk about golf, no less.

On the subject of rock and roll, some readers may listen to WART's "Rock Over London" program, broadcast twice a week on Saturday evenings, syndicated throughout the U.S.A. Nejman listened "religiously" to the program before his trip and when London was mentioned for a short, producer, Graham Dene, writer Paul Sexton and Alice Cooper to speak to the students.

London

The radio speakers told them of several differences between British and American music charts, one of which is that singles are much more popular there than are albums.

Later in the week the students attended a performance by Tim Waits at the rock venue Hammersmith.

"Having the students actually hear a British performer in a well-known place allowed them to compare their music to the British version first hand," says Neiman.

Neiman says there is no way one can gain loan in an atmosphere such as London because not only are there classes, but a culture surrounding it that may be antisocial, an opera and a half.

Not only do you learn about a new culture, but you also learn about yourself, about being independent," adds Neiman.

Touring and learning, extended well beyond London as well. Windsor Castle, Cam bridge and Oxford universities brightened and tours of the city expanded students' experiences, as did Shakespearean and contemporary drama, art exhibits, an opera and a half.

Students arranged a British odyssey, arranged a British odyssey, arranged a British football game in Hyde Park between the Missouri group and the Illinois group. This game, as well as all-night dance party aboard a Thames riverboat, gave students a chance to mingle and have fun.

Other relaxation spots included nightclubs, where hip hop and break dancing is just becoming "hot."

Neiman was amazed to learn how many of our "old" trends are just becoming popular in London (i.e., denim wear and high-tops and vintage clothing).

Sipera will also be fitting through the school, a trip to Spacecamp. The trip includes a tour of the Kennedy Space Center in Florida and three days of simulated space training.

of the '80s.)

So Americans may not be as "backward" as we might sometimes think!

Did the stock market crash affect purchasing?

No, according to Neiman. At the time, the British pound was about 1.82 U.S. dollar, almost two to one. Neiman comments, "It wasn't that dramatic, especially since we could cash in on the British pound."

After the Fall semester finished, Neiman and the students felt sad at having to return so quickly to America. Some did not return, preferring instead to stay there and work.

It was a fantastic trip, with a thriving learning environment.

Will he be returning to London as a RA next semester? "Probably not," he replies. "I am a member of the ICS program here on campus and in the area, but I don't believe the administration will let me return so soon."

Welcome back to Harper, Michael Neiman!

Bush, Simon - Harper favorites

By Gloria Carr

The Political Science Club recently took a straw poll revealing Vice President George Bush and Senator Paul Simon the favorite candidates of Harper students.

"We pretty much gathered Simon and Bush were the same amount of democrats and republicans. We were expecting more republicans," said Matt Landen, of the Political Science Club.

On the Democratic ballot were candidates former Arizona Gov. Bruce Babbitt, Rep. Robert Byrd of Missouri, who received 6% Massachusetts Gov. Michael Dukakis, who received 3%, Sen. Gary Hart of Colorado, who received 3%, the Rev. Jesse Jackson, who received 7%, and Simon, who received 21%.

On the Republican ballot were former Delaware Gov. Wilmington Bush, with 10%, former Secretary of State Alexander Haig, with 10%, former TV evangelist Pat Robertson, with 7%, Rep. John Kemp of New York, with 8%, Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas with 11%, and Bush, with 21%.

"We took the straw poll to get an idea of what our voter registration people expect in group," said Jean Harrison, of the Kane County Government Center.

Voter registration is generally done on a local basis, it's done by communities, said a state voter volunteer at his Chicago headquarters.

"We are not requiring a voter registration drive," he said, "but through the Illinois primary," she said.

Although voter registration is down, student support is good, we're very active," Harrison said.

For Jackson and Simon, a campaign was formed to move Harper College voter registration was down from 1,576 people to 1,299 this year.

"Well, we are down from 1984, but we aren't finished registering people, we expect it to go up," said Jean Harrison, of the Kane County Government Center.

Tenure: Nice work if you can get it

I realize this may seem early in the semester to be talking about teacher evaluations, but they will be upon us before you know it. One thing you may not know however, is that in many cases, the student evaluations of teachers isn't worth the paper it's printed on.

For every full-time teacher you have, there's a 93% chance that he or she is tenured (only 13 out of the 191 full-time faculty at Harper is untenured at the present time). And if they are tenured, during a criminal or immoral act, they are here until they retire or move on, at their own discretion. Not bad, huh?

Now what would you like to have to work conscientiously for three years and bring "margin the grades" never had to worry about your job? regular or otherwise? To become a teacher. According to one very highly placed source at Harper, "even with cause it's next to impossible to fire a tenured faculty" and that's not even considered cause.

I can certainly understand why a teacher for one or even a handful of student complaints to have a teacher fired and a job position that hasn't even been considered cause.

And it's not only the students who suffer from this. The prospective teacher coming out of college grad school with the lofty goal of educating a new generation is in for a big letdown.

With new technology, information, and teaching methods, available every year, it seems a terrible waste to have a system designed to perpetuate the elitist clique that education (especially higher education) has become.

That is NOT the attitude of the experienced faculty here resting on their laurels. Quite the contrary, I've always maintained that the faculty here at Harper is for the most part, widely respected, both by the students and their peers in the field.

But why not make a twenty-year professor show the college that he or she is still capable and interested enough in their job to justify their salary, just like everybody else in the job market does?

Which brings us back to the teacher evaluation. The only portion of the evaluation that even goes to an authority higher than the department head is the last one: rating the competency of the teacher. An empty and hypocritical gesture at best. As far as tenure goes, if they are tenured, their job is safe, and if they are not, their job is based primarily on non-tenured openings the next year anyway.

So, this semester, when you're given those teacher evaluation forms, tick them into your notebook and use them as scratch paper on your next math quiz.

P.S. - We received three letters to the editor as well as several inquiries about Peter Sweeny's dubious "letter" by "Paul Wender" (Harbinger, Feb. 4). Unfortunately we received the letter well after our deadline for publication for this week, but they will be printed next week.

For the record: Sweeny's views are Sweeny's views, not those of the staff as a whole or any part of it. His letter from Mr. Wender is his own.

In retrospect (hindsight being 20/20) we would not have printed that portion of Sweeny's page. I said in my Jan 28 editorial that we apologize for our mistake. That's a bummer. I offer a blanket apology to all those who were offended.

BLOOD PRESSURE SCREENING DAY MONDAY, FEBRUARY 13

Do you have hypertension?

High blood pressure, also known as the "silent killer," is one of the few major diseases that doesn't let you know it's there.

It's important to have your blood pressure checked regularly even if it is usually normal.

Harper College Health Services is screening all blood pressure on Monday, February

13, 1988 between 11:00 a.m.

and 1:00 p.m., and between 4:00 p.m. and 6:00 p.m.

The screening includes a check-up by a medical professional.

After the screening, you would be referred to a doctor

if you may have hypertension.

Screening is free.

Pressure Station in your area on

Most STDs can be effectively treated if cured, and more importantly, they can infection is directly related to the number of different people with whom a person has sexual contact, the fewer the number of contacts, the lower the risk.

Eating Disorders --

The first step towards recovery is seeking help

Final article in a four-part series

Patricia A. Vassallo, M.D.
Cardinal Health Systems, Ltd.

There are many misconceptions which have plagued men and women from seeking treatment for an eating disorder.

The concern is that the focus on the lean form of a "slimy" adolescent girl makes one feel inferior and ashamed to either

ask for food or by asking for help.

It is this fear of being judged. This is a learned behavior and therefore can be unlearned and new and more useful alternatives can be developed.

The next step is to begin to seek the support of others with similar problems.

Most clinics and inpatient hospital programs use a multi-modality approach which includes: psychotherapy, psychiatry, nutrition, exercise, activity, and occupational therapies, and nursing staff to direct the patient into recovery.

The dietitian provides information on nutrition, helps patients identify binge foods, creates food monitoring sheets to track eating patterns, and teaches patients how to stop binging.

The dietitian can answer the patients' questions regarding calories, weight control, and control of emotional eating.

Eating disorders often involve anger which is usually unconscious. The person's behavior is usually a way of expressing the illness. Family therapy is an important tool which allows the family to learn about the disorder and the patient's behavior within the family structure.

The group therapy sessions are especially good in that they cut the stigma of being alone.

Those who are going through the same experience reinforce one another.

Eating disorder clinics offer workshops and special seminars pertaining to the illness. Topics include: body image,

self-esteem, bingeing, anger workshops, sensible eating, behavior modification, and nutritional information.

programs, and a multitude of other areas are dealt with.

The length of treatment in a hospital setting is usually six months, outpatient programs can last from two weeks to many months depending on the degree of complexity of the disorder and how advance d the illness is.

As with most illnesses, the earlier help is obtained, the earlier and quicker the treatment process can be. The patient needs to be educated about the illness.

HUMOR WRITING 101

By Peter Sweeny

"Everything human is pathetic. The secret source of humor itself is not joy, but sorrow. There is no humor in heaven." —Mark Twain

"The humorous story is told gravely; the teller does his best to conceal the fact that he even dimly suspects that there is anything funny about it." —Mark Twain

"He was born with the gift of laughter and a sense that the world was mad." —Rafael Sabatini, first line from Saratoga

"Anon, the moon hangs low, like a testicle in the sky." —Robin Williams

STICKY FINGERS

A Study in Human Writing

Bill, 49, stood on the railway platform and waited for the 7:23 to the city. As he glanced around, he was surprised to see Tom Sulsion, his old college roommates, ten feet away. It had been twenty-five years since they'd last seen Tom. He was about to yell to him when he saw something that gave him pause.

Tom had his briefcase in hand, so he removed his right glove with his teeth and, glove still dangling from his mouth, set his index finger to work exploring the gloomy recesses of his left nostril. Bill stopped in his approach and waited, not wishing to embarrass his old college friend.

"We have now created a plausible little scenario ripe with humorous possibilities. Two middle-aged, educated business types who share a past are kept from a reunion by the behavior of one and the tact of the other."

As Bill watched, he began to realize that his old pal was doing more than just cleaning his nose. He was, in fact, free-breathing. Glove still hanging from his mouth, Tom was not merely rearranging the contents of his nose, he was harvesting them! Try as he might, Bill was unable to look away. Tom's nose, he thought, was bulbous, but would have been less bulbous were it not for the fingers that he crammed so enthusiastically into it! No mere recreational dig, this seemed to be a higher purpose, a higher calling. He stopped and watched at the well-defined details of his nostrils with more than casual attention. He attacked the inside of his nose with the passionate intensity of a man in the throes of religious fervor—a man possessed!

(Now lets streeeech h'!

Bill dismissed the thought that Tom somehow knew that at any moment the train station would be overrun by finger-harvesting Nazis and that his efforts to conceal his fingers inside his head therefore made good sense. He wanted to believe what his own eyes told him. Bill even conjured up an explanation that depicted Tom as merely tucking errant sections of brain back into place.

Finally, Tom withdrew his gleaming digits from his ravaged nose holes and Bill was able to look away and take a breath. When he looked back, Tom was, if again, not breathing. He was, however, upright and plunging his finger deeper in a grotesque dance of proboscis intercourse. Bill watched in rapt fascination as Tom slipped a second finger into his bloated nostril... and then a third! Tom's voice bled and stretched obscenely with its full compliment of fleshy augers and caused Bill to imagine a hand grasping for a pea in a condom full of marble.

UPPER MANAGEMENT

By Naomi DePlume

"Hi everybody, I'm back! Who's been running the shop while I've been gone?"

"Hello, sir. Good to have you back. Clarence has been running the operation."

"Clarence? Glory to me, I thought we left Jesus in charge of things. What happened?"

"Uh... well sir, the uh... the Romans crucified him a few weeks after I left."

"Oh dear. Get me Clarence! Who's in charge down there now?"

"And don't tell me it's Nick!"

"Uh, no sir. It's a little fellow called the Pope. He watches things from the Vatican."

"Where's that?"

"Uh... Rome, actually."

"CLARENCE!!?"

"Oh God, you're back."

"Damn straight. Now what kind of mess have you gotten us into?"

"Where's Jesus?"

"I know, sir. I haven't seen him since that crucifixion business. He was really ticked off about that."

"Oh me, what a fix. What else has happened since I left?"

"You wanna hear the good news or the bad news first?"

"Bad. No wait... good. Give me the good news first. Hold it!"

"Wrong! No! Give me the bad news first. Yes, the bad news please."

"Alright... sixty-one hundred or so wars, four hum."

There exists in the realm of humor writing certain magic words that will triumph in any context. Condom is just such a word. As with any magic, however, its potency runs in direct inverse relation to its frequency of usage.)

Bull was so fascinated by the zeal with which Tom approached his work that it was several moments before he realized that Tom had ceased his business. Bull was now returning his gaze, a single finger lingering wistfully in his mouth.

(We have, you'll excuse me mind every nugget from the descriptive nose finger imagery. Time to move on.)

To Bill's horror, Tom immediately recognized him and was fast approaching. Gosh, thought Bill, he's trying to touch me with that hand? The hand he was just using to shovel his nose soil? With nowhere to run, Bill stayed to face the attack head on.

Bill Mornin, is that you? It's me, Tom Sulsion!"

Bill leaped surprise and gladness, but never took his eye off the hideous hand, the hand that now wanted to slice one of his eyes. Thinking quickly, Bill brought his briefcase between himself and Tom and slipped his own hand in his pocket. "Gosh Tom, how are you? Excuse me for shot, er, not shaking hands, racquetball injury you know."

Gee, Bill, you look great! How long has it been, twenty years?"

"More like twenty-five, I think," Bill mumbled, distracted by Tom's hand which was now threatening a healthy shoulder bruise. As the hand descended, Bill reached for his briefcase. "There's no way to go here. One is to drag it out, hitting every possible vein along the way..." Bill ducked and spun out of the path of the oncoming hand and its slime encrusted fingers. As Bill started to enjoy the prospect of a successful escape, he came hard against the back of a blue-haired old woman! The old woman was bent and frail and could be maneuvered in whatever direction Bill chose. He turned and found the consequences of randomly pushing those citizens could far outweigh those of being sliced on the shoulder by a hand gleam with nose cheese. Such was the dilemma Bill faced with only a millisecond for deliberation.

We must not be too hasty in judging Bill, he was, after all, a decision made under the threat of impending gangrene. He may be nothing of the greatest which is to say he is not necessarily imminent imminent. But he is the head flower of another man. Also, in Bill's flight from Tom's mucus-laden hand, it is at least possible that he was oblivious to the roar of the oncoming train. The old woman, for her part, was probably quite shocked to find herself suddenly following a trajectory that would put her rather feeble 100 pounds against 400,000 tons of firm and fast locomotive.

(In good humor writing, as in life, one should always end with a death.) —The End

So there you have the basic recipe for successful humor:

1. The Idea (As outlined in my first parenthetical aside)
2. The Filling (How many ways can you say so?)
3. The Imagery (Like a hand groping for a pea in a condom full of marbles.)
4. The Magic Words (To taste, anything taboo will do.)
5. The Death (Old people are inexpensive and eminently perishable but any likable, innocent person will do.)

What!!! Over six thousand wars? Holy cats, that's a lot of wars

Go on. Four hundred twenty catastrophic plagues. One hundred eighty of which were strategic, one hundred seventy natural and seventy whimsical.

And forty whimsical plagues? Have you been playing poker with Nick Clarence?

"Not in the last hundred years sir."

"What else is wrong?"

"Uh, they have enough nuclear weapons to shut off their sun."

"On great! Just wonderful! What, pray tell, is the good news?"

Well, we have a bestseller on the market.

Harper Hawks wrestling 1-1 in last two meets

By Marc Rader

The Harper wrestling team wrapped up dual competition at College of DuPage last Saturday. The Hawks lost to South Eastern Michigan. They came back and defeated Forest Park No. 1 and Meramak Min. In the final dual of the year the Hawks will travel to verses the host College of DuPage.

In the weeks prior to last they traveled to St. Louis where they walked into a buzz saw. The Hawks were beaten soundly by the third ranked team nationally, and then by 9th ranked Eastern Oklahoma.

Although suffering many setbacks the Hawks experienced a three match winning streak during the weekend of January 23. The Hawks were three and one after defeating Grand Rapids Community College, and long time rival Triton. The loss came to Lincoln College ranked 2nd in the nation.

A strong young team is 177 lbs. Mark Cecchi though Cecchi has only two losses in his last seven matches, one loss came on a pin by Pete Hefner. Cecchi and Hefner defeated 9-3 in a rematch.

Cecchi, along with heavyweight Rich Hermus are the biggest hope for the Hawks. (January 23-27 nationals at C.O.D.)

The region 11 title will be decided at Harper this Saturday. Wrestling starts at 9:00. Admission will be taken at the door.

Student Opinion: Do you think lights should be installed at Wrigley Field?

By Sandy Salvador
Staff Writer

Karen Hayraneck
Major: Accounting

Yes, I feel it will bring a lot more publicity to the teams, and it allows more people to see the games if they don't have time.

Scott Bordon
Major: Engineering

Yes, if the Tribune's threat to move the Cubs out of Wrigley Field is genuine lights should be installed. The ballpark is more important than day baseball.

Christine Habich
Major: Criminal Justice

Yes, if they install lights the fans will have an opportunity to see more games. This also gives people who are not able to see the game a chance to see them.

Michael Duder
Major: Engineering

Yes, if they have lights that means more games, and that will help businesses in the area.

Kevin Goldstein
Major: Political Science

No, because baseball was meant to played in natural sunlight and it would take away from the "old time" ballpark atmosphere of Wrigley Field. Plus Dawson plays better in the sunlight.

Mario Marotti
Major: Liberal Arts

Yes, it gives people who don't get a chance to see the games, the opportunity to see a game.

Budget committee selected: New Liberal Arts Senator elected

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Student Senate Tuesday selected three additional members to fill the six-member Budget Committee and elect a new Liberal Arts student senator to the vacant Senate seat.

The Liberal Arts representative position, which has been vacant for one month (from the beginning of the semester), was contested by four nominees: Laura Jacobson, General Education; Sean Brady, Political Science; Sean Barnes, unable to attend the meeting; and Christine Desmond, unable to attend meeting.

Christine Desmond, who is an Editor-in-Chief on her college's yearbook. She is hoping to specialize in Spanish when she transfers to a four-year college.

The Student Activities Budget Committee is established during the Spring semester of every year and submits a recommendation to the Senate.

After the senate approves the student activities budget, Vice President for Student Affairs, Dr. Bonnie Henry reviews it and submits it to the president and Board of Trustees.

Jeanne Pankau, Director of Student Activities, is the only faculty member on the committee.

The Linda Kripp, Student Senate Treasurer, will chair the budget committee and Bob Boss, Student Senate President will fill this position.

Sue Kopecky, Special Events chair for the Program Board, Elizabeth York, Student Senate Secretary, and Sean Brady will fill the remaining seats.

The Budget Committee for 1987-88 (based on estimated amount of funds from student activity fees for $7,881 budgeted $7,065.34).

$99 MILLION BUDGET SHORTAGE PELL GRANTS WILL SUFFER

(UPI) - The government is about $99 million short in its budget.

As a result, $3,000 low-income students will lose their Pell Grants while 1.2 million students could get smaller grants.

In a February 1 "Dear Colleague" letter in campuses, Education Department officials blamed Congress for the shortfall, saying it raised the maximum Pell Grant from $1,600 (from $2,100) for 1988 without appropriating enough money to compensate for the increase.

To solve the problem, the department says it will either shave $31 off every Pell Grant recipient's check next year, or cut $400 from the "least needy" students leaving a full 2,200 for those students classified "most needy."

The department gave Congress an ultimatum stating April 30 as a deadline to come up with more money, or it would start cutting "least needy" students off the Pell Grant rolls for next year.

They're telling that if we don't do something, they'll cut off the Pell Grants," complained Gray Garwood, chief aide of the House Postsecondary Education Subcommittee.

Garwood said Congress could meet the deadline, which the Education Department says is necessary because it must establish final Pell Grant payment schedules by April 30, and question the department's numbers.

Congress, depending on a Congressional Budget office (CBO) estimate, has $4.5 billion to give out in Pell Grants for the 1988-89 school year, Garwood said.

But the Education Department, using different estimates, thinks it will have to give out $4.5 billion in Pell Grants.

CBO estimates, said Charles Saunders of the American Council on Education, have proven more accurate in the past.

Sweeney, Part II -- The Readers Strike Back

Letters to and about controversial columnist Peder Sweeney

To Mr. Jonah Osman,
To what depths have we fallen that this is all we can expect from our newspaper. Do we intend an institution of "higher education" to be subjected to the most vulgar smut printed continually in the Harbinger? (Page 5 to be exact.)

Last year, this paper was bad enough, but this recent paper topped itself in lack of good taste. It's like cheap thrill seeking that are not on the top ten list. I am sick and it distresses me that I am sure many of my co-workers do. Is this type of reporting necessary and for the sake of the college community?

I appeal to the editor's sense of decency to stop further anti-gay material. Such creative inventiveness merely could be channeled into a more worthy offering from a college level intellect!

Outrageous Harper Employees

Jonah Osman, the Harbinger advisor, by job description, cannot and does not censor any copy content. - The Editor)

Mr. Larry Paulin,
I'm not one for letters, but when I read page 5 in the Feb. 4th Harbinger I had to sit down and write. A gentleman had written a rebuttal to Peder Sweeney's article, which expressed views toward homosexuality.

This man was gay, and asked if his name not be printed for fear of backlash stabbing toward the lesbian, gay, and bisexual community, and I am quite disappointed to find he was never given credit.

Peder Sweeney, on page five of February 4th's Harbinger, printed a year old letter from Mr. Paul Winder to the Harbinger staff about anti-gay material.

Though I question the existence of Paul Winder (as been kicked out--no ifs, ands, or buts. This is the reason why I am proud to be gay; it's not an easy life but that is life's lead-in.

I am proud to be gay; it's not an easy life but that is life's lead-in.

I am also aware that Mr. Sweeney's action is not the best. I am sure that the Harbinger would take a dim view of such irresponsible behavior on the part of its staff.

Sincerely,
Lisa Shoemaker

Mr. Paulin,
I am very grow weary of heterosocial journalism like stabbing toward the lesbian, gay, and bisexual community, and I am quite disappointed to find he was never given credit.

Peder Sweeney, on page five of February 4th's Harbinger, printed a year old letter from Mr. Paul Winder to the Harbinger staff about anti-gay material.

First, printing the name and address of a person who made it clear he wished to remain unpublished is a clear violation of the First Amendment. I am also aware that there exists many readers who attend Harper who are outraged by Sweeney's actions.

Keep the Divsies, an immature ploy and inappropriate for anyone in the media, whether it is the Harbinger or the Tribune.

In the future I would hope the Harbinger would take a dim view of such irresponsible behavior on the part of its staff.

Sincerely,
Lisa Shoemaker

OFF THE RECORD With Liz

When Carol Carkick was an older student, she did not mean to imply that she was fossil; rather, she was referring to her chronological age.

Which, by the way, I can only hope none of you knows my mother's (who happens to be the editor of the Arlington Heights edition of "Arlington in the Neighborhood Full of Quarters"). So much for excellent investigative journalism.

Getting back on track, when I say I am "older student," I mean I am an adolescent, verbal abuser that I received from girls who were perverted of their own free will and being threatened by my kashan.

Graduating also meant escaping physical abuse from both parents, who seem to be maniacs bent on torturing themselves on me, in order to change my ways. I'm really sick of this.

See, when I say I am "older student," I mean I am an adolescent, verbal abuser that I received from girls who were perverted of their own free will and being threatened by my kashan.

I suppose I shouldn't let that ruffle my feathers too much, because so far my only goal has been to decide with certainty what I want to do when I grow up.

During my first three semesters at Harper, I studied one Psychology course per semester, so I decided I wanted to change my major from Psych to Therapy to counseling.

However, after thinking a great deal of thought, I decided Psych was probably not for me.

After I am too accustomed to being told what to do, I always have trouble remembering what letter the word SYKOLOGY starts with.

I believe that comes under the learning theory set down by that great pop sociologist Billy Idol, who said, "Get it right the first time."

When I first began to study American Political Science, my husband was convinced I was going to run for Mayor, and admits, it took no time for him to realize that Poly Sci was not for me after I watched with horror as his family tried to construct his first cycling effort past the unwilling muscles in their thighs.

Fortunately, I was swamped with paperwork during dinner that night.

Besides that, after what happened to Gwinberg, the second semester, I determined to bite the dust in WI. I realized that once anyone got wind of the fact that I removed every label from my clothes, they would never buy from me again. I would surely crack from the pressure.

Now I am studying Greek Mythology. However, from what I have read so far, I have absolutely no intention of being taught to goddess status. Take a look at the back of my neck, nectar and ambrosia. I wouldn't know where to begin to look for the stuff.

Comedian Judy Tenuta will appear at Harper

"Judyism" Coming to Harper

The Harper College Program Board will present an evening of comedy by comedian Judy Tenuta on Friday, February 26, at 8 p.m. in the Auditorium.

Tenuta, who began performing 12 years ago in the blues clubs of Chicago, has surfaced as a favorite player in the new wave of unusual comedy. According to the Minneapolis Star, "Tenuta is an original. If your laughs come to the surface, she changes them." The comedies of Pee-wee Herman or Emo Philips, she is not to be missed.

A self-appointed live goddess, Tenuta arrives on stage wearing an accoutrements and a tiny Grecian-style gown. A farce-prime princess dressed by her own hands. Her commanding alternates between airy twerking like refers to her fans as stud puppets, and herself as a "petite pony" and rock star siren. To the guy who comes on to her in a punk rock bar, she growls, "I was looking for someone like a boxer to teach me how to eat the food choices." She has given her fans a religion—Judyism—and more than a dozen devotees across the country. People can't stop making up new ones.

In addition to appearances on Johnny Carson and David Letterman, Tenuta has met the original. If your laughs come to the surface, she changes them. The comedies of Pee-wee Herman or Emo Philips, she is not to be missed.

Appearing with Tenuta is Kevin Kline, star of Manhattan, WFLP AM 1000, afternoon disc jockey and stand-up comedian. Admission for Harper students is $12, $15 for adults, $10 for seniors, $8 for children under 12. Tickets are on sale now at the box office. For more information, call 997-5000, ext. 3242.

With the windfall of money from below zero, a night in Chicago's combined with the Midwest's Box Theatre's bistro surroundings made an ideal night for SLEEPWALK.

A 1986 independent film release by new comer Sara Driver (producer of Jim Jarmusch's Strasberg) is

THE PARADISE is an intriguing surreal and often tumultuous treatment of a young woman's struggle in lower Manhattan.

Actress Suzanne Fletcher is plagued by a ancient Chinese curse, her French roommates' loss of hair, and the addition of her son.

After receiving a translating assignment from a local man so described an ancient Chinese curse, her French roommates' loss of hair, and the addition of her son.

Returning home one night

she finds her roommates standing in their bare bodies, screaming.

Concerned, Fletcher observes:

You know some people pay a lot of money to have their hair done, right?

It's like that, she says, adding that the best thing to do is to let her hair grow out

SHADES OF GRAY

By Stephen Sorrenson

Dr. Thomas Olsen reclined on the rich dark leather couch in his study, one hand slowly massaging his temple, the other holding the transcriptions from his phone call with the dead Paul Ataman. He had just finished reading the transcript for the hundredth time, desperately seeking to discern the lines in to nothing, he didn't know what—some minute detail that he had missed before. Some tiny piece that would allow him to finally pin the events of November 18th into perspective.

He knew it was a simple truth he was searching for the truth, but at his heart Dr. Olsen knew that it was a secret truth that he was looking for. Paul Ataman had given him more truth in one evening than most people could dream or imagine. Dr. Olsen wanted his comfortable illusions of morality restored to him. He wanted to return to a world where life was sacred and death was evil.

Black and white. No exceptions. No shades of gray.

TRANSCRIPT OF CONVERSATION BETWEEN PAUL ATAMAN, DEFENDANT, AND THOMAS J. OLSEN, M.D., DEFENDANT, CASE NUMBER 1234567890 APR. RECORDING TIME: 8:15 TO 8:30 PM 11-18-1987.

Dr. Olsen: Hello?

Ataman: Is this Dr. Thomas Olsen?

Dr. Olsen: Yes, who is this?

Ataman: My name is Paul Ataman

Dr. Olsen: Your name sounds familiar to me. Do we know each other?

Ataman: No, sir, my name has been in the news recently regarding the murder of my wife, Martha.

Dr. Olsen: Oh yes, they just arrested the most suspected of that crime. This story, young man, is a reminder from the news that the circumstances were particularly tragic.

Ataman: Doctor, I am one of the men who killed my wife with my right hand. I killed the other about three days ago.

Dr. Olsen: What? What did you say? I don't know what kind of joke this is. Mr.

Ataman, or whoever you are, but...

Ataman: I am a man who was released on bail at 4:30 yesterday. I followed them and as they came out of a bar I shot one in the back of the head and abducted the other. He with me right now.

Dr. Olsen: Oh my God... Is this true? Have you killed a man?

Ataman: That's just the beginning, doctor. Please listen closely. If you'll give me this line, or if you'll signal anyone or in any way say no! I kill this man immediately. If I even suspect that you are trying to prevent me from what I am doing, this man will die.

Dr. Olsen: L... I don't understand any of this. Why are you calling me? What are you going to do?

Ataman: Do you understand what I said? If I even suspect that you are trying to stop me or trick me I'll kill this man.

Dr. Olsen: Yes, I understand.

Ataman: Listen to me, doctor. Listen to my voice. You believe that I'll kill the man down the street in a few minutes.

Dr. Olsen: (pauses) Yes... yes...

Ataman: This man's life is in your hands, doctor. I don't care what happens to me or another.

Dr. Olsen: Good God, man! Think about what you're doing! Don't you care about justice?

Ataman: Save the clichés, doctor. I'm a very tired man. I'm starting in the emergency treatment room of your private clinic (right now). I look in all directions and see no one but you. In the room number 883721. The man who killed my wife & son strapped a gun to my temple. He looks very frightened, but then he slumped because he knows what's about to happen to him.

Dr. Olsen: How do you get my alarm code? I'm calling the police.

Ataman: Do you wish, doctor, you knew the consequences?

Dr. Olsen: I'm sorry, I'm sorry from me to Ataman! What are you doing?

Ataman: I apologize for the pain you're in. I'm going to try to make you understand why you're in a medical procedure as I perform it. I am going to paralyze this man from the neck down irreversibly. You will talk me through the procedure, as I do this surgery. You're going to tell me, "Kill the man!" and he'll die or be paralyzed. I don't much care which it is. And I know he'll die. You know what you must do. You must do everything in your power to help this man live. I swear to you that the only way in which he'll have a chance is to cooperate with me.

Dr. Olsen: God Almighty! Mr. Ataman, please listen to me. I understand what you must be going through. You and your wife were newlyweds, remember? You must be in a great deal of pain, please listen to me. This is not the attorney I remember. It's the real person of you and your wife in the paper. I remember thinking what an attractive couple you were. I remember thinking how innocent, how sensible, how faithful he was. The whole community felt your anguish. Mr. Ataman, your wife does not justify what you're doing. Please stop it here. Just put down the phone and go to the police and you've had time to get far away. Please do as I say. Mr. Ataman. Go to the police and you've had time to get far away.

Ataman: No senseless tragedy before my eyes. Doctor, I sometimes pleased my home and killed Martha. Worse, this left me alone. Now I intend to displease my home and help my pain and I do so. Martha was good but I don't know if she could help me.

Dr. Olsen: Doctor, you can't have a life. Turn yourself over this man and with a good lawyer and a sympathetic judge, you'll be fine. You'll be all right. Then you could start again. You could build yourself a new life, a new family, a new life.

Ataman: It's impossible now, when the pain of your loss is still so fresh, but please move me, doctor. You could serve and the prospect of putting the pain back together wouldn't be another option.

Ataman: I appreciate what you're trying to do, doctor. I believe you are a sincere, caring person who's trying earnestly to be helpful. I'm afraid though that you can't quite appreciate my point of view. I'll try to explain it to you. Martha with time you'll come to understand the type of person I am, maybe not. I feel that to, what I am going to ask you to do this evening. I owe you at least a small

I'm a very straightforward person. I don't believe in God or try to trick myself into faith to amuse me. While I never really knew what condemned my life, nor did I see any reason not to. Martha became my reason. She completed me. She made me complete and I fused into a single entity greater than our sum. I love a stupid word, maybe it's whole. But I'm a really bankrupt poet and songwriters have reduced it to a backseat open-seated car I drive with tamales and chocolates and flowers. I loved her with my entire essence. She was my jerkily little Valentine, she was my redenção, my blessed salvador.

(long pause)

My law practice suffered because I couldn't focus on it. It just meant time away from Martha, time being unamused instead of happy and whole. I quit my practice so we could be together. I've always had a feel for the market, so money wasn't a problem. That's where my life was when, one night, a couple of leeches broke into my home and destroyed Martha.

Dr. Olsen: (long pause) The grief must be unbearable.

Ataman: There is no great, doctor. Martha is no longer alive, which isn't any more terrible than anything else, very soon I'll probably no longer be alive also. By destroying my Martha, those men gave me what I had never had before, a reason not to go on.

Dr. Olsen: Death possibly be as cold and rational as you sound. Only a man or an animal may could mean what you're saying.

Ataman: It's possible, doctor, that I'm not rational. I don't care if I am so let's not pursue it. I haven't meant to anger your sympathy by explaining all this to you. I simply realize that my world view is rare and I thought you deserved some insight into the matter at which you'll play so large a role.

Dr. Olsen: Doctor, I want to tell you I won't do it. I won't take part in this madness. I won't help you butcher a human being, nor condemn him.

Ataman: I understand, doctor. On the count of ten I will accept that as your answer and hang up the phone. One, two, three, four, five, six, seven, eight, nine, ten.

Dr. Olsen: Stop! Dear God Mr. Ataman, I beg you not make this. Eat our legal system deal with this man. I understand that justice may be slow in coming but that's the way America works and we have to trust it. You must, as a lawyer, understand that a man cannot make this kind of decision, the punishment you propose to inflict is not within your power.

Letters to the Editor - Sweeney

anonymity is a shocking breach of journalistic ethics. It is also a form of harassment.

Perhaps Mr. Sweeney does not realize that the gay man took a tremendous risk by writing to express his views. Asking to remain anonymous was not a whim on his part.

Gays and Lesbians, Illinois (and 47 of the remaining 49) have no protection from prejudices. We can lose our jobs or be thrown out of our apartments simply because of our sexual orientation. Basic civil rights prohibiting such discrimination DOES NOT prohibit discrimination against gays and lesbians.

Second, while "Keep the Disney's" is, at times, very clever, most of the time it is simply rehashing the vicious, overused stereotypes.

Mr. Sweeney could have written a very funny piece without resorting to shock-value puns, "dwarves" and "giant," sophomore snuggery about battery-operated latex devices and trashy porn flicks (which certainly are no more prevalent than in the community that they are in "straight" society).

It is a shame he seems incapable of doing so. His insistence upon reducing a gay relationship to something more than sex is extremely offensive, ignorant, and preped.

Finally, I would like to ask Mr. Sweeney, what is wrong with being a gay person?

Gays, lesbians, and bisexuals continually face being thrown out solely in terms of sex, instead of focusing on relationships. "He sleeps with another man," not "He's in a committed relationship with him."

It is simple a matter of who I am.

Thus, I am, however, I am a lesbian. I worry about my security. I "straighten up" my apartment before my landlord comes in to repair the leaky faucet.

Sometimes I heartbreak I grieve that my parents are ecstatic about my sister's wedding plans, but refuse to acknowledge me and allow me to be anonymous directly above his smarmy, smirking "Aren't you sick?" article is an obvious attempt to attack an Harper's gay and lesbian students (and there are more of us here than her might think).

He should not be allowed to continue writing for Harper's until he cleans up his act and learns that there is no place for his form of journalistic abuse at Harper's College.

Sincerely,

Shona Dudley

Of course, I should be the one to talk about anxiety. I have been known to become so frazzled behind taking a test, that Freud should come back from the grave to analyze my dreams.

Although anxiety that competes with nothing else could certainly be experienced by taking a Speech course, I highly recommend it for any students who need a little practice in writing, reading, etc., although I believe that one should exercise extreme caution if you are prone to nervous stomach.

I wonder if Harper's Liberal Art department offers compensation for the cost of Maoist $10 for Tales From the Dark Side?

Region IV Championship
Starts Friday

By Tony Norkus

Hawker's men and women swim teams will compete in the Region IV Championships at College of DuPage Friday and Saturday, Feb. 10, 11.

"I think in a championship meet it's quality than numbers. Coach [John] McVicker said we have a few swimmers who have developed that quality."

The women's team this year is led by coach Mina Zielonka. Zielonka has already qualified in the 1650 free, but hopes to qualify for nationals in the 500 free this weekend.

Julie Nericz (100 back, 200 fly) and Kim Jurek (50 and 100 free) are also leading contributors to the women's team. "Even though we lack depth, I feel we will do well as individuals,"

Freshman Kenny Mogge, captain of the Men's team, hopes to qualify in both the 500 and 1650 free.

"The last meet of the year should be our best because we have worked long and hard all season," said McVicker.

Although the swim team has low numbers they hope to walk away with several events. "We hope to place well in the 1650 free, 500 free, 100 back, 100 butterfly, 200 butterfly, 200 medley relay, 400 medley relay and 400 free relay," said long time swimmer on Hawker's team. Jim Nitch was last year's coach who won NJCAA Coach of the Year.

Basketball: Lady Hawks Top DuPage 53-52

By Scott Bordon

The combination of teamwork and Julie Rowe's clutch free throw shooting enabled the Lady Hawks to pull off an exciting victory last Tuesday over DuPage.

The Hawks played extremely tough man defense. Late in the first half the Hawks held DuPage's leading scorer, Diane Crosby, on two consecutive DuPage possessions. Harper's Kim Frye (5 points) and Kristy O'Donnoughue and Frye (8 points) each grabbed 15 and 17 rebounds respectively. O'Donnoughue had Harper win 20 points to 17.

Not only did the Hawk frontcourt play well but so did the backcourt. Rowe (11 points), Sami Blair (5 points) and Jennifer Blayck (4 assists) worked the ball and the 30-second clock to perfection. Several times check ran under 5 seconds and the clock hit key baskets.

Harper took the lead with 11-10 remaining in the first half. DuPage never really got close until the final free throw.

Diane Crosby of DuPage hit a long jump shot to close Harper's lead to 14-14.

Harper failed to inbound the ball, which resulted in a five-second violation. DuPage scored another basket to cut the Hawk lead to one.

Rowe was fouled but missed from end of a one-and-one. Kim Blair of DuPage went to line and made her free throw to tie the score at 21.

With 20 seconds left Blair stole the ball and broke to the basket. Somehow she could not get past the basket and the ball rebounded respectively.

The Hawks had a 16-15 lead.

Sam Blayck with a game-saving foul prevented Blair from scoring.

Frye fouled on the play. Blair made one free throw to give DuPage a 52-51 lead.

Men's Basketball

The Hawks came back from a 45-30 halftime deficit to beat Rock Valley 84-80, on Tuesday, Feb. 8.

Kevyn Perry was Harper's leading scorer with 21 points. Other Hawk scorers were Travis Perry (24), Joe Leonardo (16) and Bill Kelly (10).

The Hawks lost 71-57 at College of DuPage last Tuesday night. Harper was unable to generate any offense.

DuPage's aggressive zone defense caused a bigger and quicker lineup preventing all Hawks from scoring double figures.

Harper has a makeup game at Triton at 1:00 p.m. Sunday.

RUBBER CHECKS

By Pearl Henderson
Managing Editor

By accepting major credit cards for tuition and bookstore purchases, Harper College reduced the number of bad checks 31 percent for the Spring '88 semester.

In the Fall of '86, Harper implemented a new payment system allowing students to pay for tuition and bookstore purchases with major credit cards. In January, '87 Harper had 69,320 bad checks from tuition and the bookstore amounting to $6,733 between tuition and bookstore purchases, which is a definite difference.

Steve Dudek, accounting manager for Harper said that accepting credit cards reduces the amounts of bad checks.

"The reason that credit cards have to be called in for verification."

Since bad checks were, and are a recurring problem Harper tried to find ways to help the student. The use of major credit cards was one of those ways.

Dudek said, "Credit cards make it more convenient for students by spending the amount out over an extended period of time."

The affects of writing bad checks not only effects the school, but it effects the student.

According to Dudek, the second time a check bounces, a notice is sent to the student advising them of the situation and asking for payment plus a $10 service charge which the bank assesses to the student.

This costs the student additional money in regards to service fees," Dudek said. Some students write a check for a $2 transcript and it costs them $10 for the service fee.

Through the registration office side. We can put a hold on the student's account until tuition is paid," he said.

Dudek said that if checks are written in the bookstore for merchandise funds for a product that the school has to pay for, the school is now out of that product, and money.

He said, "The college has to process the checks faculty and staff based on tuition fees."

And services have been given to the students. The cashiers office holds the checks and send the checks back to the bank, or to a collection agency.

The final result of collecting on bad checks is for the school to hire collection agencies.

And according to Charlene Christin, bursar for Harper, the school has to pick up the charges of the agency.

The amount of the check has to be at least $25, before it is continued on page 2

16 Computers added for new art course

Computer Graphics Studio: ART 240

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

Starting next fall we will be offering a new course: Computer Graphics. ART 240. Ken Dahlberg, Art associate professor. The course is complimented by a new lab, in C207, sporting 16 Apple II computers and various software programs.

We had a lot of interest and a lot of inquiries about the computer graphics course," said Dahlberg.

The Computer Graphics Studio was designed to accommodate students wanting to learn the computer graphics course with Mike Brown or Ken Dahlberg, associate professors of art.

The course prepares art students for jobs in graphic design, fashion design, interior design, publishing, photography, and television.

The course is described as "a computer software based approach to visual image manipulation and generation."

Four software programs will be used for the course: Deltus Paint II, Digi-Paint, Digi-View, and an image processing program.

The two paint programs are used for image generation and manipulation. They allow one to draw, paint, enlarge, reduce, Paint allows 32 colors to be displayed simultaneously while Digi-Paint allows 4,096 colors.

Digi-View can also be used to generate images from a live video camera. This picture can then be edited using one of the paint programs.

For an image processing program deals with three dimensional drawing and animation.

Each element can be moved independently or any combination simultaneously; the image may be rotated, showing other sides; the light source can be moved showing changes in shadow (a sunset over a landscape), and the viewer may move around the image.

Computer Graphics Studio, which will be taught by Ken Dahlberg and Mike Brown, is a three credit hour advanced art course with prerequisites Drawing II (ART 111) and Design I (ART 121).

Ambassador program off to a flying start

Students recruited to help students

By Kim Ostrowski

Picture the following scenario:

Freshman The last class you attended was over ten years ago, some of the many years since you have been home. You can't even remember when you left school; you thought, for good, Shakespeare was an important literary figure, but can't say why it left and didn't hang by its roots.

Second Two prospective students, before graduation ceremony, at the end of long high school career, many summers will be looking for colleges. Where will they go? What will they do? What are possible careers? What is a major?

Both prospective students and returning students and some new students, planning to attend Harper face many complex problems, but do not have to face them alone. A pilot program in Harper's Ambassador Program helps new students become accustomed to Harper life.

From personal experience, even the most experienced high school guidance did not know about many of the opportunities and programs at the college until discovered them on my own, quite a bit later. Having someone to help show new students the nuances of the campus can be a real help.

The Ambassador Program, developed by a three-year effort by the Student Outreach Office, the New Students Center and the Admissions Office, will serve as that much-needed liaison between new students and the campus.

Instrumental in the Ambassador Program is Bruce Bohrer, Director of Admissions. Bohrer says the cooperative efforts of the three departments as a relatively new venture, one he believes will lead to further such endeavors and greater efficiency within the campus programs.

Other faculty members that are instrumental to the Ambassador Program's success include Beverly Hoffman,

Student Outreach Associate; J.

Morgan Burdette, Student

Outreach Associate Professor;

Phil Troyer, Student

Development; Mary Beth

Bussey, Student Development and Associate Professor Diane

Perkins-Trickey, also of Student Development.

The ultimate goals of the Ambassador Program are to fold. The first goal is to help increase recruitment and to help the new students feel comfortable and positive about Harper.

Harper's process, called "retention" by directing the students to the various programs and services here on campus.

The second goal is to offer experience to the ambassadors in communications and organization.

Ambassadors are students from Harper who have maintained a 3.0 GPA or higher for 20 and who do not receive scholarships.

The program's coordinators send out a call for student recommendations from the faculty.

We were very pleased with the faculty's response," says

Bohrer. As it turned out, forty students' names were on the information meeting earlier this semester and only five decided the program was not what they had expected.

The next time ambassadors are recruited the coordinators will request that the recruiters come during the following semester so as to assure continuity and to promote ambassadorship.

All of the ambassadors are either freshmen or sophomores and range in ages that is comparable to our student age composition here at Harper.

We like to have a group of people who can relate well to their respective peer groups.

Students acting as ambassadors seem to have favorable responses about the program," says Bohrer. "The ambassadors are truly dedicated."

What exactly is it that the ambassadors do?

Basically, they do everything from greeting prospective students after they have received campus informational material to make sure the students have no problems or questions, or, if they do, to check them up on freshman or first semester students three to four weeks after the semester begins to make sure the students are aware of campus programs.

Ambassadors also attend

special events, such as the District

217 campus night, or other various orientation aids in the summer orientation programs.

Ambassadors work

throughout the semester, at least one hour a week.

The Ambassador Program will undergo full evaluation by the coordinators in May. Bohrer is confident the program will continue with great success.

Bohrer encourages students that are interested in working for the program to contact him, at ext. 2206 or Mrs. Perkins-

Trickey, at ext. 2208.

Attitudes / environment

By Kim Ostrowski
Features Editor

Have you ever wondered why someone has a particular statement, or has a certain view on a topic that you could really not understand why there is that certain perception?

Attitudes play more roles in our lives than we sometimes care to think. Attitudes shape life. From everyday situations to family, friends, wants and needs, attitudes play a major role in our daily blue "background".

Last Tuesday, psychology professor, Dr. Cohen initiated a mini-research project to find out what attitudes people have towards checks.

Turned over to a collection agency, the agency has a letter written to the person who signed the check, and then if nothing is done, they turn it over to their own agency to collect.

Chris said, "We determine if the check is large enough. The amount for litigation proceedings is recorded, and then the Bursar has the final say."

Other than trying to recoup some of the schools losses, Chris said that litigation is done. Because writing a bad check is illegal.

determine the validity of a hypothesis one's perception of reality creates the attitude.

Bohrer has conducted a survey of ten questions, based on the responses to questions about political leaders Ronald Reagan, George Bush, Kian

Dixon.

The target questions were number four, parts a and b, and concerned the heights of the leaders.

Several houses, from 55 to 57, in all, participated in the survey, averaging the heights to estimate the leaders heights. The target questions were not really designed to out if people actually knew their heights, but to find out what people believed their heights to be, based on pressures and attitudes.

Based on a CBA square dimension, specifically by chance alone, the odds would be 10,000:1 that the responses would turn out to support the hypothesis being tested!

After tabulation of the survey results, the hypothesis was overwhelmingly supported.

For instance, on the question "How tall is the Pres."

V. Pres. and Schrade, students overwhelmingly chose their respective heights according to how high the status they perceived the leaders to have.

Thus, as only a limited sample, and about people influence their very perceptions!

Indeed, the answers to the survey's last question, "If the election were held tomorrow, who would you like to see as president?" were responses to question 21 as predicted. Paul, Fiske and Simon as their second and third choice, respectively.

"Other candidates, of course, got few percentiles of votes," says Dr. Cohen.

Chris said, "We were surprised at how well the students did on the survey."

Protect Your Eyesight!

Your eyesight is a precious possession and deserves protection. More than 1,000 eye accidents occur every day and annually, approximately 100,000 Americans lose the sight of one or both eyes forever.

Common sense and observation can be the key to prevention of eye injuries in the workshop, wear protective devices and follow safety precautions. Be sure to have adequate illumination, eliminate hazards and take a break if you work area heat and cold.

Wear proper eye-protective equipment when playing a sport, especially racquetball and squash and never aim a ball at your opponent whatever the justification.

Your car batter, especially on older cars, can be dangerous. The hazard the battery causes ranges from corrosion to the sudden spray of corrosive batteries and. Never smoke, light a match or cigarette lighter near the battery. Always refer to the owner's manual for specific procedure for connecting battery charger and jumper cables.

When a woman applies cosmetics around her eyes she needs to be extra careful with brushes and applicators. Avoid eye cosmetics and infection by purchased only from a producer and keeping them sterile and clean to prevent the growth of bacteria. Never use old cosmetics or share them with a friend. Use only warm water, thin eye cosmetics and always apply with clean hands. Be sure your eyes are protected before using any makeup.

In the yard, protect eyes using power mowers on debris, fallen leaves and white pruning shears.

It is estimated 17% of all eye injuries in children are caused by muzzle-type toys, fireworks or toys with detachable parts or hard edges that can be picked up from the floor. Give children only those toys appropriate to their age, inspect toys for sharpness and safety, use according to manufacturer's directions, observe children while they play in toys properly.

The maximum benefit from contact lenses and for health of the eyes, use proper techniques for insertion, cleanse and rinse only in recommended solutions that do not damage lens and remove them when experiencing eye discomfort.

If a foreign body lodges in your eye, do not rub your eye. Seek medical help right away. Immediately flush chemicals accidentally sprayed into eyes with lots of water at least 15 minutes. If you are wearing contacts first and send someone to help you. Do not touch the fluid in your eyes if you have a cut on the eye. Call a doctor or a doctor's office immediately. Everyone who has had eye surgery will have a complete professional eye examination right away. You may wonder why you may be unaware that a problem exists because vision may become poor so slowly that the loss of good sight is hardly noticeable.

Off the Record With Liz

It was basically a normal Monday beginning with a ten-minute drive to Harper followed by the usual twenty minutes of getting ready for class and concluding with the two-hundred-meter sprint to "I building that is always crowded with the nervous hikers up Mount Thundar."

Kind of like the Harper College atmosphere for almost students, but not quite in shape. Students were still recovering from the annual winter vacation meeting ready to begin our last day of classes.

Amazingly after giving myself only one hour to go that was six miles in order to make it to school on time, I found myself in the hallway of "I" building before class was scheduled to start. So, extragiant as I sometimes am, I decided to walk to the bus stop to access the ladies' bathroom.

What ensued next involved behaviors which I would normally consider so mundane they have become cliché. After approaching the door, I noticed that a curious looking headed man, pushing a cart, was standing in about less than the ladies' room.

It is nothing too astonishing, I told myself, just the usual school atmosphere. I began to think on the factors. I thought that since it was past-time for many students, and class would start soon, he would be permitted to enter before me and I would gladly make haste.

However, as I made my way in the door, I realized that he had entered without announcing his presence, and I. That the bathroom was already occupied.

Feeling unfamiliar with unusual chapter, I couldn't be certain as to whether or not he had breached basic socially accepted behavior, but I suspected so.

As I moved to speak I realized that the unspecting young lady who was placed against the wall, was also walls, informing the man that the room was indeed occupied, was requesting a roll of paper towels to be the magical words necessary, because at that moment, the man leapt back through the doorway with his cart in order to reach the aisle where the tissues were being followed closely behind my long awaited entrance, he was back in the ladies room, tissue in hand.

Before actually relinquishing the previous tissue to the girl who had now assumed the role of "the girl in the corner," the timorous attendant, the man was moved to express his incredible disbelief.

He then said, "THAT'S IT! You are all out of tissue! I have to hear people use the word 'they.' It always makes me wonder, who is 'they' and how large is this place?" "They" was soon to be invading the ladies' room's sense of reality.

THEY are really ALL, but I was rather interested thing about this word. THEY as used in the context in which this man was using it, if he had meant them to be whomever had been using the tissue all along since the last time it was replaced, then why was he upset?

But, what if he meant personalism to the actual stalls themselves. Now I am quite curious as to whether he is angry with the bathroom stall or his own self esteem? If so, how does he get revenge? If so, how does he know?

As I moved to speak I realized that the unspecting young lady who was placed against the wall, was also walls, informing the man that the room was indeed occupied, was requesting a roll of paper towels to be the magical words necessary, because at that moment, the man leapt back through the doorway with his cart in order to reach the aisle where the tissues were being followed closely behind my long awaited entrance, he was back in the ladies room, tissue in hand.

I believe the last words I uttered before my organ transplant were, "I'll try again after class."

On the subject of how you are all grown up from last week's column, I received this response:

"If you would like a short piece today in your column, when you are dead. Hope you don't grow up soon."

Truly,

They thank you for reading and responding to my article. I believe your advise is very well founded. One is doing very well if one continues to grow throughout one's life. I also hope the same for you.

A LIVING SAINT AT HARPER?

goddess of comedy, Judy Tenuta, coming to entertain

By Larry Paulin
Editor-in-Chief

All of my trials and tribulations connected with my job have just been made worthwhile. I have just interviewed our only living saint.
I know this because she told me so. She also refers to herself as a goddess and I'm not exactly sure about the hierarchical workings of "Judy-um," but who am I to question perfection?

Don't worry, I have been able to catch up with Judy (note the capital J) by phone in Washington, D.C., where she's at a crossroads. When asked why she was in Washington, Judy replied that she was "helping Bush find his new office." She was just promoted to Page, you know. We needed to get her a tux.

When I asked her what Judy Tenuta does these days, she replied, "Oh, being a living saint, working miracles, verbally abusing college students, the usual stuff."

Just a few words on what makes Judy Tenuta laugh. "Seeing enemies fall. Pigs getting their proper demise. Like I used to have to stay in contact with pig contacts that had one phone number, talking and seeing them answer the phone in the morning. Their normally perfect hair looking like

Bam-Bam. That makes me laugh."

Anything else make you laugh?" Octogenarians crossing
Sheridan Road makes me laugh.

They're almost perpendicular.

And did you ever listen to them?
"Get off my street" they yell,
"I'm on the other side of the street!"

Judy Tenuta has been on the road as a comic for 11 1/2 years, spending as much as half the year travelling to such ... exotic locations as Nantucket, to visit Dolly Parton, Breast Month.

Did you know everything in that town is shaped like a huge breast?

And what does the future hold in store for "the goddess"?
"I think I'd like to be modelling retirement diapers -- like June Allyson."

As for her immediate future,
Judy Tenuta will be appearing at Harper tomorrow night for one show only, as 8 P.M. for special guests. Call 397-3000 or 397-3001 (Kew-head?) Mathews. Tickets are available at the box office
($7.00 for Harper students, and $9.00 for non-students) in Big J.
For more ticket information, call 397-3000, ext. 2547.

Judy asked about Harper College students. "I hope we're a community college," she says.
Very excited. "Oh, I love places like that. A lot of worshipping fans." (Pause - Then a worried look.) "Better than DeVry Tech, right?"

WANT VIDEOS?
GO TO HOLLYWOOD!

By Gloria Carr

As movie ticket prices continue to rise, video stores are enjoying a resurgence. Sure, they're becoming as common place as supermarkets. With all the competition, stores are trying new techniques to lure more customers.

"Here's Hollywood," located in Huntington Plaza in Huntington Beach, has a new chapter of stores opening up around the country. The feeling of being in a movie theater.

"We tried to mimic the idea of being in a movie theater. Our basic idea was to bring Hollywood to the home," said John Weller, general manager.

"We felt with all the video stores we had to do something a little more appealing ...," said Weller.

Some of the tactics used by "Here's Hollywood" include autographs from stars such as Julia Roberts, Robin Wright, Jimmy Stewart, Ward Allen, Clint Eastwood and many others.

"Here's Hollywood" also has a concession stand selling popcorn, pop and candy. A video screen in the wall comes complete with director's chair for relaxing and a stereo system which sounds similar to watching a movie in the theater.

The lighting in the store is set up like a movie theater, a bright stage and includes a "Here's Hollywood" sign.

"Here's Hollywood" carries over 8,000 videos ranging from how-to videos to videos such as
"Made in Heaven" and "The First Aid Video Book" to concert videos from the Beatles to Billie Joe's classic romance
"Crying." It also carries classic westerns like "The Man Who Shot Liberty Valance."

Also in stock are "The Freddy Krueger Collection" and religious videos such as "The Bible" and "King David." Kid's sections include old favorites such as "Bugs Bunny" to new favorites like "Barbie and the College newspaper under control?

(CPS) — The recent U.S. Supreme Court decision allowing high school principals more control over student paper has emboldened at least one college administrator to threaten to try to put a college newspaper under his control.

Edward A. Wagner, chairman of the Board of Governors of Pima Community College, Tucson, Arizona, called for Pima administrators to put the college's newspaper "back on the right track."

In view of the recent Supreme Court decision, we as the board have the right to edit or not edit," Wagner asserted.

The concern, however, specifically excluded college papers from its January ruling which said school officials could "regulate the content of high school newspapers as far as required courses just as they can regulate the content of other classes offered in the schools."

The decision already has led officials at high schools in Iowa City, IA, and Cupertino, Calif., to try to censor stories out of their student papers. At Pima, officials are reportedly斟ing the decision to his campus almost as soon as it was proposed.

"What am I saying?" he continued. "I'm about to get into the consensus business."

At least one other board member agreed. Wagner said Marlin Webb, in trying to accommodate the paper, "The Ariz. Press should be published without interference of any kind."

Wagner said the Ariz. Press, Pima's student newspaper, needs greater guidance from school officials because of "shoddy reporting." He proposed that the paper publish a help column students by giving advice on writing positive stories.

"I don't want to hold it over them but I think there is no way implying we should censor. I'm saying that loud and clear. We should look at the program," Wagner said.

"Non-college youth"

(CPS) — The 20 million young people who left college earlier than post-college grads because of fundamental changes in the economy, a commission of education and business leaders reported last week.

In the first comprehensive study of non-college youth who left school before age 18, the group funded by the William T. Grant commission found there are fewer good jobs around that don't require a college degree.

People without degrees, the commission added, will have to scratch for unskilled part-time low-paying jobs."

The commission said about 1.7 million manufacturing jobs, which tend to pay twice as much as the retail and service positions, have disappeared since the massive shift of the U.S. economy, disappeared between 1979 and 1985.

Getting back into the fold of the forgotten half, never easy, has become alarming. This nation may face a future divided not along the lines of race or geography, but rather on class status, the commission reports.

"I don't think the country has any realization of what these kids are - are wanted," said former

United States Commissioner of Education Harold Howe II, who led the group. "They are really floundering."

The commission called for a $5 billion annual increase in federal spending for job training and remedial education programs.

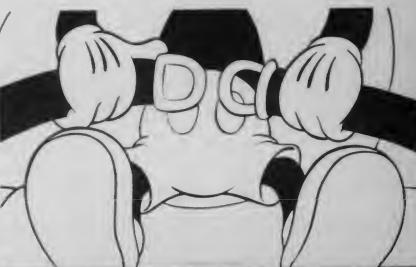

The number of Americans who fail to college according to the Census Bureau, has quadrupled since 1947.

In its 1987 report, the Census Bureau also concluded that students who graduate college can expect to earn $672 a month more than those who attend college but don't earn a degree.

High School Art Show comes to Harper

By Douglas Ray

News Editor
Harper College sponsored the sixth annual High School Art Show and Awards Ceremony. High school students entered art work completed as class assignments or extra activities.

"We host the show for the art students because in the past they had the Scholastics Show Sometime that dissolved, and this is kind of a replacement for that," said Charlotte Horng, Chair person and Assistant Professor of Art.

The art work was judged by Bill Chambers, Illustration

Another single, "Summertime Twist", with the addition of horns, could be easily mistaken for an early Adam Ant single, "I'm Not Late" is an Alarm-style song summed out by Karen Mills Pavlins.

"Good for You" opens with music very similar to Elbow's "Stop Your Mind", and follows suit by becoming the most guitar oriented song on the tape.

Through all of lyrics deal with the usual clichés of love, "Hammer of Love" adds a touch of spice to the same with lyrics such as, "Send me to the table with a hammer in my love and when she starts to cry, no she almost breaks my back."

The only weak link in this strong band songs is trying to get "Sail Me to the Table" off the air, but it's a good try to slow down the pace and talk.

The final song's a bit of a departure for the band as a more traditional rock song combined with March 4's echo box.

Long Live the New Flesh is a thrilling combination of all that's great in new modern music and as bizarre as it is, this will be one of the bands to watch in the future.

Long Live Flesh for Lulu

by Kevin Goldstein
Staff Writer

Long Live the New Flesh is not only the title of Flesh for Lulu's new album, but also acts as a foreshadow for this quarter's bright future if they can keep this kind of intensity for longer.

Opening with "I Go Crazy" first heard in John Hughes' film Some Kind of Wonderful, jazz guitar by Ross Clark immediately sets the stage along with backing keyboards that shows heavy influence by the Psychedelic Furs. Nick Boivin and his Hard Butter continue the momentum of the song, adding some he asks, "What have I done today?"

Following number two is the current single, "Postcards from Paradise" which opens with an Alcatrazie harmonica solo and slowly progresses into the best of maniacal guitars.

Revealed at the relatively advanced Abbey Road studios in London, produced by Mike Hodges and Stephen Hague perfectly layer the combination of rhythms, leads, and vocals to create what is one of the best rock albums to come out of the UK in the last three years.

Board Approves Three Issues

Funds approved for resurfacing of lot two

By Douglas Ray
News Editor

The Board of Trustees approved $10,000 grant funds totaling $159,101 to resurface one third of parking lot two and $90,891 of local funds to resurface the outdoor running track.

Trustees also approved an increase for some laboratory fees in the fee schedule for 1988-89 and considered a proposal from the Administration to Board Policy Manual concerning trespassing.

Parking lot two is currently undergoing resurfacing of the walkways and asphalt areas. The middle third of lot two is expected to begin June 1 and run through September 1, 1988. The final third of the project may not be eligible for grant funds based on necessity of project.

The running track originally scheduled for repair in 1987-88 will be resurfaced during the 1987-88 fiscal year.

The rescheduling of this project was a result of student protest during a recent meeting.

The Board of Trustees, after hearing the case, checked funds and decided to bring forward the renovation date.

Last year Student Activities Fees increased giving no cause for change this year.

Laboratory fees, on the other hand, experienced a marked increase in the following curriculums: Accounting, Astronomy, Biology, Chemistry, Data Processing, Electronic, Geology, Human Services, Management, Mathematics, Physical Education, Park Management, Office and Administrative Services, and many Continuing Education classes both reimbursable and nonreimbursable.

All fares are comparable with other local colleges according to the fee schedule recommendation.

Harper College, in the past, has had a strict trespass policy. The proposed amendment will empower the Board of Trustees with control to protect against encroachment, trespass and destruction of College property.

The new policy allows the campus police to make arrests as determined and will not tolerate littering or disturbing the peace. Sports will not be allowed except on the playing fields.

Village Police will be allowed entrance to all premises on campus with power to arrest or otherwise enforce the policy. Signs will be posted and violators of this policy may be evicted from campus.

Vernon Manke, Vice President of Administrative Services said, "Without this policy we are limited in what we can do if violation occurs." He added the policy "provides an avenue to enforce violation if there is need."

Manke explained the policy was not drafted because of excessive problems, rather as insurance against detrimental activities.

The only修改, Manke mentioned were times when "a lot of people dumping grass clippings and disturbing the wildlife" on the east side of campus where a reserve is used for research. A vote on the policy will be voted on at the next meeting, Thursday March 4.

Student Trustee Election Upcoming

The Illinois legislature body (March 28 and 29 this year) passed House Bill 1628 in September 1973, providing for election committee, as non-voting student representative responsible for overseeing all on and off-campus higher education, including two-year community colleges and four-year institutions.

The law, signed by Governor Walker, became effective October 1, 1973.

The community college section of the law stipulates that the annually elected Student Trustee of each community college shall have a non-voting petition with 50 Harper student members who are student enrolled signatures by March 17 to be in the college under the jurisdiction of the Board.

The Thursday Rockin'-for-Hunger was the highlight of World Hunger Awareness Week at Harper College.

It was jointly sponsored by Brothers and Sisters in Christ (BASIC) and Catholic Campus Ministries, the four day event raised both money for and consciousness about world hunger.

Events other than the "Rockin'-for-Hunger" included a "Run for Hunger" to benefit the hungry, a memorial meal Tuesday, and a global hunger display on Wednesday.

Proceeds raised during World Hunger Awareness Week will be donated to hunger relief groups, Bread For The World and Manna.

World Hunger Awareness Week (from left to right) continues Paula Faber, a BASIC and Dennis Darbs of Catholic Campus Ministries and student rocker Leah Tagare.

The Bat: A philosophical Look at an Andalusian symbol

by Marlene McGinnis
AFD student

A cloud of mosquitoes invaded my window last summer, and every year before, causing me to look for some solution (without using poisonous products) to the stinging problem. Finally, I found Bat Conservation International (BCI).

One of the many surprising things BCI says about bats is, "Law enforcement studies have demonstrated that a single little brown bat can catch and devour up to 600 or more mosquitoes in one hour."

This news stopped my heart. Not only are bats heartbreakers, but they're also public performers. Many of the press reports from local stores would not be there if it were not for our little fury, flying friends. Sadly, bats are an endangered species and need our support for a change.

The Bat Conservation International's presentation of our little friends' woes is quite touching because BCI gives us a lesson to us about our own behavior and does not pretend to point out that our main sacking is our own fault.

Putting out the loss is not BCI's goal. By gallantly illustrating the bat's role (the extinction of some bat species), BCI brings to light a very profound philosophical thought, namely, by ignoring nature, ignoring ourselves, their physical and inner nature. Just W.H. we want to ignore that.

important part of ourselves. I do not want to know.

I do know that ignorants is still in the majority; however, and some of us have come to understand this loss more painfully than others, and because of this experience we are culpable of not sharing the truth with others.

If you want to improve things, but don't point out the good faults, but point out the good

The minutes, days, and years are going by through our civilization, through the demands of our physical needs and desires, evolved from suffering, setting well aside from what is the axis of our existence, and I am afraid, always, leaving always been too simple to be taken into consideration.

It is the middle point between a pure, spiritual mind and a healthy body.

A long time ago, long before men began to overpower nature, various societies gave thanks to the numerous animals that have shared the world with us. Egyptians have found numerous benefits in animals and have studied their behavior extensively.

Chinese still have beautiful spiritual symbols embedded in animal forms, such as the frog. From ancient times of Babylon, in the present day India, the cow is still revered. In Spain, bulls are honored in the bullfights. In some of Spain's most important cities and are in quotes such as, "If you want to live free from out-bills."

The action is on the negative (ie. insect bite), instead of the positive (ie. bat!)

So, I urge you to consider in making a better world, write for information and buy a bat house for your garden. Bat houses are same size as the bird houses.

For more information contact Bat Conservation International, Inc., P.O. Box 1602901, TX, 78716. Or, call (512) 499-0207. I must repeat though, that their only real job is bat eradication.

The benefits brought to us by respecting life, love and truth are being lost as fast as the benefits brought to the attitudes people have towards us.

What we lose from the education and the culture of our parents and significant others is not worth what has been lost and other creatures deserve less in life. Thus, as we follow in the wrong steps we are bitten by our own blindness.

I wish man had a greater sense of responsibility. As good old Andalucians say, "As good as LONG LIVE THE BAT!" and good by mosquito, Ole!

Budget committee: Remember us?

Student Activities moves in mysterious ways. A little more than a week ago the Student Senate filled out its six-member Budget committee with three at-large members (none of whom are required to actually be on the Senate). Two of the three persons chosen have pledged to support the Activities budget unrepresentatively to this committee. The Harbinger, Harper radio station, WHUM were slightly miffed. Well, a bit aggravated.

Spokesperson for WHUM's General Manager, informed me in the course of conversing with him, that he was unhappy and not happy about it. I told him I wasn't aware that we were eligible to be on the committee. After bickering and shouting in each other's faces, I decided to check back with the Senate.

Upon doing so, George Miller, the new Senate President, Rob Bois in the Senate office and procedure to read them the riot act. How could they have a budget committee that's open to student at-large, and not represent $80,000 plus in gross income? Not to mention the fact that we don't get a vote on the actual appropriation, but I would like a chance to defend the budget proposal in committee.

In defense of Bob and the Senate, the hearings on the committee were held in advance of the legislative policy. But I told him that a memo to the major clubs and organizations would have been nice, explaining that this committee is in fact not a Senate committee, but a Student committee.

We are all better off. I think there would be more of a place for each club in the committee for the allocation of all major requests, and if they specifically don't want a place on the committee, then I think we have it. I am told that Student Senator Linda Kipp, who is chairing the committee, agrees, at least in principle, and is looking into that very idea for this year, as well.

So, I guess I get to close an editorial on an upbeat note for a change. Not only do the Student Activities groups on campus communicate effectively (in itself a major improvement on the recent past), but we may get something changed for the better this instead of the proverbial "wait till next year."

Larry Paulin
Editor-in-Chief

Sweeney reader wants to know:

What's all the fuss about?

Dear Larry Paulin:

What is wrong with the guys of the committee? I'm asking the ones who write letters about the controversial columnists. See the Feb. 18 issue of the Harbinger.

Let's put an end to these letters, including ones like mine. I believe an employee of Harper College is writing to state a complaint. Residuals I used to print theater tickets for the Ballroom. I know that all good business is ruined in hunting some one or putting down somebody's name. It's not good for anyone, or political party.

Tim Polk, but I don't print letters when someone tells me a Polk is a bad guy. I have a letter that got all bared up about one man's views enough to feel offended, and they must feel very satisfied with their actions.

The are making what Polk says and what others say about gay issues even more inflamed. In fact, the gay community should keep communicating with your Harbinger readers with your writings letters.

Yours sincerely again regards,

"Off Her Rocker" With our mom

I don't wish to imply that I am the only person in the country's problems. Just to inform you that I have developed the most common disease in the United States—alzheimer's disease.

Once more, by the way, I am disabled. I didn't know the real reason until I did some research. You can do with my help, however, if you will, and see how I'm doing.

Now, I am the 65-year-old woman who has been driving a car for 40 years. I wonder if she will ever learn to drive again.

ANASS won probably respond to noticing a few clinic problems, and continue on their way. It would seem that this doctor would act in the best interest of the law.

My solution to toll gates, ANASS and PAIN IN ANASS is very simple. Instead of the eight tolls (the handicapped parking space), a meter which accepts bills dollar bills only, and no coins. This would force traffic to stop and pay the toll.

The field is being invaded by meter when no money is deposited after a car pulls up. The meter would be located on the windshield of the hands-free individual's vehicle.

2. You don't look very handicapped to me. Or...
Well I wrote a policy man. I should give it to him.

3. I would like a PAIN IN ANASS means well, but one might consider a less often possible problem.

4. Some people have a medical permit on their windshield rather than a license plate with the symbol. This is common among PAIN IN ANASS.

2. If these goods would take the time to realize that this is a medical permit, then the patient who is perfectly ambulatory but limited by a park maker from having a heart attack after once in a while, would not mind having the PAIN IN ANASS. Also the dog doctor would realize that some handicapped people do not take care of their dogs.

5. Since the PAIN IN ANASS is not a police man, who not come and care himself from the force field would render ANASS non-existent for one month.

6. This is the reason the Ambulatory Non-Affiliated Step Saver the privilege of unlimited use of handicapped spaces for the duration of the time the individual is a member of the Ambulatory Non-Affiliated Step Saver of the Narrow minded to find a new and better place to live in, and the proceeds will go to the State of Illinois.

Amyot with a better place where the Harbinger under the heading An eye for an eye, ANASS for ANASS with your response. We would like a vote, write a petition and see where we go.

JUDYYYY!!!

The Harbinger March 3, 1988

When I think of live comedy, I envision cozy smoke-filled clubs complete with green-globe candles, scantly-clad women, and people laughing. You see, until last Friday, I'd been conditioned by HBO and thinking that this is the only way possible to see comedians live.

Okay, we take away all that chairs, stuff, save the comedians and some metal folding chairs and throw a lot onto the Harper gymnasium floor. Friday, February 26, revisited.

Holy Moly! M building auditorium/gymnasium was filled to near capacity on Friday when Harper's program board presented the show. Only Kevon Mathews and Kevin Mathews were at equal in comedy caliber but distinctly different in their styles.

Performing first was Kevon Mathews. Most of you may know him better as Key Head and DJ on the LOOP AM1000, 102.5 weekdays.

Mathews' performance included numerous stories from his own experiences and a myriad of impersonations including a young George Washington, Jack N. Nicholson as an elementary school bus driver. Plenty of timeless jokes with a pinch of profanity rounded out this hour.

Tears are mandatory as a result of a good comedy performance. One of the times at which this point of relief was reached, Mathews was explaining why he hated Christmas.

His grandmother died before Christmas. He had even heard a gift one of those clapping clap-off switches. He and some friends were watching the play of the year star, and his grandmother just so happened to be on a life support system. Okay, you had to be there. If you couldn't leave unsmiled. This was the case.

The crowd was greeted in the usual Tenuta way: HI PIGS!!! What an experience. I had never been to a live comedy show. I had also never been in a comedy/musical. Yes, I have just about seen it all.

Tenuta maintained a high energy level throughout the show. Being in horrible shape, her bawling, singing, dancing and jumping around made me breathless. I now understand

For a transcript of today's program...

By Peter Sweeney

(An aerial view of New York City fills the screen, a big city full of big people with big brains. An upbeat, kinda-now kinda-wow theme song starts seriously conscious: "I'm a tappin' and another episode of Philahue is on the way."

DON: Standing in aisle amid audience members, speaking into a long black marionette head. I'm Don Philahue. (Polite applause) Before we begin discussing today's topic, I'd like to read an amateur letter sent to us by a viewer in Beau Monde, Wisconsin. (Unfolded letter) Dear Don, it says, You have a very interesting name. "Don" in Spanish, means chief, head, or primary person. "Phila" is Greek for love and "hue", of course, means color. Your name means either "Love of the Primary Colors" or "Love of Colored Heads". I think which it is! Signed Helga Fehlenschreng. (Don laughs with audience and continues) Well, frankly Helga, helga, it's both. The primary colors have always aroused deep emotions within me and seeing a colored person's head, with two exceptions, makes me swoon with ecstasy. Those two exceptions are Don King's head, which makes me want to shoot Oprah Winfrey. (Don puts down his hand, which makes him want to shoot Oprah Winfrey.) Cut to a close-up of his hand, which makes him want to shoot Oprah Winfrey. (Don puts down his hand, which makes him want to shoot Oprah Winfrey.) But seriously, I'd like to discuss the problems of drugs in America. Is there a drug problem in America? If there is, we're gonna sit here for the next hour and use our big mouths to try and cover up with us. (Theme song plays as camera pans around the stage. The rapid faces that cunningly conceal the big brains of America's problems continue to tickle their second sport for Taxicola and Hello Fluffy Turnip.)

DON: We're back! Has drug use gotten out of hand in America? It's not an easy question to answer, but some people myself included, are pretty darned upset about it. What do you think about drugs, miss'am? (Don walks over and makes a gesture with his hand, which makes him want to shoot his mother) I think you should consider the nose of a nearby genetic physician, otherwise disguised as a damping agent.

WOMAN: Oooohhhh, I think dem-drugs is bad!

DON: With us today is seventeen year old Betty Braundie. She is something of an authority on drug use, isn't that right Miss Braundie?

BETTY: Snugle, bumpy, wippley, crimp!

DON: You've been using drugs for quite awhile?

BETTY: Hombal sippa double plack!

DON: And have there been any serious side effects stemming from your drug usage?

BETTY: Weeeeeeeeeee! (Slides out of chair and forms a human staircase, suspended in the air)

DON: Now, we're here today is Dr. George Sissibey, author of the book "Drugs: They're Bad". So how about it Doctor, what's the deal with drugs in America?

GEORGE: Well, Don, they're bad.

DON: You mean the quality is bad?

GEORGE: No, Don, I mean that, in my opinion, they have a bad effect on the people who use them. (In support of that statement, George nods twice while holding a cigarette and casually reading up Don's leg)

DON: (To Betty) I thought I told you to wait until after the show! (Audience laughs) Don tries to shake Betty off his thigh, but she clings right)

CALLER: Yes, Don, I saw your wife on a telephone recently. (Audience applauds politely) When did she get so ugly? To look like her father, I mean, don't you think? (Audience applauds politely)

DON: Well, I'm right back! (Theme music plays. Camera zooms in on newspaper in back row. Cut to commercial for "You-In-Trouble Protective Undergarments")

SHAMUS THE WANDERING HOUNDDOG

By Eddie J. Feiglin

I have a friend or a hound or a large kitten. His name is Shamus the Wandering Hounddog. He is also a dog, but who don't laugh at a great name like Shamus the Wandering Hounddog everyday, so something had to give.

Shamus is a fine animal in many respects. Like most felines, she can open the front door (yes), and she does have a few other impressive talents. She's got above average intelligence, and her long, unctuous-mannered refrigerator door, can openers, TV controls and pop top cans. Shamus also understands the concept and usage of her litter box. She doesn't use it, but she understands it.

I was having difficulty thinking of an article for this week's paper, so I asked the little hound if she had any ideas.

"Nah," she said, "I'd like to eat our now."

"Great," I muttered. "I have to come up with something good or Peder will use me as bait."

Shamus jumps to my lap and sniffs her not-so-cute claws into the soft flesh of my belly.

"Hey human," she says, "I think I said now!"

Her implied threat is a valid one. I could probably take her in a fair fight, but Shamus the Wandering Hounddog has little sense of fair play. I have to sleep sometime, and I usually do without an entire leg and have a good start on the other before realizing something was amiss.

Her tigerish eyes are smiling (like that). Naomii but her mouth carries the non-impassable threat (in talking fangs, baby).

I open the door for her and leave it open, the usually doesn't take long and the other before she doesn't take to knock. In five minutes she returns with an eight point buck in tow. As

DON: We're back. (Betty is now firmly clamped to Don's back) Allow me to play the devil's advocate here for a moment: People want drugs for all sorts of reasons. Not just to get high, but just to get the heck with it! If we legalize and tax drugs, we could probably erase the deficit in two weeks! (Tittering and polite applause) Sir, how does one feel about all of this? (Don holds his stiff mike to the lips of a man whose lifely comprehension of biting social issues almost shines through his motions)

MAN: Uh... well Don... if dem drugs can get my wife Bertha to act like dat Betty babe who is now wearing a negligee around Don's neck... I'd like to know where to get em'! (audience laughs)

DON: Okay, okay. Our last guest today is... (Don pulls out a cigarette and lights it) get the hell off of me! (Don pulls Betty in the head with his mike but she doesn't seem to notice) Our next guest is Rabbi Goldboyo of the "National Coalition to Ban LSD and Other Drugs". (Audience applauds) I never listen. They must try to be true. I always stop listening when I'm not interested. They must just thrown together instead of carefully staged and executed with split-second precision. We have corporate sponsors here who are paying big money to see their products advertised on a penetrating, socially relevant program. You believe me, don't you, Rabbi? Now, please, briefly, but briefly, what's the answer to America's drug problem?

RABBI GOLDBOYO: Well, Don, that's a very complex question and...

DON: We'll be right back. (Theme song plays. Camera stays on Don as he pushes Betty repeatedly in the head. Cut to spot for "E.Z. Mom Disposes of Babies")

DON: Well, we're back and I have to hurry now, because during the break I took a large quantity of LSD and I can already feel it taking effect. (Pan to show something awful from his face) I am a... I am a... and gentilman, this demonstration is a first for live television. (Sound effects) as Don uses his mike to swing at an invisible pest! Oh wwwwww (Don's voice becomes very deep and very slow) We're back and I have to turn the screw again. This time, I'm going to use a large quantity of LSD and I...aaaaaaahhhhhh!! Go to the dragon's lair! (The Hell Dragon) Hell Dragon flats wildly at his dragons and lumber down over all the steps. Hell Dragon flats to his neck and seems oblivious to his thrashing. He rolls back and forth on the floor like king and slapping at empty air! Oh no! Make them stop! Help! (Finally, Don's suit subsides and he lays in a panting, sweating heap on the floor. Betty seems content. Don raises a hand to his head) Betty, you're... you're... you're... (Audience laughs) Betty, you're... Help! (Don runs into audience trying frantically to shake off Betty. Scream) Jesus help me! It's a snake! It's eating me! (In his attempts to tear Betty off his neck, Don grabs a handful of her hair) Oh noooooo! It's a grizzly! A grizzly's got me! Call the zoo, I'm being eaten by a grizzly! (Audience laughs) My skin is coming off... oh dear God! Oh God! Oh God! (Don begins to transform into a porcine and lamb in the lap of an obese neurosurgeon in a Hawaiian muumuu)

WOMAN: I coulda toldja dem drugs was no good.

STUDIO LOUDSPEAKER: STUDIO LOUDSPEAKER: Don...

DON: Is that you, God?

STUDIO LOUDSPEAKER: No, Don. This is Jim up in the booth. We just realized that wasn't LSD you took, it was Debbie's hinch control pill.

DON: Oh, well, yeah! (Don stands and straightens his suit, ignoring the fact that Betty is perched on his head) Well, er... I hope you've all enjoyed this little dramatization. (Polite applause) Join us tomorrow when our topic will be "AIDS: Is It Bad?" (Theme song plays, the New York skyline again fills the screen and Don's mike is still on. Somebody gets this bitch off my head. Burn her off if you have to!) Does anyone have a gun?

she sets it in front of the TV it occurs to me that she would be a good match for a school of piranha

How can you eat all that and still stay so small? I asked her during a commercial break.

Efficient plumbing

Don't you ever get sick of venom?

Why don't you consider my sole alternative before you ask that, you moron? It occurs to me that I'm living my natural superiority over this simple life form, so try to remember that.

I wave Shamus. I begin. But get no further.

George. I call. "I'll eat your brain."

With a leap, she dashes over to know who wears the proverbial pants.

Can I get you anything? I ask.

Bear in a bowl would be nice

Should I grab my self?

Feed her from your house.

Pretz, one half.

Oh, one more thing: Wild Kingdom comes on... she says, tossing aside the deployed seal.

I think you can expect a new mailman tomorrow.

Aren't they just adorable when they're still small?

how she remains so tiny. She insists on being called a "petite flower." She shored, throughout the night, many of her personal philosophies. One of them was that there are only two kinds of people in the world: givers and takers. Givers bring her canned goods; takers don't.

In many points, in the show I found myself wondering whether she wasn't kind of hazzard off stage as well.

Perhaps it was when she was talking about her son, Peter. Her old life, as depicted in her diary, appeared to her in her cheezy-shoe and he lives in her.

As her performance continued, I noticed a strange indentation on her forehead. The crowd was being converted to Judy-on. There were chanting her name, "Judy...on," in rhythmic unison, and a woman in the audience was waving her arms about at a Grateful Dead concert. I felt it was step beyond your basic crowd participation.

When the crowd truly converted to "Judy...on." Will they bring her canned goodness next time? We'll perform again. That is, on our next performance, nearest you, to find a solution to these and many other unanswered questions.

"Was I converted?" Yes Judy came to me in my sleep who and asked me so.

Basketball's Long Season Ends

Travis Perry Named MVP

by Scott Bordon
Sports Editor

The men's basketball team had a long and difficult season. The team ended up with a 2-12 conference record and was 6-21 overall.

First year Harper Coach Bill Probst took on a team he did not recruit and given had little time to recruit with.

The Hawks, who had the smallest team in the conference faced difficulties after the team came out. Probst lost several players, including two starters due to academic ineligible.

The players that remained had little basketball experience and even less with Probst basketball."

Probst, a 24-year coaching veteran believes in an aggressive all-man defense. He wants players that discipline most students that will follow his program.

Probst said, "These kids are the best in coach," Probst has previously coached at St. Xavier for 10 years, considered himself a "positive negative" coach.

Probst said, "I will put a player on the back when he deserves it but if he messes up, Probst will get on his case."

Probst said, "I am a tough and demanding coach. The coach is very extremely vocal."

That is the coaches style and if a player wants to play in he will have to accept it."

Freshman center Joe Passi accepted Probst's philosophy and is future improved as a player. "I have learned a good deal from him. He is a good coach, he knows the game."

Perry plans to return to Harper next year. During the off-season, Perry played basketball and plenty of basketball.

Travis Perry is another player that followed the Probst philosophy. Perry, a sophomore, and a freshman athletically was named the team MVP.

Perry said, "Probst is a good defensive coach, he knows what he's doing and he does it well."

Even though Perry had a new coach and faced a losing season he decided to stick with the team. "We did not know what to expect so we stuck with the coach. It was definitely a learning experience," commented Perry.

Perry feels that he gained confidence in his outside shot and several inches on his vertical jump.

Perry could not dunk in August now he can put it down with ease.

Perry, an Elementary Education major will have his Associates Degree at the end of this semester. Perry is a good student as well as a good player.

He is undecided whether to continue playing basketball at Harper or to transfer to a four-year school.

Perry feels that if he plays another season at Harper he could eventually play at a four-year school.

In the off-season Perry is going to work with weights. He also will work on his defense, rebounding and shooting.

Coach Probst concluded, "This has been my longest and most frustrating season as a coach."

Mens Basketball is truly a team sport until next year. If Perry returns, Passi improved over Probst, and recruit this type of talent the Hawks will be tough.

Coach Probst concluded,

Wrestling: Injuries Hamper Hawks at Nationals

by Scott Bordon
Sports Editor

Harper had big plans for the NCAAs nationals, unfortunately those plans did not come true.

Harper's wrestling season ended after all six Hawk wrestlers failed in advance pass the preliminary rounds at Cornell University last Thursday.

Harper suffered four Hawks from double elimination competition.

All-American heavyweight Rick Hoffman suffered a first-round loss. Later Hoffman was eliminated on defaults due to injuries.

After the elimination of tournament favorites Hoffman was a big disappointment.

Jim Smith at 190 pounds also defaulted because of injury

however Smith was able to capture the only Hawk victory in his first match.

Sant' Antonio (1) suffered an undeniably injury during warmups. He was originally an empire. Camarillo had a difficult season, earlier this year he had suffered an ankle injury.

Alan Gandy at 126 atom dropped out of competition after a last-second injury.

The only two injury free were Jim Smith (190) and Bill Gandy (138). They were also unsuccessful. Both wrestlers were knocked out of competition after losing two matches.

The quick elimination of six Hawks was a big disappointment. Camarillo said, "We were all disappointed about sant' Antonio (1) and our own Jim Smith."

He added, "Next year, team will have some returning wrestlers and should hopefully avoid."

Cammarata (138) was injured in the first round.
