

DEPAUL UNIVERSITY

Communication and Media Bachelor's Degree Completion at Harper University Center

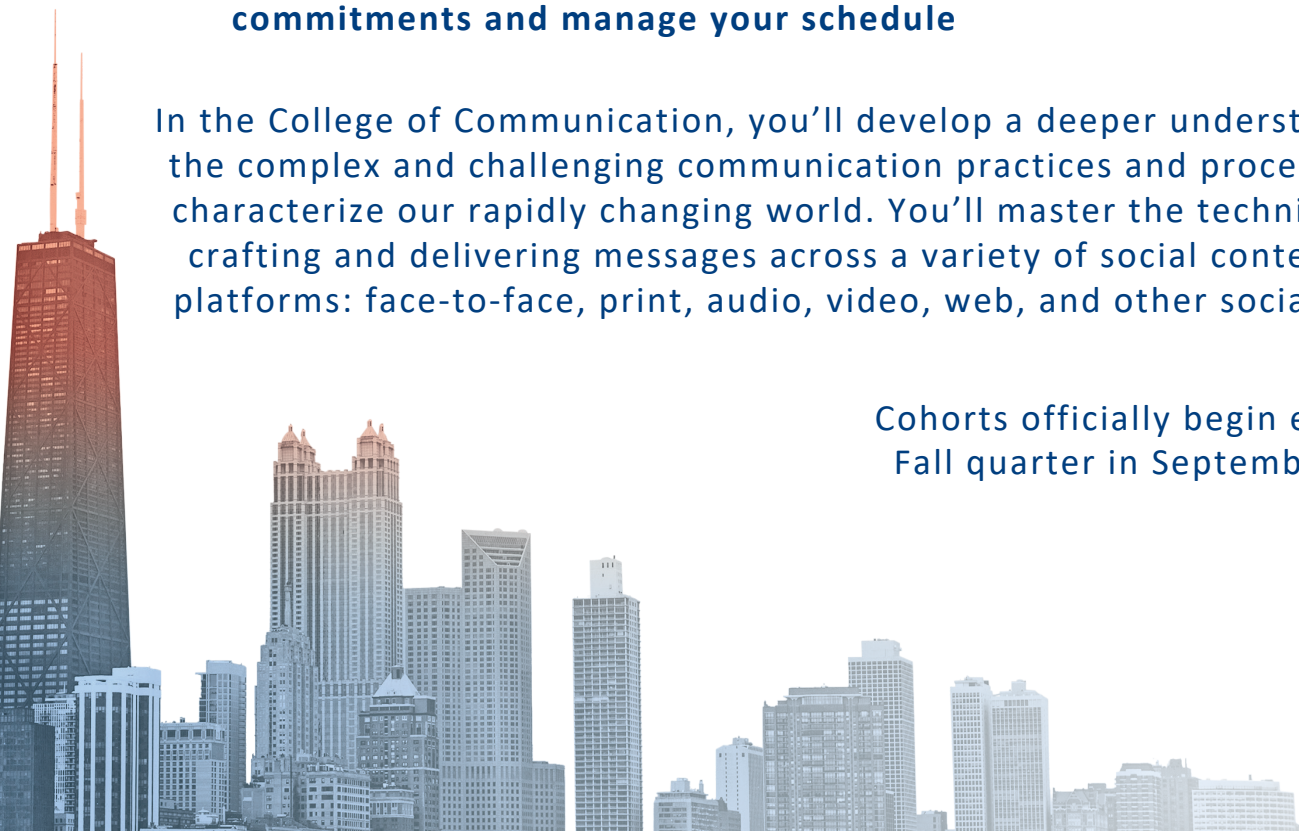

As a partner of the Harper University Center, DePaul University is offering the opportunity for students earning an Associate of Arts or with equivalent credit hours the ability to complete a BA in Communication and Media on-site at Harper College. As a Communication and Media major, you will take courses from a variety of programs in the College of Communication: Communication Studies, Media and Cinema Studies, Communication and Technology, Journalism, Organizational Communication, and Public Relations and Advertising.

Benefits of this program include:

- Discounted tuition rate, 25% lower than the university's undergraduate tuition
- Courses taught by DePaul College of Communication faculty both on-site at the Harper University Center in Palatine, IL and online
- A cohort model for taking courses, where you will have the support of fellow students at each and every point along the way
- A set course schedule each academic term allowing you to plan your commitments and manage your schedule

In the College of Communication, you'll develop a deeper understanding of the complex and challenging communication practices and processes that characterize our rapidly changing world. You'll master the techniques for crafting and delivering messages across a variety of social contexts and platforms: face-to-face, print, audio, video, web, and other social media.

Cohorts officially begin each
Fall quarter in September.
