ADDITIONAL INFORMATION

Applying to a College of Art and Design

- Art and Design programs at four-year schools vary. Most offer areas of specialization in a medium such as painting, sculpture, photography, design, and ceramics.
- Admissions to most Art and Design programs is competitive.
- There are usually admission requirements to Art and Design programs in addition to the college or university itself. Individual schools vary as to these admission requirements. Generally expect to submit a portfolio of art works for admission and scholarship consideration.

 The plan above outlines a suggested sequence for the Art History courses. ART 133 (Non-Western Art History), which fulfills the World Culture and Diversity Requirement, may be included as well.

Studio Art Transfers:

This sample plan is for students who intend to transfer to a four-year school to complete a BA or BFA degree in art. The Harper Art Faculty suggests choosing studio art electives that most align with the interests of the student. These classes will dictate the kind of artwork that makes up the student's transfer portfolio. Related careers include but are not limited to: practicing artist, college-level teaching, museum and gallery work, art therapy, community art organizations, and any creative field.

Design Studio Transfers:

This sample plan is for students who intend to transfer to a four-year school to complete a BA or BFA degree in a design field. These include Graphic Design, Web Design, Illustration, Industrial Design, Interior Design, Architecture, and Fashion Design. Art studio electives should be chosen to best prepare the student for their area of interest. For example: Graphic Design majors might include printmaking, photography, and painting, and Industrial Design might include sculpture, ceramics, and figure drawing. These classes will dictate the kind of artwork that makes up the student's transfer portfolio.

Art Education Transfers

This sample plan is for students who intend to transfer to a four-year school to complete a degree in art education. Most art education programs require students to take classes in a diverse range of mediums. Students on this path should consider this when selecting art studio electives. These classes will dictate the kind of artwork that makes up the student's transfer portfolio. Related careers include but are not limited to: teaching primary and secondary education, K-12 administration, art therapy, museum education, and community arts programming.

MAJORS

Minor In Fine Art

The minor in fine art teaches students to be creative and critical thinkers as well as innovators and problem solvers, which may lead to successful careers in fields as diverse as education, art therapy, nonprofit management, marketing, media, technology and business. In addition, the study of art encourages students to address and contemplate life's big questions: Who am I? What is my work ethic? Where do I fit in the world? What do I have to say?

LOCATION: Chicago

START TERM: Fall, Spring

The fine art minor provides students with an opportunity to investigate, interrogate and create art in a socially conscious context. Whether through art history or introduction to art courses that bring the world of art alive, or through studio art classes in areas such as ceramics, drawing and textile arts, students with a minor in fine art come to appreciate the personal, social, political and economic impact that art has on the world.
